SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles, has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments.

SANTA MONICA

Offers a most inviting opportunity.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

The Parisian dramatic and musical season now drawing to a close, has been, on the whole, a successful rather than a brilliant one.

We are glad to hear that J. Cheever Goodwin's burlesque of "Evangeline," has been a success in Boston. Mr. Goodwin's name will certainly be remembered by many as that of the clever writer of the librettos of "Girofle-Girofla," "The Princess of Trebizonde," "La Fille de Madame Angot" and "La Belle Helene" used by Mrs. James A. Oates and Company. The Boston Courier says of the burlesque: Mr. Goodwin has absolutely flooded us with his double meanings. We come to the surface a moment to breathe and we are taken off our feet and lost in a sea of wild and whirling words, while we long in vain for an ark of safety and the companionship of dumb animals. But Mr. Goodwin has striven too much after originality. This ambition, however, is a failing that leans to viritue's side, and though his effort to produce something novel is somewhat too palpable, it shows that he has a mind of his own and prefers the rugged, unexplored mountain pathway to the beaten level highway of the ordinary dramatic wayfarer. Many of the incidents are strictly without a precedent in my knowledge of burlesque, and entitle Mr. Goodwin to be called the Jules Verne of American extravaganza. As instances I might cite the pursuit of Evangeline by a whale, the disguise of two naval deserters as a dancing heifer, the noteworthy mustering of nearly all of the dramatis personæ on a pyramid of Saratoga trunks previous to Evageline's enforced departure from the village of Grand Pre, and the flight of the balloon from Africa to Arizona en route to "the shores of the basin of Minas." The execution of these ideas is, perhaps, not equal to their conception but it shows an effort in a proper direction.

Another Italian star, Signor Rossi, has made his reputation in Shakespearean characters. "Hamlet," "Macbeth," "Lear" and "Othello, are as prominent among Signor Rossi's past impersonations as "Faust" and "Cid." Curiously enough, he was born in the some year as Signor Salvini—i. e., 1829. He is a native of Leghorn, and was, it is said, educated for the bar, but, finding his vocation on the tragic stage, left the duller study of mechanical life for the footlights. But Signor Rossi is, strange to say, a comedian as well—sister parts that are seldom in unison. This is his first appearance in England.

Looking over a list of the various places of amusement in the English metropolis has made us come to the conclusion that London has not only the greatest number of any city on the face of the earth, but can also justly boast of the greatest variety. At the present moment there are two Italian operas, one French opera, one Italian tragedian and company, besides which Rossi and still another Frenth company are expected. Thus they have five troupes of foreigners. Next come no less than thirty theatres for the performance of English comedy, drama and burlesque. The suburbs have the Crystal Palace and Alexandra Palace for general amusements, while close to the city are found Cremorne, Surrey and North Woolwich Gardens for al fresco music and dancing.

The Philadelphia All Day City Item is never remarkable for its saying smooth things concerning actors. Of Mr. Edward Arnott, it says: "He belongs to the usual class of English actors imported by that close old gentleman, Mr. Lester Wallack, because he could engage them in London for less salary than he would have to pay in this country, which little trick, Mr. Wallack learned from his lamented papa."

Edwin Booth and his Theatre.

Some little time ago Mr. Edwin Booth was requested by the managers to name his own terms for an engagement at Booth's, but thus far he has declined to reappear at that theatre on the ground that he could not act again on a stage already identified with the loss of his entire fortune. Practical business men might be tempted into ridiculing so mawkish and sentimental an excuse. It follows, however, that while Mr. Booth has declined to act on the stage of a theatre bearing his name, he will, instead, make his re-entree at Daly's Fifth Avenue, where he will appear Oct. 4. There has been some sympathy expressed for the great tragedian, based on the belief that his pecuniary misfortunes had excluded his presence from the grand edifice he had created; but the foregoing authoritative statement will serve to dissipate all erroneous impressions on the subject.

A Washstand Mystery.

If water be placed in a circular vessel with a small exit pipe in the center of the latter, and if, having come to rest, the fluid be allowed suddenly to flow out, it is found that when the surface has arrived within about four inches of the said exit a deep funnel is formed in the center by the rapid revolution of the water, caused in part by the effort of the air to enter the exit pipe.

This can easily be proved by a trial in the usual form of the stationary washstand. While the depth of water is considerable, the whirling motion and funnel do not occur, probably, because the thicker stratum of fluid is better able to sustain the pressure of the atmosphere over a partial vacuum in the pipe. The very remarkable fact connected with this phenomenon is that the revolution occurs invariably from the right hand to the left hand and towards the observer; and herein it very evidently follows a constant, mysterious law.

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T. & D. Lundy, who have just opened at No. 177 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

PROCLAMATION.

July 4th, 1875.

HEADQUARTERS GRAND MARSHAL,
No. 127 Montgomery street,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., June 17th, 1875.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—The near approach of the Ninety-ninth Aniversary of the Declaration of American Independence is the signal to invoke good citizens to aid in perfecting the arrangements for a fitting celebration of the honored day.

Having been distinguished in the appointment of Grand Marshal by the unanimous choice of the Committee of Arrangements, I desire to extend to all military organizations, civic bodies, societies, and all classes of citizens willing to organize for the purpose, a warm and hearty invitation to join in the memorial honors of the day.

Without partizan or sectional bias, looking only to the glorious national memories of the past, and to the prosperous future stretching far before us, let us, dwellers by the Western Sea, send back a loyal greeting to our fellow-citizens nearer the birth-place of National Freedom.

The first century of American freedom draws to its glorious close. National trials and struggles for existence have not shattered the noble fabric of Republican self-government—cemented as it is by the blood of our Revolutionary forefathers. Looking backward to the early vicissitudes of our national existence, the American citizen sees in the high-souled patriotism of the Revolution the grandest model of duty and self-devotion. Let us fittingly honor the day, the men, the deed. The Independence of America! its proclamation gave hope to suffering millions; its achievement has given happiness to a vast nation in wealth and numbers, far surpassing the most sanguine hopes of the manly heroes who fought for posterity, who died that we might be free. In peaceful enjoyment of the freedom so dearly purchased, let us as a grateful body of fellow-citizens forget any dividing line in the one proud boast that we are Americans.

Special invitations will be extended to all accessible associations, and it is enjoined upon all classes of our citizens to organize under chosen officers and receive a proper place in line.

Announcement is made of the appointment of Major R. H. Savage as Chief Aid to the Grand Marshal.

Committees on Finance will be duly announced, and in their visits to our fellow-citizens, the general response peculiar to California is invoked for the necessary support of such a celebration as will do our loyalty credit.

JOHN McCOMB,
Grand Marshal.

Amusements, Etc.

Opera House.

But two or three representations more of that rollicking farce "Ultimo," and then the company leave us for a trip in the interior. The house again last night was such as proved that the popularity of the piece would warrant yet another week's presentation.

California Theatre.

The week must certainly not pass without a passing notice of Miss Bella Pateman's clear cut, and impressive Marguerite, a trifle too icy perhaps, but very graceful. Which last adjective will certainly apply to her costuming. Miss Jennie Lee as Madame Aubrey struggled to hide her pleasant self under the mask of the lachrymose and hypocritical old maid, but the mask was most patently a mask, and she was too often her young, bright self. There are others who will receive attention before "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" is withdrawn.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The Alleghanians open at this place of amusement to-night, with a programme including selections for the bells, the silver sextette band, the tintinnabulator, and solos, duets and quartetts by all the talented company.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

'La Grande Duchess," was played by this unique opera troupe at P att's Hall, yesterday afternoon, and drew a very ir attendance. This evening there will be a comp. mentary benefit of that diminutive vocalist, Senor Guadalupe Unda y Moron (aged 6 years), on wh occasion the first act of the comic opera "The Coll Girl" and the opera of "On the Horns of the l l." Between the acts Senorita Soledad of the same name, will sing an aria from "I Puritani" and the wa z from "Elena Dangeri." It is to be hoped and exp ected that the size of the house will be inverse ratio to that of the tiny beneficiary

Frank Rea's Benefit

On Sunday evening next, as we suppose everybody knows, the veteran's benefit will be held at Maguire's Theatre. The volunteer talent was more than could be accepted, but such a selection has been made as will enable the "old man" to give something like a bill.

Fourth of July.

A special matinee performance will be given at Platt's Hall on Monday, July 5th, by the San Francisco Minstrels. The company is a good one, and le need now no longer ask, "What shall we do when the procession is over?

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Charley Kitnic was received with most unmistakable favor, everything being re- and re-re-demanded. Swain and West's double song and dance, Lydia Livingston's songs and dances and the acts are all good.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

This new variety theatre progresses. Charley Harris and Lotta Gray have a capital Dutch act. Ned Barry's song are well received and "Bad Whisky" which concludes the programme is capitally played by Hughey Robinson and Matt Carroll. A new local piece entitled "The Brand of Shame" is in preparation.

Palace Variety Theatre.

Sam Baylis and his living shadows, Devoy, Howard and Kelly, in acts, Geo. C. Thompson in his specialties, Henry Stewart in jig dancing, and Alli Barbee in his salamander feats, are a few of the features of to-night's bill.

San Francisco Cadets.

Do not forget the benefit of the San Francisco Cadets at Platt's Hall to-morrow evening. Captain McDonald's Indians and the Golden City Amateurs furnish the entertainment.

REISEN KELLER.—This mammoth symposium, corner of Third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House, gives a grand instrumental concert every evening. The spacious Riesen Keller combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

Two beautiful Albino Children, Sig. Laviti the Italian Fire King, in his astonishing Repas Infernale, Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze, the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert on Saturday and Sunday, and on Monday when there will also be a most extensive and brilliant display of Fire Works at 8:30, and performance, concert and skating till 12 M.

Notes.

The sale of seats for the English Opera Troupe is proceeding briskly at Sherman and Hyde's, and the certainty of a brilliant season is growing daily more assured. Mr. C. D Hess arrived in town last night from Salt Lake, where the business has been splendid.

Daly's Fifth Avenue Company open at Platt's Hall on Monday, July 12th, in "London Assurance," to be followed during the week with "Divorce," "Old Heads" and "Frou-Frou." "The Big Bonanza" will be produced the second week. The sale of season boxes is opened to-day at Houseworth's, but the regular sale of tickets will not begin until Wednesday next. Box office to be at Sherman & Hyde's.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was esta ed by the present proprietor in 1850 and has b in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 218 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Fresh and Sweet.

For the best confectionery, go to Canty and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St near Sutter. s

VERSICAL ODDS AND ENDS.

There died recently in Constantine, Michigan, Mrs. Sarah M. Bates. The melancholy event impelled a son of the deceased to compose a short poem on her memory. Thus:

Mother lived to see the last
Of the old year (18) Seventy-four,
And five days of the new just passed,
When God said, "Be here no more."

Rev. L. M. Edmonds gave the sermon
From Revelations, 14 chapter 13 verse;
Bro. Francisco was the foreman,
Furnished Case and drove the Hearse.

O touch that rosebud! it will bloom—
My lady fair!
A passionate red in dim green gloom,
A joy, a splendor, a perfume,
That sleeps in air.

You touched my heart; it gave a thrill
Just like a rose
That opens at a lady's will:
Its bloom is always yours until
You bid it close.

Lorenzo Day having married Miss Martha Week, a local paper comments:

"A Day is made, a Week is lost,
But Time should not complain—
There'll soon be little Days enough
To make the Week again."

The following verse was once inscribed on a church in Halifax, N. S., the basement of which had been used as wine saloon:

There's a spirit above and a spirit below,
A spirit of joy and a spirit of woe;
The spirit above is the spirit divine,
The spirit below is the spirit of wine.

Epitaph on a famous whist player:

His card is cut—long days he shuffled through
The game of life—he dealt as others do.
Though he by honors tells not his amount
When the last trump is played his trick will count.

If any of our rising young composers are looking for some original words for a sentimental song, here they are:

What's this I hear where'er I wander?
"A-la ga-zook, ga-zeek, ga-zam!
Ga-zanes, ga-zones, and a-la ga zonda,
A-la ga-zeek, ga zook, ga-zam!"

—"They met—that is, she went to the store,
And made him turn his department o'er,
Til he vanished behind the goods, and then
She p easantly said she would call again."

She sa , as pointing to the lips,
Where umerously he'd kissed her,
"I'h own e bliss to love, my dear,
But not that style of blister.'

Come to Grief.

The seductive banana skin brought a young man to grief in Fourteenth street on Friday. He didn't see it, so he planted his foot on it, and he ook it off without being told to do so. In removing his foot, however, he attempted to do so too rapidly, and he landed on his back on the sidewalk. He got up quickly and moved away faster than Weston could travel. It is probable that he did this owing to his pantaloons not being as strong as the sidewalk, and several young ladies were tittering at him, too. A streak of white linen in a setting of black broad-cloth is rather amusing.

A Famous Bull.

Sir Boyle Roche was deeply impressed with the sanguinary dispositions of the French revolutionists, and in advocating some measures to prevent their invading Ireland, he said to the Speaker, "Sir, if measures are not taken to keep these blood-thirsty ruffians out of Ireland, they will break into this very House, and cut off our heads before our faces."

TO MY BROTHER AND SISTER ARTISTS—LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: In accepting your very kind and flattering offer of a benefit, allow me to return my sincere thanks, and with your permission will name the evening of Sunday, July 4th, at Maguire's New Theatre, as the time and place to avail myself of your kindness. The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold; for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles, has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments.

FRIDAY.........................JULY 2

A SPOILT SENSATION.

"What was intended to be a sensation, but wasn't, says the New York correspondent of the Baltimore Bulletin, "came out in last week's Sunday Mercury. It was headed "Divorce in High Life," and was evidently brought forward because it was supposed to concern Miss Neilson, the eminent actress. That lady having departed for Europe, and the theatrical season having been brought to a close, very little attention was excited by the publication. The facts of the case are understood to be as follows: The dramatic editor of this journal, (the S. M.) approached a friend of Miss Neilson at a performance of Amy Robsart at Booth's Theatre on Monday evening, April 26th, and informed him that a document of a character very offensive to Miss Neilson was in the possession of the paper which he represented, and that it might be well for the lady's friends to investigate the matter. He disclaimed acting otherwise than as a well-wisher of Miss Neilson. He procured a letter of introduction to Miss Neilson from her agent, and advised her to at once communicate with the part-proprietor of the paper to which he was attached. This she declined to do in person, and Mr. George Fawcett Rowe volunteered to represent her. Accordingly he called upon the part-proprietor of the paper, who read to him portions of a report of the divorce suit of Birch vs. Birch, observing that Miss Neilson's name appeared on every page. Upon Mr. Rowe inquiring whether there were any means to avoid printing the case, the proprietor said that he had paid a large sum of money for the document, and there had been a competition between newspapers to obtain it. Mr. Rowe then left. Mr. Tooker, the business manager of Booth's Theatre, was asked to take the necessary steps to avoid the publication of the offensive article. Mr. Tooker called with Mr. Rowe upon the newspaper proprietor, who offered to sell the manuscript for $1,500. This, Mr. Tooker reported to Mr. Jarrett, who gave him his check for $700, which he bade him tender for the document. This he did, but the proprietor refused to take a check in such a matter, but was willing to close the transaction if he could be paid $700 in bills, and another appointment was made. Before keeping it he saw Miss Nielson, who told him she wished to proceed no further in the matter, having resolved not to negotiate for a sale—her counsel, having instructions to proceed legally against the scheme as a blackmailing operation. Accordingly Mr. Tooker, on meeting the newspaper proprietor at the arranged interview, reported Miss Neilson's decision. Nothing further was done by Miss Neilson or her friends in the matter, except to ask the counsel for the newspaper, to exert his influence to prevent the publication. Miss Neilson sailed for Europe four weeks since, and on Sunday week, the paper in question made room for the story. Comment is unnecessary.

Oh Hennery!

A hen-pecked husband writes: "Since the day that Mary Ann cackled us into matrimony and we consented to gather her and her mother under our sheltering wings, we have had considerable experience with domestic fouls. An experience like that pulls the feathers all put the egg-sucking days all out of our boyhood, or of the fricasseed days of our bachelorhood. We are not the haughty, neck-stretching rooster we once were. The incessant cluck, cluck, of two old dorkings has henpecked our spirits and taken all the sand out of our crop. We can't get upon the fence and crow over our matrimonial adventures loud enough to be heard on the other side."

An Unlucky Month.

May has long been considered an unlucky month for marriages. April seems to be equally unlucky to authors, for in that sun-and-shower month the immortal Will and the great Cerventes pierced the clouds and entered the unseen. Goldsmith, Heber, Bacon, Young, Metastasio, Boussuet, Collins, Buffon, Fox, Byron, Fielding, Wordsworth, Defoe, Cowper, Chaucer, Montgomery, Dryden and many others also died on the threshold of merry May.

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T. & D. Lundy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

Amusements, Etc.

California Theatre.

There yet remain two or three characters in the "Romance of a Poor Young Man," as played at the California Theatre, the memory of which we must preserve from oblivion by noticing them. Miss Carrie Wyatt has a strong part in Mlle Helouin the Governess, and the fear lest she should be overweighted proved happily unfounded. Mrs. Judah's Nurse Louise is just exactly what one would suppose it to be, charming and correct, while little Tillie Darling made a feature of her part of the Peasant Girl.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The Alleghanians opened at this theatre last evening for a short season with a thoroughly excellent programme. The name of the company is one that has been favorably before the public for the past twenty-five years, and their performances in the inland and seaboard towns of California during the past three months have met with marked success.

Opera House.

"Ultimo" shows no signs of failing attraction. Good houses and hearty laughter greet every performance and surely there could be no pleasanter greeting, the full houses for the Manager and the hearty laughter for the actors.

Grand English Opera.

The sale of seats for the English Opera Troupe is proceeding briskly at Sherman and Hyde's, and the certainty of a brilliant season is growing daily more assured. Fred Zimmerman beams brightly and more brightly as the box sheets get covered.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

It was Senorita Guadalupe Unda y Moron's benefit last night, on which occasion the first act of "The College Girl" and the comic opera of "On the Horns of the Bull" formed the bill. The house was as usual, much given to "loud and continued applause." There will be no performance this evening, but to-morrow evening "Robinson Crusoe" will be given.

Frank Rea's Benefit

On Sunday evening next, as we suppose everybody knows, the veteran's benefit will be held at Maguire's Theatre The volunteer talent was more than could be accepted, but such a selection has been made as will enable the "juvenile" to give something like a bill.

The Glorious Fourth

Which is really the glorious Fifth this year, will still be made more glorious by an entertainment given at Platt's Hall in the afternoon as soon as the procession has passed. The programme may be found in another column.

San Francisco Cadets.

This evening the San Francisco Cadets have a grand complimentary benefit in the character of an entertainment and ball. The entertainment will consist of an exhibition drill by Captain. E. S. McDonald's band of male and female Columbian Indians, and a minstrelsy programme by the Golden City Amateurs.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Charley Kimic is certainly a success, his Dutch dialect is good and his acts new and taking. The bill for to-night includes his performances and that of many others all first-rate in their line.

Palace Variety Theatre.

George C. Thompson's specialties are always amusing. Alli Barbee's feats are certainly astonishing. Sam Baylis' living shadows are undoubtedly clever and the whole performance is well worth seeing.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The olio is the great feature here, the songs being sentimental, dialect, serio-comic and comic, whilst the dances include ballet dances, jig, clog, reels and fancy.

REISEN KELLER.—This mammoth symposium, corner of Third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House, gives a grand instrumental concert every evening. The spacious Riesen Keller combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

Two beautiful Albino Children, Sig. Laviti the Italian Fire King, in his astonishing Repas Infernale, Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze, the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert on Saturday and Sunday, and on Monday when there will also be a most extensive and brilliant display of Fire Works at 8:30, and performance, concert and skating till 12 M.

CITY GARDENS.—Will open on Sunday under new management. Instrumental concert, fireworks and other attractions on Monday.

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold; for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos. Snuffs, etc.,

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

DREAM ON.

Go, blessed Sleep, kiss my love's eyes,
Lull her to rest;
Sweep o'er the couch whereon she lies,
With blissful dreamings banish sighs—
So make her blest.

Thy gentle hand can bring her peace,
Soothe all her fears;
From earth's sad cares the soul release,
A little space bid sorrow cease,
Chase away tears.

So wrap her in thy dreams, O Sleep!
O'ercast her eyes;
Yet have her slumbers not too deep.
But love's fair thoughts her fancy keep,—
Love that ne'er dies.

Yes, when thou'st veiled her weary eyes,
Spirit of Sleep!
Sweet fancies from her dreams will rise,
Love's visions pure, till darkness dies,
Her soul will keep.

Rest then in bliss through all the night,
My love dream on!
Still be thy visions fair and bright,
Still doth my soul with thine unite—
Dream on! Dream on!

A Common Fault.

A Texas paper says: While Captain Harper was engaged in his census-taking duties yesterday, a lady on whom he called asked permission to look at his book. The captain who is noted for his courtesy, consented, and after glancing over its pages, the lady said "Now, look here, you can't fool me that way. 'Cordin' to this book, there ain't a woman in the town over forty years old. You've got a dozen women down here as being from thirty-five to forty years of age, and I'll take my solemn Bible oath that I knew every one of 'em ten years ago, and they were all the same age then as they be now. Young man, there must be some mistake. Probably you ain't good at figgers. You can put me down at forty-five. I ain't ashamed to tell my age." The captain put her down at forty-five, but he says he'll bet all his money that she is over sixty.

The Argot of the Wave.

Young ladies at Saratoga are interested in nothing but the regatta. One of them said to her papa the other day at lunch: "Oh, you ought to have gone out to the lake this morning! Such a splendid sight. They were all rowing round in the sixes and just as we came out on the point the Harvard crew were going by with an awful spurt and something on one of the sliding scales went smash against the washing-board and broke the lower pintal of the outrigger and the larboard streak got all mixed up with the thole pin,—oh you ought to have seen it!"

Cool.

A Detroit landlord warned a disagreeable tenant out of one of his houses recently, and the tenant replied that he would be out by a certain day. Two or three days after the time had expired, the landlord called, and finding that no move had been made toward vacating, he exclaimed: "Here! I thought you agreed to be out of here last Tuesday!" "I did," calmly replied the man, "but everywhere I went they wanted a month's rent in advance, and I guess I'll have to stay here all Summer if I don't find a lost pocket-book or strike some one who wants to lend money!"

The Disputants.

Two persons were once disputing so loudly on the subject of religion that they awoke a big dog which had been sleeping on the hearth before them, and he forthwith barked most furiously. An old divine present, who had been quietly sipping his tea while the disputants were talking, gave the dog a kick, and exclaimed, "Hold your tongue, you silly brute! you know no more about it than they do."

Grand Display of Fireworks.

TO ALL GREETING.

The City having failed to arrange for the usual grand display of Fireworks in commemoration of the Day of Independence, the undersigned, for thirteen years the only manufacturers of Fireworks in the city, finding that we have on hand an unusually large stock, and many pieces only suitable for large cities, have entered into an arrangement with R. B. WOODWARD, by which we will, at 8:30, give a most brilliant display of FIREWORKS on the evening of July 5th, at WOODWARD'S GARDENS, and trust our long standing connection with the business will be an assurance that the display will be elaborate and complete in all points.

STAR SHIRT DEPOT,

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silver-ware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

Amusements, Etc.

GRAND ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY.—First the herald (Mr. Fred Zimmerman), to prepare the way and sound the praises of those to come, then the general in advance (Mr. C. D. Hess), to reconnoitre the field of action, and now to-day the main body of the army, officers and baggage. That is, the members of the English Opera arrive this evening from Salt Lake, where they have been playing to business that left the Saints and Gentiles many thousand dollars like their spirits—the lighter. They open here at Maguire New Theatre on Monday evening in "Mignon," Ambroise Thomas' masterpiece. The story is of one Mignon who being stolen when a child from her parents by gypsies, is subjected by them to much cruelty. Mignon's mother dies of grief and her father Lothario almost deprived of reason wanders about the country as a minstrel in search of his child. From the gypsies Mignon is bought by Wilhelm, a student, for whom Mignon conceives a wild affection. Wilhelm is, however, just as wildly attached to Filina an actress. Filina takes part in a performance given in a castle at which Wilhelm is a guest and Mignon maddened by his attentions to her rival, would throw herself into the lake, when she is arrested by a minstrel, who is, unknown to both, her father. Mignon confides her grief to him and the minstrel in his half crazed state fires the castle to which, however, Mignon had returned. It is Wilhelm who succors her from the burning. Lothario takes both to his home and finds that Mignon is the lost daughter, while Wilhelm discovers her love for him. "Mignon" will be played Monday and Tuesday and will be the vehicle for the debuts of Miss Beaumont, Mr. Castle, Mr. Peakes, Miss Annandale and Mme Rosewald. On Wednesday "Il Trovatore" will be the medium for the first appearances of Mme. C. R. Bernard, Mrs. Zelda Seguin, Mr. Joseph Maas, Mr. William Carleton and Mr. George A. Conly. Altogether the season promises to be both a brilliant and successful one.

OPERA HOUSE.—To-night sees the fourth and last week of "Ultimo." Its success has been something extraordinary, the houses during these four weeks having been good ones, crowded ones, almost without a break. Much, very much of this success is due to the acting of Mr. W. H. Crane who, as an eccentric comedian, has now a reputation in San Francisco which is of the brightest. Next to Mr. Crane should come Mr. M. A. Kennedy as De Hass, the inane exquisite, and after him the rest of the characters pretty much as they are found on the bill. To-morrow, the company leave us for a time, the management having come to the wise conclusion that the triple attractions of "The Shaughraun," Daly's and the English Opera, will be sufficient to try the patience, pockets and patronage of a town of this size. The company proceed first to Virginia city where they open on Monday in "Ultimo," playing there possibly four weeks, and certainly two. Carson City and Sacramento, will also be visited. The repertoire consist of "Ultimo," "Extremes," "Checkmate," "Jenny Lind" and "The Two Orphans." They will not return here until the departure of the English Opera Troupe, when Hooley's Comedy Company will open their second season at Maguire's New Theatre.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Taken as a whole the performance of "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" is one of which star and stock company may well be proud. Mr. Montague has established his reputation here, even in this brief time, as a cultivated exponent of the quiet and natural school of acting, which many, otherwise excellent, gentlemen of the stage think weak and unimpressive. Seldom has so unhealthy a mistake been so pleasantly rectified as through Mr. Montague's personation of Manuel during the past week. As to the general performance—that is, the performance of the stock company—it has been the universally conceded opinion that every part was played in such a manner as to strengthen the opinion that for care and intelligence the company has few rivals in America.

On Monday evening Mr. Dion Boucicault's latest success, "The Shaughraun," will be produced here with a cast embracing the strength of the company, nine or ten sets of entirely new scenery, and with unusual care as to the general setting. From the advertisements which have been published in extenso, an idea may be formed of the strength of the cast, and our word must be taken for it that the piece will be presented with unusual scenic effect. There are three characters, however, which claim attention, those of the Shaughraun played by Mr. Boucicault, Captain Molineux played, as originally, by Mr Montague, and Bridget Madigan by Mrs. John Sefton, who makes her first appearance at this theatre on Monday next.

FRANK REA'S BENEFIT—Takes place at Maguire's New Theatre to-morrow (Sunday) evening and the only pity is that it will not be held in a theatre sufficiently large to accommodate all his friends who will wish to come. The first part is an olio of particularly good and varied quality and the main piece of the evening is "Black Eyed Susan" with T. W. Keene as William and Miss Sallie Hinckley as Susan. John McCullough, H. J. Montague, T. W. Keene, W. A. Mestayer and Walter Leman, have volunteered recitations, and a host of talent will appear.

THE ALLEGHANIANS—Had a much better house last night. They give two performances today, matinee and evening, which should be well attended.

OPERA HOUSE—FOURTH OF JULY.—Another venture for supplying amusement to the thousand and one visitors to this city on Monday. a full Variety Company have leased the Opera House for that day, and will give two full performances at this place; in the afternoon as soon as the procession has passed, and in the evening at eight For further particulars, see programme.

PLATT'S HALL—THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.—A grand Fourth of July matinee will be given at Platt's Hall on Monday afternoon, by the well-known San Francisco minstrels. The programme is calculated to suit all, fun being the prevailing element. The show will commence as soon as the procession has passed, the doors being open at half-past one. For further particulars see programme.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Besides the usual excellent olio, there are four capital acts for to-night and to-morrow, with the characters by the chief members of the company.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—Charley Harris and Lotta Gray have made a great hit in their specialties, Ned Barry's songs are all well received, and the programme throughout is capital.

PALACE VARIETY THEATRE.—Sam Baylis, Alli Barbee, Geo. C. Thompson, Henry Stewart, Harry Devoy, Harry Howard and Matt Kelly, with other talent manage to give an entertainment which nobody could find fault with.

WILSON'S PALACE AMPHITHEATRE—Has also an attraction f[illegible] the Fourth of July. Capt. McDonald's train[illegible] Indians, assisted by the Industrial School band, and the Pioneer Minstrels will give three entertainments here, on Sunday and Monday evenings and Monday afternoon, immediately after the procession.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

DALY'S FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE COMPANY.—This celebrated organization will open at Platt's Hall on Monday the 12th. The hall has been altered and decorated until one would hardly recognize the place. A very pretty stage has been made and the seats are to be gradually raised from the orchestra so as to give everyone a fair view. The first week will be taken up with "London Assurance," "Divorce," "Old Heads and Young Hearts" and "Frou Frou." The box sheet will be opened at Sherman & Hyde's on Wednesday.

INFANTILE OPERA BOUFFE TROUPE.—The last matinee of this remarkable opera troupe will be given at Platt's Hall this afternoon, "Robinson Crusoe" being the bill. In the evening Senorita Carmen Unda y Moron, the little prima donna of eight years, will take her benefit, when the operetta in two acts entitled "Marina," will be presented. This opera, which is entirely new to San Francisco, is the joint work of Dons Francisco Camprodon and Emelio Arrieta, and is as the name would lead one to infer, a sea story set to music and verse. On Sunday evening, the last performance will be given when Senorita Soledad Unda y Moron, aged fifteen years, will take her benefit, "La Grande Duchesse" being up for that night. This young lady is possessed of a particularly good natural voice and if it is properly trained we shall expect to hear more of the Mexican prima donna.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—FIRE WORKS.—Two beautiful Albino Children, Sig. Laviti the Italian Fire King, in his astonishing Repas Infernale, Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze, the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert on Saturday and Sunday, and on Monday when there will also be a most extensive and brilliant display of Fire Works at 8:30, and performance, concert and skating till 12 M.

CITY GARDENS.—Will open on Sunday under new management. Instrumental concert, fireworks and other attractions on Monday.

REISEN KELLER.—This mammoth symposium, corner of Third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House, gives a grand instrumental concert every evening. The spacious Riesen Keller combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

NOTES.

Daly's Company have done well in Chicago, where "The Big Bonanza" drew $1,000 at McVicker's on the opening night. Miss Fanny Davenport and Mr. James Lewis took the place by storm.

Mr. Connolly, who was for some time connected with the San Francisco Press, has written a version of "Around the World in Eighty Days," which has been produced at Sinn's Brooklyn Park Theatre with fair success.

After Miss Rose Eytinge has played "Rose Michel" at the Union Square Theatre, she will most probably come on here and produce it at the California Theatre. At all events it is said that Mr. John McCullough has given Mr. Sheridan Shook his assurance that it shall not be produced here until Miss Eytinge is ready to come on and play it.

Miss Anna Dickinson who it seems is to make her debut here shortly, is but thirty two years old. She has been speaking in public ever since 1859 so that she at all events will not suffer from stage nervousness.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

[In place of our usual and welcome New York letter, the following epistle came to hand yesterday, undated and unplaced, but bearing the post mark of Roxbury:—

MY DEAR FIGARO: Sunshine instead of the footlights, singing birds in place of orchestral tunings-up, real trees instead of painted wood flats, green fields for the green cloth, mosquitoes for the flies, the tender cow bell for that of the prompter, the only acts that one has to be ready for those of breakfast and dinner, more and brighter stars making their appearance every night than ever have been since New York theatres were built, a neat garden plot in front C. taking the place of a troublesome scene plot, delightful properties R. and L. and the dearest little woman that ever lived just coming on through a practicable gate R. 2. E—And shall I then descend to things theatrical, to unrealties, to shams, to dramatic events and tell you what I know is going on in New York—which is nothing at all!? God forbid! Languish then for a time and see how you can get along without (Ha! Ha!)

THE PROMPTER.

Here is scurvy treatment. But let the poor devil enjoy himself for a while. This week at all events FIGARO's readers must be content with clips.]

One night recently, Rose Massey appeared unexpectedly in "The Two Orphans," at the Union Square Theatre, owing to Miss Blanchard's illness. She acted the part of Henriette with admirable art, and looked as lovely as possible. No wonder that the beloved Montague was so careful of his "Rosie-Posie," and no wonder they made up. If Miss Massey had been brought forward earlier in the season, the Union Square, crowded as it was, could not have contained the people who had read those letters. But, quite apart from the glamour of such a sensational episode, Miss Massey is a charming actress, and New York yearns for her.

Mme. Titiens brings her daughter with her. This is, we presume, the young lady whom Signor Vizzani (of the Lucca troupe) was to have married. The fickle tenor changed his mind, and ran off to Paris at the last moment, heedless of the wrath of the goddess Titiens, the anger of Mapleson, the tears of la fiancee, and the accomplished fact of the trousseau. But Miss Titiens lost very little, according to the American opinion.

Barry Sullivan, who is coming over this fall, was at least fifty years old when he visited this country fifteen years ago. Barry, it is said, was very unpopular with his fellows, and generally contrived to insult them so that they refused to act with him throughout the entire week. He was a dreadful guy then in his white or yellow suits, red necktie, and green-banded hats, but he is said to have improved with age. He was a young thing then, you know.

Mr. Fred Marsden, has written for Mr. Frederic Robinson a new and original four-act drama entitled "At Bay; or, Called to Account." This play has been copyrighted, and will constitute a feature of Mr. Robinson's coming stellar repertoire.

Miss Annie Louise Cary sails for Europe, on July 24th.

Mrs. Catherine Sinclair, formerly Mrs. Edwin Forrest, and divorced from the deceased actor about twenty years ago, has settled with his executors on the basis of $95,000; $75,000 being in mortgage and $20,000 in cash. Releases of dower were executed by her and recorded in each State, where the testator held land.

Clara Morris played in "Article 47," 21st, 22d and 23d of June, at Conway's Theatre, Brooklyn. She sailed on the 28th.

We are not exactly sure whether Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre has closed or not. It was open on Saturday, June 27th, when the "Big Bonanza" was produced for the 136th time. It was then the only regular theatre open in New York. It is very possible that it is still playing as the Company does not commence traveling until August we believe.

The regular season at the Union Square Theatre closed on Friday evening with the 180th performance of the "Two Orphans;" in the presence of an enormous audience, which completely filled the auditorium. The ladies were presented with satin programmes and bouquets, the house was elaborately decorated with flowers, and, altogether, it was a gala occasion. The theatre will reopen about the middle of August with John T. Raymond in "Colonel Sellers."

The English version of "Girofle-Girofla" is still drawing at Robinson Hall, and promises to have a protracted run. The coalition of the company with some of the prettiest members of the Soldene troupe has been most advantageous.

But Gilmore's Concert Gardens are the great attraction now and their success promises to be more than ephemeral. New York needed some such bright and attractive place of resort as this.

ELSEWHERE.

Rose Wood and Lewis Morrison opened at Montreal, Canada, June 21, producing their two new plays "A Bit o' Ash" and "The Lotos Flower."

The left wing of Mr. Daly's company will open at the Arch, Philadelphia, September 6 in the "Big Bonanza."

Blind Tom played in Chicago, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th.

J. L. Toole and troupe opened at St. John's, N. B., 21st, for a short period.

All the theatres are closed in Cincinnati.

Susan Denin and troupe, Kokomo, Indiana, 21st, 22d; Indianapolis, 23d, 24th; thence Danville, Ill., Champaign, Kankakee, and Elgin.

Miss Clara Louise Kellogg's Opera Troupe made $36,076,73 for fourteen performances at Chicago. This was an average of $2 577 for each representation. Thomas' Concert Company only made $11,164 during its season, and Soldene $2,286,50, or $163 for each performance. Mesdames De Murska, Phillips, and Urso, made decided failures of their endeavors to reap a golden harvest in the great central metropolis.

A trial of skill between two contortionists, Wm. Gaylord and a Japanese named Tomey, recently occured in St. Louis. The wager was $1,000, and the decision was to be based upon "grace, skill and difficult work." Tomey stood on a high and unstable pile of tubs, slowly bent backwards until the top of his head touched the level of his feet, and rose to an erect position without losing his balance. Gaylord bent his body back in a hoop until his feet were caught under his chin, and in that posture trotted around on his hands. The stake was awarded to Gaylord, though his feat is said to have been the easier of the two.

Georgia is described as being "in raptures" over a new candidate for public honors—Madame Murrell, young, beautiful and very intelligent, and said to possess a voice of marvellous compass and sweetness.

The Warm Spring Indians, under Donald McKay, visited Staten Island on the 14th, and encamped on the beach at Tompkinsville. The news that the capturers of Captain Jack and his Modoc friends were in the village spread rapidly, and a crowd soon gathered on the heights overlooking the shore. After gazing for an hour the boys commenced to harass the Indians by throwing stones, sod, and sand upon them. At first the Warm Springers, who numbered less than ten, merely shook their fists as a warning, but finding their assailants incorrigible a brave dressed in a high white hat and long overcoat, dashed frantically up the bank, grabbed a small loafer by the ear, held him against a fence for five minutes, meanwhile uttering his guttural gibberish, and searching his person as if for a scalping knife. For a few moments there was peace, when a youngster, more forward than the rest, crept slyly up behind an Indian chief, standing majestically in his blanket, and plucking a feather from his head ran away. The infuriated Indian at once followed the boy, and seizing a stone knocked him flat with the missile, and recovered the feather. Then a squaw was hit with a sod, and while one of the braves dispersed the crowd, the other caught a boy and was about to bite his nose off, when a policeman saved him. All the afternoon and evening the loafers hovered about the red men, calling them names. At last an old Indian was struck in the face with a stone from some unknown hand, and Dry Creek Charley, Warnie, and Cahargen rushed upon the crowd, and the former struck a young man named Charles Jones, of Tompkinsville, on the back of the neck with a brickbat, knocking him senseless to the ground. Jones fell upon a heap of glass, and sustained cuts about the hands. The Indians were arrested, and subsequently discharged.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa[l] to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles, has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments.

SANTA MONICA

Offers a most inviting opportunity.

SATURDAY..................JULY 3

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold, for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for those are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T & D Lundy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

GRAND ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY.—This company will open at Maguire's New Theatre this evening in "Mignon," Ambroise Thomas' masterpiece. The story is of one Mignon who being stolen when a child from her parents by gypsies, is subjected by them to much cruelty. Mignon's mother dies of grief and her father Lothario almost deprived of reason wanders about the country as a minstrel in search of his child. From the gypsies Mignon is bought by Wilhelm, a student, for whom Mignon conceives a wild affection Wilhelm is, however, just as wildly attached to Filina an actress Filina takes part in a performance given in a castle at which Wilhelm is a guest and Mignon maddened by his attentions to her rival, would throw herself into the lake, when she is arrested by a minstrel, who is, unknown to both, her father Mignon confides her grief to him and the minstrel in his half crazed state fires the castle to which, however, Mignon had returned. It is Wilhelm who succors her from the burning. Lothario takes both to his home and finds that Mignon is the lost daughter, while Wilhelm discovers her love for him. "Mignon" will be played Monday and Tuesday and will be the vehicle for the debuts of Miss Beaumont, Mr. Castle, Mr. Peakes, Miss Annandale and Mme Rosewald. On Wednesday "Il Trovatore" will be the medium for the first appearances of Mme C. R. Bernard, Mrs Zelda Seguin Mr. Joseph Maas, Mr. William Carleton and Mr. George A. Conly Altogether the season promises to be both a brilliant and successful one. A very peculiar feature will be added to the performance this evening The season will be inaugurated by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," just after the raising of the curtain by all the members of the company and choruses, with grand orchestral accompaniment. That the grand old National Anthem will be sung in a grand style, can readily be appreciated. It will be something worth hearing, and will serve as a record hereafter.

OPERA HOUSE.—Saturday saw the fourth and last week of "Ultimo." Its success has been something extraordinary, the houses during these four weeks having been good ones, crowded ones, almost without a break. Much, very much of this success is due to the acting of Mr. W. H. Crane who, as an eccentric comedian, has now a reputation in San Francisco which is of the brightest. Next to Mr Crane should come Mr. M. A. Kennedy as De Haas, the inane exquisite, and after him the rest of the characters pretty much as they are found on the bill. Yesterday the company left us for a time, the management having come to the wise conclusion that the triple attractions of "The Shaughraun," Daly's and the English Opera, will be sufficient to try the patience, pockets and patronage of a town of this size. The company proceed first to Virginia city where they open on Monday in "Ultimo," playing there possibly four weeks, and certainly two. Carson City and Sacramento, will also be visited. The repertoire consist of "Ultimo," "Extremes," "Checkmate," "Jenny Lind" and "The Two Orphans" They will not return here until the departure of the English Opera Troupe, when Hooley's Comedy Company will open their second season at Maguire's New Theatre.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Taken as a whole the performance of "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" is one of which star and stock company may well be proud. Mr. Montague has established his reputation here, even in this brief time, as a cultivated exponent of the quiet and natural school of acting, which many, otherwise excellent, gentlemen of the stage think weak and unimpressive. Seldom has so unhealthy a mistake been so pleasantly rectified as through Mr. Montague's personation of Manuel during the past week. As to the general performance - that is, the performance of the stock company it has been the universally conceded opinion that every part was played in such a manner as to strengthen the opinion that for care and intelligence the company has few rivals in America.

This evening Mr. Dion Boucicault's latest success, "The Shaughraun," will be produced here with a cast embracing the strength of the company, nine or ten sets of entirely new scenery, and with unusual care as to the general setting. From the advertisements which have been published in extenso, an idea may be formed of the strength of the cast, and our word must be taken for it that the piece will be presented with unusual scenic effect. There are three characters, however, which claim attention, those of the Shaughraun played by Mr. Boucicault, Captain Molineux played, as originally, by Mr. Montague, and Bridget Madigan by Mrs. John Sefton, who makes her first appearance at this theatre on Monday next.

INFANTILE OPERA BOUFFE TROUPE.—The last matinee of this remarkable opera troupe was given at Platt's Hall Saturday afternoon, "Robinson Crusoe" being the bill. In the evening Senorita Carmen Unda y Moron ,the little prima donna of eight years, took her benefit, when the operetta in two acts entitled "Marina," was presented. This opera, which is entirely new to San Francisco, is the joint work of Dons Francisco Camprodon and Emelio Arrieta, and is as the name would lead one to infer, a sea story set to music and verse. On Sunday evening, the last performance was given when Senorita Soledad Unda y Moron, aged fifteen years, took her benefit, "La Grande Duchesse" being up for that night. This young lady is possessed of a particularly good natural voice and if it is properly trained we shall expect to hear more of the Mexican prima donna.

OPERA HOUSE—FOURTH OF JULY.—Another venture for supplying amusement to the thousand and one visitors to this city this evening, a full Variety Company have leased the Opera House for that day, and will give two full performances at this place; in the afternoon as soon as the procession has passed, and in the evening at eight For further particulars, see programme.

PLATT'S HALL—THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.—A grand Fourth of July matinee will be given at Platt's Hall this Monday afternoon, by the well-known San Francisco minstrels. The programme is calculated to suit all, fun being the prevailing element. The show will commence as soon as the procession has passed, the doors being open at half-past one. For further particulars see programme.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Besides the usual excellent olio, there are four capital acts for to-night and to-morrow, with the characters by the chief members of the company.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—Charley Harris and Lotta Gray have made a great hit in their specialties Ned Barry's songs are all well received, and the programme throughout is capital.

PALACE VARIETY THEATRE.—Sam Baylis, Alli Barbee, Geo. C. Thompson, Henry Stewart, Harry Devoy, Harry Howard and Matt Kelly, with other talent manage to give an entertainment which nobody could find fault with.

WILSON'S PALACE AMPHITHEATRE—Has also an attraction for the Fourth of July. Capt. McDonald's trained Indians, assisted by the Industrial School band, and the Pioneer Minstrels will give two entertainments here this evening and this afternoon, immediately after the procession.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

REISEN KELLER.—This mammoth symposium, corner of Third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House, gives a grand instrumental concert every evening. The spacious Riesen Keller combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

DALY'S FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE COMPANY.—This celebrated organization will open at Platt's Hall on Monday the 12th. The hall has been altered and decorated until one would hardly recognize the place. A very pretty stage has been made and the seats are to be gradually raised from the orchestra so as to give everyone a fair view The first week will be taken up with "London Assurance," "Divorce," "Old Heads and Young Hearts" and "Frou Frou" The box sheet will be opened at Sherman & Hyde's on Wednesday.

NOTES.

Daly's Company have done well in Chicago, where "The Big Bonanza" drew $1,000 at McVicker's on the opening night. Miss Fanny Davenport and Mr. James Lewis took the place by storm.

Mr Connolly, who was for some time connected with the San Francisco Press, has written a version of "Around the World in Eighty Days," which has been produced at Sinn's Brooklyn Park Theatre with fair success

After Miss Rose Eytinge has played "Rose Michel" at the Union Square Theatre, she will most probably come on here and produce it at the California Theatre. At all events it is said that Mr John McCullough has given Mr. Sheridan Shook his assurance that it shall not be produced here until Miss Eytinge is ready to come on and play it

Miss Anna Dickinson who it seems is to make her debut here shortly, is but thirty two years old. She has been speaking in public ever since 1859 so that she at all events will not suffer from stage nervousness.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

[In place of our usual and welcome New York letter, the following epistle came to hand yesterday, undated and unplaced, but bearing the post mark of Roxbury :—

MY DEAR FIGARO: Sunshine instead of the footlights, singing birds in place of orchestral tunings-up, real trees instead of painted wood flats, green fields for the green cloth, mosquitoes for the flies, the tender cow bell for that of the prompter, the only acts that one has to be ready for those of breakfast and dinner, more and brighter stars making their appearance every night than ever have been since New York theatres were built, a neat garden plot in front C. taking the place of a troublesome scene plot, delightful properties R. and L. and the dearest little woman that ever lived just coming on through a practicable gate R. 2. E—And shall I then descend to things theatrical, to unrealties, to shams, to dramatic events and tell you what I know is going on in New York—which is nothing at all ! ! God forbid ! Languish then for a time and see how you can get along without (Ha ! Ha !)

THE PROMPTER.

Here is scurvy treatment. But let the poor devil enjoy himself for a while. This week at all events FIGARO's readers must be content with clips.]

One night recently, Rose Massey appeared unexpectedly in "The Two Orphans," at the Union Square Theatre, owing to Miss Blanchard's illness. She acted the part of Henriette with admirable art, and looked as lovely as possible. No wonder that the beloved Montague was so careful of his "Rosie-Posie," and no wonder they made up. If Miss Massey had been brought forward earlier in the season, the Union Square, crowded as it was, could not have contained the people who had read those letters. But, quite apart from the glamour of such a sensational episode, Miss Massey is a charming actress, and New York yearns for her.

Mme. Titiens brings her daughter with her. This is, we presume, the young lady whom Signor Vizzani (of the Lucca troupe) was to have married. The fickle tenor changed his mind, and ran off to Paris at the last moment, heedless of the wrath of the goddess Titiens, the anger of Mapleson, the tears of la fiancée, and the accomplished fact of the trousseau. But Miss Titiens lost very little, according to the American opinion.

Barry Sullivan, who is coming over this fall, was at least fifty years old when he visited this country fifteen years ago. Barry, it is said, was very unpopular with his fellows, and generally contrived to insult them so that they refused to act with him throughout the entire week. He was a dreadful guy then in his white or yellow suits, red necktie, and green-banded hats, but he is said to have improved with age. He was a young thing then, you know.

Mr. Fred Marsden, has written for Mr. Frederic Robinson a new and original four-act drama entitled "At Bay; or, Called to Account." This play has been copyrighted, and will constitute a feature of Mr. Robinson's coming stellar repertoire.

Miss Annie Louise Cary sails for Europe, on July 24th.

Mrs. Catherine Sinclair, formerly Mrs. Edwin Forrest, and divorced from the deceased actor about twenty years ago, has settled with his executors on the basis of $95,000; $75,000 being in mortgage and $20,000 in cash. Releases of dower were executed by her and recorded in each State, where the testator held land.

Clara Morris played in "Article 47," 21st, 22d and 23d of June, at Conway's Theatre, Brooklyn. She sailed on the 28th.

We are not exactly sure whether Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre has closed or not. It was open on Saturday, June 27th, when the "Big Bonanza" was produced for the 136th time. It was then the only regular theatre open in New York. It is very possible that it is still playing as the Company does not commence traveling until August we believe.

The regular season at the Union Square Theatre closed on Friday evening with the 180th performance of the "Two Orphans;" in the presence of an enormous audience, which completely filled the auditorium. The ladies were presented with satin programmes and bouquets, the house was elaborately decorated with flowers, and, altogether, it was a gala occasion. The theatre will reopen about the middle of August with John T. Raymond in "Colonel Sellers."

The English version of "Girofle-Girofla" is still drawing at Robinson Hall, and promises to have a protracted run. The coalition of the company with some of the prettiest members of the Soldene troupe has been most advantageous.

But Gilmore's Concert Gardens are the great attraction now and their success promises to be more than ephemeral. New York needed some such bright and attractive place of resort as this.

ELSEWHERE.

Rose Wood and Lewis Morrison opened at Montreal, Canada, June 21, producing their two new plays "A Bit o' Ash" and "The Lotos Flower."

The left wing of Mr. Daly's company will open at the Arch, Philadelphia, September 6 in the "Big Bonanza."

Blind Tom played in Chicago, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th.

J. L. Toole and troupe opened at St. John's, N. B., 21st, for a short period.

All the theatres are closed in Cincinnati.

Susan Denin and troupe, Kokomo, Indiana, 21st, 22d; Indianapolis, 23d, 24th; thence Danville, Ill., Champaign, Kanakee, and Elgin.

Miss Clara Louise Kellogg's Opera Troupe made $36,076,73 for fourteen performances at Chicago. This was an average of $2 577 for each representation. Thomas' Concert Company only made $11,164 during its season, and Soldene $2,286,50, or $163 for each performance. Mesdames De Murska, Phillips, and Urso, made decided failures of their endeavors to reap a golden harvest in the great central metropolis

A trial of skill between two contortionists, Wm. Gaylord and a Japanese named Tomey, recently occured in St. Louis. The wager was $1,000, and the decision was to be based upon "grace, skill and difficult work." Tomey stood on a high and unstable pile of tubs, slowly bent backwards until the top of his head touched the level of his feet, and rose to an erect position without losing his balance. Gaylord bent his body back in a hoop until his feet were caught under his chin, and in that posture trotted around on his hands. The stake was awarded to Gaylord, though his feat is said to have been the easier of the two.

Georgia is described as being "in raptures" over a new candidate for public honors—Madame Murrell, young, beautiful and very intelligent, and said to possess a voice of marvellous compass and sweetness.

The Warm Spring Indians, under Donald McKay, visited Staten Island on the 14th, and encamped on the beach at Tompkinsville. The news that the capturers of Captain Jack and his Modoc friends were in the village spread rapidly, and a crowd soon gathered on the heights overlooking the shore. After gazing for an hour the boys commenced to harass the Indians by throwing stones, sod, and sand upon them. At first the Warm Springers, who numbered less than ten, merely shook their fists as a warning, but finding their assailants incorrigible a brave dressed in a high white hat and long overcoat, dashed frantically up the bank, grabbed a small loafer by the ear, held him against a fence for five minutes, meanwhile uttering his guttural gibberish, and searching his person as if for a scalping knife. For a few moments there was peace, when a youngster, more forward than the rest, crept slyly up behind an Indian chief, standing majestically in his blanket, and plucking a feather from his head ran away. The infuriated Indian at once followed the boy, and seizing a stone knoced him flat with the missile, and recovered the feather. Then a squaw was hit with a sod, and while one of the braves dispersed the crowd, the other caught a boy and was about to bite his nose off, when a policeman saved him. All the afternoon and evening the loafers hovered about the red men, calling them names. At last an old Indian was struck in the face with a stone from some unknown hand, and Dry Creek Charley, Warnie, and Cahargen rushed upon the crowd, and the former struck a young man named Charles Jones, of Tompkinsville, on the back of the neck with a brickbat, knocking him senseless to the ground. Jones fell upon a heap of glass, and sustained cuts about the hands. The Indians were arrested, and subsequently discharged.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves! Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar, the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods? This country may come to this yet. jy1-1m

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles, has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

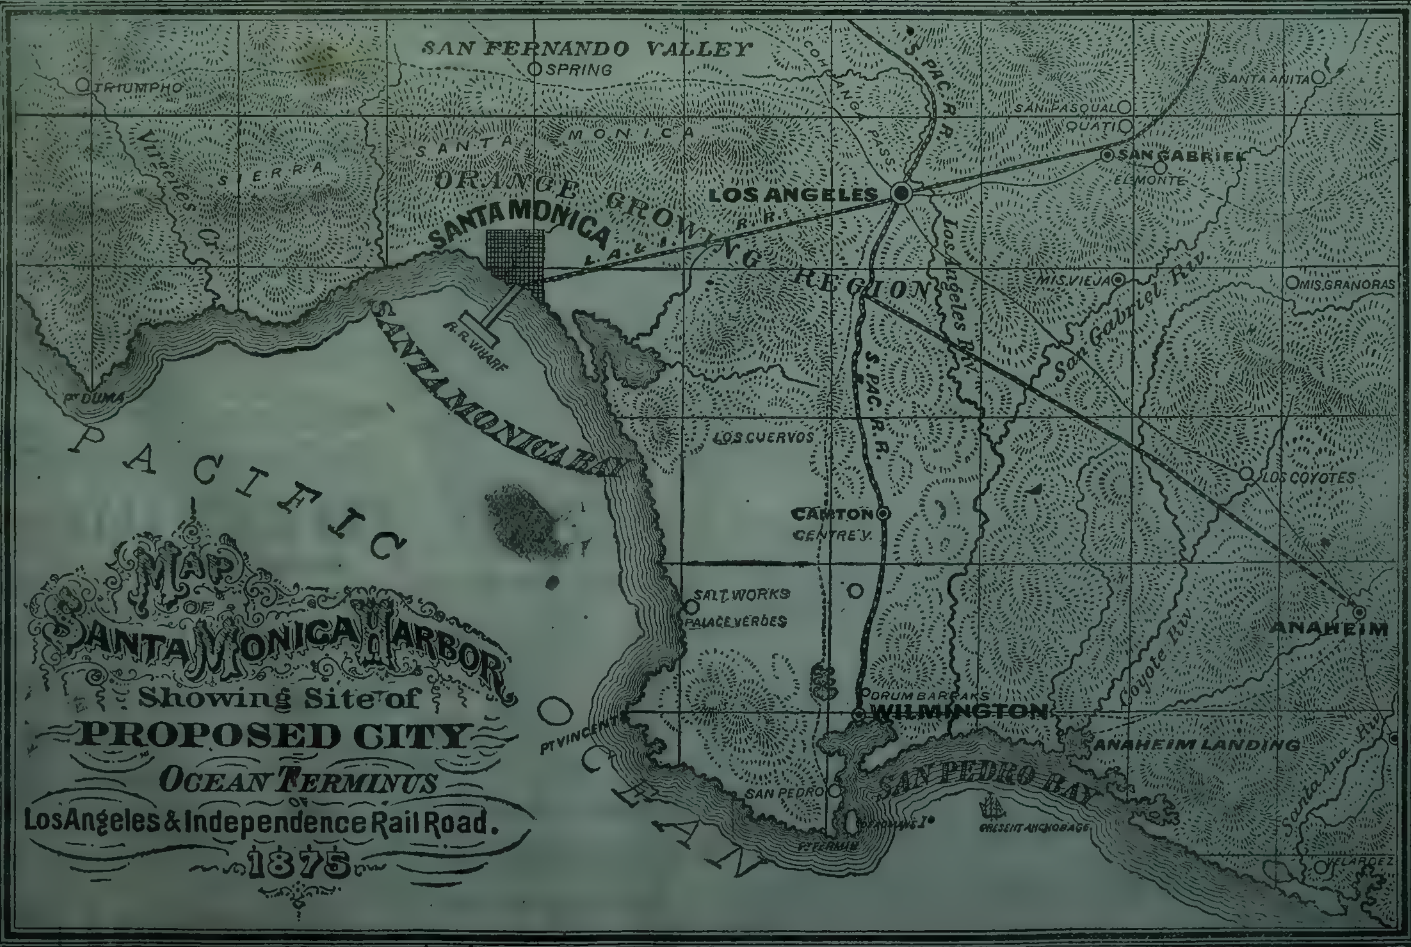
That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments,

SANTA MONICA

offers a most inviting opportunity.



ABOUT ONE-THIRD THE SITE OF SANTA MONICA,

INCLUDING BUSINESS LOTS, RESIDENCE LOTS, AND VILLA FARMS,

WILL BE OFFERED AT PUBLIC AUCTION,........................ON THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1875

CLARA MORRIS AS LADY MACBETH.

"Miss Clara Morris," says the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, in reviewing the past season at Booth's, "who in many ways resembles the great Mlle. Rachel, made an attempt to emancipate herself from the objectionable school of French plays with which her name is associated. The attempt and not the deed confounded her. She chose legitimate characters utterly beyond her sphere. Her Lady Macbeth was nothing like as bad as some folks tried to make it out to have been. It had some few excellent qualities. The great temptation scene was probably never better given by any actress than it was by Miss Morris, and the sleep-walk, which most persons imagined was to have been the crowning point of the performance, was certainly never more wretchedly acted. It was simply an hysterical exhibition as like the operatic ravings of De Murska in Lucia and "Din r h.' as anything could possibly have been. In the banquet scene, in her anxiety to make unto herself a conspicuous and original piece of business, Miss Morris simply made a series of egregious blunders. She was, in the first place, dressed in a manner unbecoming any educated woman who undertakes the part of Lady Macbeth. A white brocaded silk, an interminably long, scarlet velvet train edged with ermine, a low-necked gown and white kid gloves with double buttons, are about as much in keeping with the costume of a Scottish queen of the eleventh century as was -well let us say—that green and red Gothic chamber scene in which a part of the play was acted, or Mrs. Siddons' famous black velvet and diamonds, the original of which deck her effigy in wax at Tussad's exhibition, and in which that grand lady was wont to freeze the blood of her spectators as the Cawdor's wife and Scotland's dreaded queen. In the next place, Miss Morris, contrary to the logic of the sublime play in question, gave vent in the banquet scene as she left the stage to a prolonged and silly fit of whimpering, well enough suited to the consumptive Camille, but utterly beneath the dignity of Lady Macbeth. Why is it only when she is asleep that we catch a glimpse of the troubled and agonized conscience of that awful creation called Lady Macbeth? Simply because her feelings are so concentrated, so kept under control, that even her attendants cannot perceive an iota of the fearful mental tortures she is enduring. A smile wreathes her lips, and her words are honeyed, but her heart, her heart is breaking all the while with anguish and remorse. God, in his greatest mercy, could not have granted a greater boon to this poor wretch, that the power of weeping. Then, perhaps, her pent-up feelings would have found their vent, and she would never have walked in her sleep or died mad. No, Miss Morris, believe us, Lady Macbeth was never seen to weep or wring her hands by mortal eyes. Her palace never heard her sobs awaken its echoes, and the gossipers who surrounded her, never had the satisfaction of seeing her shed a tear, until when, at last, her iron will was dulled in sleep, her shattered form was forced automatically out of its bed, and obliged to wander abroad, and the miserable creature unwittingly told her awful secrets to her trembling attendants, but only when in a state of profound somnambulism. This is the great point of the character, and remains the same, whether Lady Macbeth be represented as a blonde or as an Ethiopian, as tall or short, thin or fat, in mind and nature tigerish or simply catishly feline. When this play was revived some years ago at Drury Lane, Miss Atkinson, a very stagey actress, played the part of the Lady, but did a sublimely artistic piece of acting in this self-same banquet scene. The stage represented a rude but grand hall of Norman architecture. The festal tables were spread with plentiful but coarse viands, such as the half savage barons of Scotland of that period were wont to relish. Torches illumined the feast, and a buge wood fire burned in the vast chimney. When the stage was emptied of its rude guests, the King and Queen stood alone for awhile in silence; then spoke, and Macbeth left the chamber. Not so the Lady. From off her head she took her glittering emblem of royalty, looked long upon it, and then went deliberately back to her throne and seated herself in a grand but somewhat cramped attitude, like that of an Egyptian statue. The lights grew less and less brilliant, the fire burnt low, and the curtain fell upon a tableau of unsurpassed pathos. The desolate and guilty Queen sat upon her lofty throne in her strange but majestical pose, the very incarnation of Shakespeare's dread but mystical creation, which is still a riddle to mankind. And all around her was desolate, ruined and forlorn. An abandoned banquet and a hall full of gloomy and awful shadows, presided over by a woman, guilty beyond measure, and whose torments of conscience are already beginning to drive her to distraction.

Lost Gow by Shiminy!

As a rule there isn't a better class of people in the world to deal with than the Germans; but occasionally you will find one whose ideas concerning certain buisness transactions are amusingly peculiar. For instance: A German subscriber to the Lowell Journal recently called to advertise a lost cow, and according to the long established custom of this well regulated print shop, we immediately wrote up the notice and figured up the cost of publication.

"Vat ish dat?' asked our friend, placing the butt end of his whip on our little sum of multiplication.

We informed him that it would cost him so much for advertising his lost cow three weeks.

"You make me pay for dat?"

"Certainly; we always take pay, for advertising."

"You takes pay, eh? Vell, dat is von tam shvindle. I shcribe mit dat Shournal papers dese tree years, und now you sharge me yoost for vot leetle advertise uv mine gow."

"But we ".

"You shtop my Shournal bapers."

"But you -"

"You shtop mine Shournal bapers, und I got some more in Daytray, by shiminy, and you gome little end dat horn oud."

"But see here, my friend——"

"I go right away und dond got sheated mit you, py krashus. Tink you got some sleep mit a veasel, dond you? Sharge me yoost for advertise von gow! It vas better uv you doud got me med ven I gome here, und I scribe mit dat Shournal more as tree year, but you makes me med und you stop mine bapers before I got it next dime. Dat ish vat man I am kind uv, py shiminy!"

We tried to explain; we tried in vain; we lost him and a three-weeks advertisement of a "lost gow, by shiminy!"

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold; for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc.

Won the Bet.

At Pioche, Nevada, not long ago, a party of ladies expressed a desire to inspect the workings of the Laymond Mine, and were accordingly escorted into the lower depths by Mr. Andrews, the foreman. After satisfying their curiosity, the conversation turned upon the means of egress, and the fatigue and danger of climbing the ladders with which the shaft is furnished, whereupon one of the fair visitors said that she believed she could climb the ladder herself. After some badinage Mr. Andrews promised the lady that he would present her with a handsome silk dress if she climbed from one of the levels to another alone, a perpendicular height of 200 feet. The challenge was no sooner made than accepted, and the dauntless lady climbed the ladder for the specified 200 feet, a task that few men except miners would care to undertake. Mr. Andrews is now of the opinion that if instead of 200 the ladder had been 1000 feet in length, the lady would have climbed it, if there was to be found a silk dress on reaching the top.

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments.

CLARA MORRIS AS LADY MACBETH.

"Miss Clara Morris," says the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, in reviewing the past season at Booth's, "who in many ways resembles the great Mlle. Rachel, made an attempt to emancipate herself from the objectionable school of French plays with which her name is associated. The attempt and not the deed confounded her. She chose legitimate characters utterly beyond her sphere. Her Lady Macbeth was nothing like as bad as some folks tried to make it out to have been. It had some few excellent qualities. The great temptation scene was probably never better given by any actress than it was by Miss Morris, and the sleep-walk, which most persons imagined was to have been the crowning point of the performance, was certainly never more wretchedly acted. It was simply an hysterical exhibition as like the operatic ravings of De Murska in Lucia and "Dinorah.' as anything could possibly have been. In the banquet scene, in her anxiety to make unto herself a conspicuous and original piece of business, Miss Morris simply made a series of egregious blunders. She was, in the first place, dressed in a manner unbecoming any educated woman who undertakes the part of Lady Macbeth. A white brocaded silk, an interminably long, scarlet velvet train edged with ermine, a low-necked gown and white kid gloves with double buttons, are about as much in keeping with the costume of a Scottish queen of the eleventh century as was—well let us say—that green and red Gothic chamber scene in which a part of the play was acted, or Mrs. Siddons' famous black velvet and diamonds, the original of which deck her effigy in wax at Tussad's exhibition, and in which that grand lady was wont to freeze the blood of her spectators as the Cawdor's wife and Scotland's dreaded queen. In the next place, Miss Morris, contrary to the logic of the sublime play in question, gave vent in the banquet scene as she left the stage to a prolonged and silly fit of whimpering, well enough suited to the consumptive Camille, but utterly beneath the dignity of Lady Macbeth. Why is it only when she is asleep that we catch a glimpse of the troubled and agonized conscience of that awful creation called Lady Macbeth? Simply because her feelings are so concentrated, so kept under control, that even her attendants cannot perceive an iota of the fearful mental tortures she is enduring. A smile wreathes her lips, and her words are honeyed, but her heart, her heart is breaking all the while with anguish and remorse. God, in his greatest mercy, could not have granted a greater boon to this poor wretch, that the power of weeping. Then, perhaps, her pent-up feelings would have found their vent, and she would never have walked in her sleep or died mad. No, Miss Morris, believe us, Lady Macbeth was never seen to weep or wring her hands by mortal eyes. Her palace never heard her sobs awaken its echoes, and the gossipers who surrounded her, never had the satisfaction of seeing her shed a tear, until when, at last, her iron will was dulled in sleep, her shattered form was forced automatically out of its bed, and obliged to wander abroad, and the miserable creature unwittingly told her awful secrets to her trembling attendants, but only when in a state of profound somnambulism. This is the great point of the character, and remains the same, whether Lady Macbeth be represented as a blonde or as an Ethiopian, as tall or short, thin or fat, in mind and nature tigerish or simply catishly feline. When this play was revived some years ago at Drury Lane, Miss Atkinson, a very stagey actress, played the part of the Lady, but did a sublimely artistic piece of acting in this self-same banquet scene. The stage represented a rude but grand hall of Norman architecture. The festal tables were spread with plentiful but coarse viands, such as the half savage barons of Scotland of that period were wont to relish. Torches illumined the feast, and a huge wood fire burned in the vast chimney. When the stage was emptied of its rude guests, the King and Queen stood alone for awhile in silence; then spoke, and Macbeth left the chamber. Not so the Lady. From off her head she took her glittering emblem of royalty, looked long upon it, and then went deliberately back to her throne and seated herself in a grand but somewhat cramped attitude, like that of an Egyptian statue. The lights grew less and less brilliant, the fire burnt low, and the curtain fell upon a tableau of unsurpassed pathos. The desolate and guilty Queen sat upon her lofty throne in her strange but majestical pose, the very incarnation of Shakespeare's dread but mystical creation, which is still a riddle to mankind. And all around her was desolate, ruined and forlorn. An abandoned banquet and a hall full of gloomy and awful shadows, presided over by a woman, guilty beyond measure, and whose torments of conscience are already beginning to drive her to distraction.

Lost Gow by Shiminy!

As a rule there isn't a better class of people in the world to deal with than the Germans; but occasionally you will find one whose ideas concerninig certain buisness transactions are amusingly peculiar. For instance: A German subscriber to the Lowell Journal recently called to advertise a lost cow, and according to the long established custom of this well regulated print shop, we immediately wrote up the notice and figured up the cost of publication.

"Vat ish dat?" asked our friend, placing the butt end of his whip on our little sum of multiplication.

We informed him that it would cost him so much for advertising his lost cow three weeks.

"Yoa make me pay for dar?"

"Certainly; we always take pay, for advertising."

"You takes pay. eh? Vell, dat is von tam shvindle. I shcribe mit dat Shournal papers dese tree years, und now you sharge me yoost for vot leetle advertise uv mine gow."

"But we—"

"You shtop my Shournal bapers."

"But you—"

"You shtop mine Shournal bapers, und I got some more in Daytray, by shiminy, and you gome little end dat horn oud."

"But see here, my friend——"

"I go right away und dond got sheated mit you, py krashus. Tink you got some sleep mit a veasel, dond you? Sharge me yoost for advertise von gow! It vas better uv you dond got me med ven I gome here, und I scribe mit dat Shournal more as tree year, but you makes me med und you stop mine bapers before I got it next dime. Dat ish vat man I am kind uv, py shiminy!"

We tried to explain; we tried in vain; we lost him and a three-weeks advertisement of a "lost gow, by shiminy!"

Won the Bet.

At Pioche, Nevada, not long ago, a party of ladies expressed a desire to inspect the workings of the Laymond Mine, and were accordingly escorted into the lower depths by Mr. Andrews, the foreman. After satisfying their curiosity, the conversation turned upon the means of egress, and the fatigue and danger of climbing the ladders with which the shaft is furnished, whereupon one of the fair visitors said that she believed she could climb the ladder herself. After some badinage Mr. Andrews promised the lady that he would present her with a handsome silk dress if she climbed from one of the levels to another alone, a perpendicular height of 200 feet. The challenge was no sooner made than accepted, and the dauntless lady climbed the ladder for the specified 200 feet, a task that few men except miners would care to undertake. Mr. Andrews is now of the opinion that if instead of 200 the ladder had been 1000 feet in length, the lady would have climbed it, if there was to be found a silk dress on reaching the top.

What's in a Name.

There was an actor married in Paris, the other day, whose name was Monsieur Jaurequisilesbessadiere. There's a mouthful for you. It reminds us of the story of a French princess, the Princesse de Leon, who married an Hungarian general with a frightfully long and unpronouncible name. When she went shopping she used to say to the shopkeeper, in giving her address, "I was nee (born) Princesse de Leon, but, as to my married name, I never could learn it. Ask my servant, and he will tell you what it is."

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold; for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc ,

A Choice.

It is said that when an Italian youth arrives at the age of sixteen he is told to stand up before his father and mother and say whether he would like to join the clergy or the brigands. The majority of them join the brigands. In like manner, in Massachuseets the boy is asked whether he will be a lecturer or a lawyer. The majority choose the lecture platform. To afflict their fellow mortals seems to be the taste of a majority of mankind.

California Theatre.

It will be of "The Shaughraun" as a play, and not of the actors or acting that we shall speak to-day "The Shaughrann" is probably entitled to the distinction of being the best drama of its kind on the stage to-day. The plot-thread is thin—following but the captures and escapes of a Fenian—but to it are woven such scenes and characters as in town amuse, absorb and excite the audience to an unusual degree. The play is redolent of absurdities, but the action is so rapid and the interest so deep that not until the curtain has fallen, has one the opportunity to attempt to analyse the cunningly interwoven causes of pleasure and amusement. It is not too much to say that a badly drawn character, or a dull moment has no place in "The Shaughraun." One of the surprises, one of the charms rather, of the piece, is the marked absence of the quasi-patriotic sentiment which is generally the stock in trade of an Irish drama. The sympathies may be with the escaping Fenian, but the English officer who pursues him is not a tyrannical Saxon, but a tender-hearted and chivalrous gentleman. In conclusion the whole play is the happiest blending of humor, pathos and vitality. The house as might be expected was jammed

Maguire's New Theatre.

Although the house was crowded and the success of the company's debut undoubted, we look forward, to-night as the test night. A Fourth of July performance is bound to be well attended, with Rusticus himself and all his family and cousins there in full force. As a rule Civis and his kind usually steer clear of the performances on the Glorious Day, his wife having a special abhorrence of bombs and very possible petticoat conflagrations. The house to-night, therefore, while we do not expect it to be smaller or less attentive, will, we are led to expect, be a trifle more—to put it gently—critical. We shall, therefore, reserve our extended notice of the performance until to-morrow, contenting ourselves to-day with the general statement that those who intend doing themselves the pleasure of attending "Mignon" at Maguire's New Theatre to-night, may count upon an evening's enjoyment of the pleasantest nature—that of hearing a good opera well sung.

Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre Company.

Daly's company will arrive on Saturday evening, and open on the succeeding Monday. It is the intention, we believe, of Mr. Morrissey, and a party of California gentlemen, to proceed to Sacramento there to meet and welcome the latest addition to our theatrical attractions. She sale of seats begins at Sherman & Hyde's, to-morrow.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Besides the usual excellent ollo, there are four capital acts for to-night and to-morrow, with the characters by the chief members of the company.

Palace Variety Theatre.

Sam Baylis, Alli Barbee, G. C. Thompson, Henry Stewart, Harry Devoy, Harry Howard and Matt Kelly, with other talent manage to give an entertainment which nobody could find fault with.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Charley Harris and Lotta Gray have made a great hit in their specialties. Ned Barry's songs are all well received, and the programme throughout is capital.

Reisen Keller.—This mammoth symposium, corner of Third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House, gives a grand instrumental concert every evening. The spacious Riesen Keller combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday, first time of Mlle. Victorine, in her great act on the Slack wire, Sig. Laviti the Fire King in his wonderful Repas Infernale, Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze act, also appear with the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert

Notes.

McDaniel's Theatre, Cheyenne, together with several houses, were burnt on the Fourth. The loss by the fire, which originated in the property-room of the theatre, is estimated at $30,000.

We are sad through sympathy. The present dramatic writer on the Chronicle has a woe. In speaking of "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" he says: "The female Iago of the play, Mlle Helouin, was intrusted to that exceedingly intelligent and sympathetic young actress, Miss Carrie Wyatt, who made the most of it and only grieved us by wearing a light green dress in the third act." Why did Miss Wyatt commit such an artistic sin? Being a governess she certes should have worn dark-hued vestments. For who, in the name of all nice distinctions, ever saw a dependent in a light green dress, and, above all, in the third act of a piece! A sense of sin in colors should be yours, Miss Wyatt. Oh reform, reform while you are yet young, and so spare a gentle heart the sorrow of having to see a blemish in light green, where he might have seen beauty in dark brown.

Ned Hamilton, pioneer minstrel performer, and closely connected with the theatrical history of the State, is sick and indigent. The knowledge of these facts, will, we know, be amply sufficient to further the good work which has already been begun by his brother and sister professionals, and enable them to make the benefit which they propose giving Hamilton one worthy the profession and object

We have received a communication from Mr. J. W. Allinson requesting us to state that so far from having met "the fate of the thread between the shears," he will assume the Management of the Oates Comic English Opera Troupe for 1875-76. He sails for Europe on the 10th, in search of novelties for the coming season which will commence at Providence, R. I., September 27th. The agent in advance has not yet been appointed. The Oates Company are at present playing an engagement at the Park Theatre, New York, where they opened yesterday, in th[illegible] musical burlesque of "The Field of the Cloth of [illegible]."

The Alleghanians left for Victoria this morning. It is Mr. Waldron's intention, we believe, to make a complete tour of British Columbia, Oregon and the regions circumjacent.

Mr. Frank Lawler an old time resident of California, has returned to San Francisco, in a business connection with the English Opera Troupe. This will be pleasant news to many.

Frank Rea's benefit, on Saturday night, was, we are very glad to say, an undoubted success. The $400 The whole affair went capitally, "Black-Eyed Susan" with Tom Keene as William and Miss Sallie Hinckley as Susan, running as smoothly as if there had been a dozen rehearsals instead of one—and that a fake.

MOSS.

Strange tapestry, by Nature spun
On viewless looms, aloof from sun,
  And spread through lonely nooks and grots
    Where shadows reign, and leafy rest—
  O moss, of all your dwelling-spots,
    In which one are you loveliest?

Is it when near grim roots that coil
Their snaky black through humid soil?
  Or when you wrap, in woodland glooms,
    The great prone pine-trunks, rotted red?
  Or when you dim, on sombre tombs,
    The requiescats of the dead?

Or is it when your lot is cast
In some quaint garden of the past,
  On some gray, crumbled basin's brim,
    With conch that mildewed Tritons blow,
  While yonder, through the poplars prim,
    Looms up the turreted chateau?

Nay, loveliest are you when time weaves
Your emerald films on low, dark eaves,
  Above where pink porch-roses peer,
    And woodbines break in fragrant foam,
  And children laugh, * * * and you can hear
    The beatings of the heart of Home.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

Mr. H. J. Byron's latest comedy, "Weak Woman," turns upon a strange will made by an eccentric bachelor, in which, in order to defeat fortune-hunters he leaves his property to one of two nieces who are to marry at the same time, and only discover after marriage who is the heiress. It is said that there's much mirth in the piece, and the result is a success.

Strauss' new comic opera "Queen Indigo," is proving an immense success in Paris. The charming airs, marches, drinking songs, ballads, duets, choruses, which follow one another with an exuberance of charm, grace and brilliancy, have made of Struss the hero of the moment. There is, especially, a drinking song that is called for three times every night, and that brings thunders of applause; there is the waltz, "The Blue Danube," and the "Waltz of the Arabian Nights," equally popular; there is a serio-comic song "My beard is very ill," that will certainly be ground out by the organs of the future.

A New Organ.

A private exhibition of the new electrical organ invented in Philadelphia was recently given in that city. The new instrument is built like an ordinary church organ, except that drums, cymbals, etc., are introduced for orchestral effects. Its peculiarity is that it is played entirely by electricity. A small machine called a wind engine, propelled by the compressed air from the bellows, furnishes the motive power to turn two rollers, between which the paper on which the music is punched out passes. There are several hundred "readers" or small metallic points which rest upon the paper, and as it passes over the metallic roller the reader completes the electric circuit whenever one of the holes in the paper allows it to come in contact with the metal beneath. The relative value or length of the notes is represented by the length of the holes in the paper, which allow the feeler to remain for a longer or shorter time in contact with the metallic surface. Whenever the circuit is complete it instantly closes the magnet which opens the valve of the pipe to be played upon. The number of notes which may be struck at once, or the number of different stops that may be played in the organ is governed only by the wish of the builder. A keyboard for performing with the hands in the ordinary way, the action being controlled by elictricity, is also attached, and is in the opposite end of the hall from where the organ stands, a wire running from each key to the corresponding pipe in the organ.

Mrs. Rignold.

New York society made an effort the other night, and turned out in force to attend a benefit for the Central Dispensary, at the Academy, late though it came in the season. Mr. and Mrs. Regnold were, of course, the magnets of attraction. All the women went to see what kind of a wife the royal George had. I am glad to say that she came out triumphantly. Blonde tresses covered her jet-black hair, and a rosy flush tuched up her olive cheek. She was'nt any handsomer a woman, after this had been done, than she is off the stage, but I am bound to say she was a younger looking one. Mrs. Rignold's voice was scarcely strong enough for the Academy, but she proved herself a graceful and sympathetic actress of correct intentions, and a decided gift for the protrayal of somewhat stronger emotions than actresses of her school can usually cope with successfully. She was called before the curtain after each act, and when she appeared with Mr. Rignold there was plenty of applause and bouquets without number.

Tennyson's New Play.

Mr. Tennyson has, at last, sent to press the drama which he has had so long on hand. It will be published shortly by Messrs. H. S. King & Co. It is entitled Queen Mary, a drama," and embraces the life of Mary Tudor, faom her accession to her death, together with the chief scenes in

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer

And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar, the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called Los Brillantes, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods? This country may come to this yet. jul-1m

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments.

SANTA MONICA

Offers a most inviting opportunity.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

The London Sportsman says, that Salvini receives only the modest salary of £15 or $75 a week. It seems that he was originally offered "half shares," but remembering what a bad speculation Ristori made on these terms during her last visit in England, he declined the proposal, and accepted the magnificent remuneration of £2. 10s a night in return for which, I should say, he has brought thousands into the Drury Lane treasury.

During a recent performance of "Girofle-Girofla" at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, Miss Catherine Lewis, the heroine, fell into a violent fit of hysterics at the close of the duet at the breakfast table. The bridegroom, carried her off, and the curtain was lowered for fifteen minutes, when the performance was recommenced.

Miss Genevieve Ward, an American actress, who played in this country merely as a novice, has attained considerable distinction in Dublin and elsewhere in the British Isles. She lately played Medea at a dramatic performance given to the American rifle team. It is announced that she will play in Italian with Salvini next fall, and ultimately return to this country in her maturity of power and experience.

In an account of a visit of its Paris correspondent to the class-room of Prof. Wartel, the Chicago Times recently mentioned Mrs. Edward Knox, nee Miss Florence Rice, in this wise: "Her voice is a superb mezzo soprano or high contralto, and she is making astonishing progress under Prof. Wartel's tuition. Mrs. Knox will sing "La Favorita" and "L'Africaine," with the double attraction of a magnificent form and expressive face added to one of the rarest voices Nature has ever gifted her children with. Mrs. Knox will sing in French, and expects to appear at the Grand Opera House in the fall."

During the Summer months Mr. Lytton Sothern is engaged to appear at the Londesborough Theatre, at Scarborough, in a large round of characters, including Romeo, Claude Melnotte, and Orlando. He will return to the Haymarket for the Winter season.

Miss Kate Bateman will act Lady Macbeth at the Lyceum Theatre, London, next Autumn, to the Macbeth of Mr. Henry Irving.

The London Haymarket season terminated earlier than usual, and the house after the 28th May was to let until the beginning of August.

The production at the Mirror Theatre, London, (late Holborn), of the "Detective," adapted by Clement Scott and E. Manuel, from Adolph Belot's "Le Parricide," took place May 29. A version of the piece was given under the title of "The Patricide" a couple of years ago at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York.

George Rignold's mother, a veteran actress of seventy-four, published in the London Era, a letter from a Rev. George C. Miln, an American clergyman, complimenting her son upon his performance of "Henry V., and expatiating upon the elevated tone of the play. Who is the Rev. George C. Miln?

Mesdames Christine Nillson and Emma Albani sang the duet, "Sull,' Aria," at a recent state concert at Winsor Castle. Campanini, Stanley and Maurel, gave at the same entertainment the famous trio from "William Tell."

At Posen, Mlle. Oria, a soubrette, has been summoned before the Police tribunal for singing an extempore couplet libeling Madame Lucca.

M. Strakosch is about to construct, in Paris, a magnificent building in the style of the Alhambra palace.

An immense hippodrome, capable of holding 15,000, is in construction at the Champs Elysees, Paris. It will be ready for opening about the July 15th.

The Wages of Sin?

A few months ago the honorable Major W. H.——d, brother of Lord S——d, who, high in royal favor, was a constant companion of the Prince of Wales, was caught in the act of cheating at cards, at a certain club in London. At a game of Vingt-et un, the king was found up his sleeve. Branded at once as cheat and leg, the Major fled the kingdom, and the Gazette announced that Her Majesty had "no further occasion for his services." His brother, Lord S——d, made him an allowance of £300 a year on condition of his not again appearing within the British Isles. At a watering-place on the continent, the Major met a very pretty married woman, a granddaughter of a noble duke. The lady's husband was far advanced in consumption. Fascinated by the Major, who is notably handsome, being known by the sobriquet of "Look and Die," the lady left her ailing husband. Followed by him and brought back, she promised to return to her marital duties on condition of being allowed a farewell interview with her deceiver. This the husband granted, on the understanding that the interview took place in his presence. The Major appeared, and the lady, throwing herself into his arms, declared her intention of never again parting from him. The husband at once started for London to "consult his lawyer," but, getting no further than Aix-les-Bain, fell ill and died. Six weeks after his death—he was but thirty-two—his widow married the Major, endowing him with her jointure of £1,500 a year. A person who has a life knowledge of the Major asserts that in him the wretched woman meets her deserts, and that before a month has passed he will "thrash her;" for a crueller, more utterly heartless wretch than "Look and Die" does not exist. Said a cynic the other day of a pair of engaged lovers: "They look now as if they could eat each other; a week after they are married they will be very sorry they did not!"

A New Organ.

A private exhibition of the new electrical organ invented in Philadelphia was recently given in that city. The new instrument is built like an ordinary church organ, except that drums, cymbals, etc., are introduced for orchestral effects. Its peculiarity is that it is played entirely by electricity. A small machine called a wind engine, propelled by the compressed air from the bellows, furnishes the motive power to turn two rollers, between which the paper on which the music is punched out passes. There are several hundred "readers" or small metallic points which rest upon the paper, and as it passes over the metallic roller the reader completes the electric circuit whenever one of the holes in the paper allows it to come in contact with the metal beneath. The relative value or length of the notes is represented by the length of the holes in the paper, which allow the feeler to remain for a longer or shorter time in contact with the metallic surface. Whenever the circuit is complete it instantly closes the magnet which opens the valve of the pipe to be played upon. The number of notes which may be struck at once, or the number of different stops that may be played in the organ is governed only by the wish of the builder. A keyboard for performing with the hands in the ordinary way, the action being controlled by elictricity, is also attached, and is in the opposite end of the hall from where the organ stands, a wire running from each key to the corresponding pipe in the organ.

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold; for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

Maguire's New Theatre.

The general verdict is that Mr. C. D. Hess and his troupe are to be heartily thanked for coming to this city and furnishing us with music of such good quality as that given in "Mignon" on Monday and last nights. This opera of Ambroise Thomas, would prove the quality of any ordinary company, whilst here we have, but half the force engaged in this work, the rest being in reserve for other things. "Mignon" has few tangible airs; the treatment is peculiar, is in fact the very reverse of that of "Maritana." In "Mignon," peculiar and extraording attention is paid to the recitatives, which are certainly given a pleasing quality almost unknown to this style of composition. In scene VI of the first act, there is a dialogue between Wilhelm and Mignon in recitative, which is almost entitled to the distinction of being called a duo. The most charming numbers of the opera are the sextette in the third scene of the first act, "Who is this gay Cavalier," Mignon's song in the first act, "Knowest thou that dear land;" the duet between Mignon and Lotario, "Swift-flying swallows;" Mignon's toilette song in the second act; Filina's polonaise, "I am Titania;" and Wilhelm's Romance in the fourth act. But if we run on in this way about the music, there will be no time to speak of the singers. In brief, then, Miss Beaumont, has a full, rich mezzo soprano which is admirably adapted to Mignon's music, enunciates clearly and is a fair actress. Mme. Rosewald, who played Filina, has a soprano voice of clear, high quality, with great power of execution. Mr. Castle's voice is of the most pronounced English school, all chest and throat notes, is sympathetic. He will be a favorite. Mr. Peakes has a glorious voice, deep, resonant and clear, while Miss Annandale, Mr. Seguin and G. F. Hall and Mr. Marson, all sustained their parts with exemplary skill and zeal. To night, "Il Trovatore," the cast of which is well worth considering.

California Theatre.

Even had Boucicault not written, or were he not to write another Irish play than "The Shaughraun" he would well have earned the title of The Irish Dramatist. With all its faults—and the all is small—"The Shaughraun" is a great play. Last night the California was jammed again, and this will be the case, we think, as long as the piece runs. During that time we shall take the opportunity of treating each character in turn, as our fashion is. To commence then with Conn, as played by Mr. Boucicault. Conn is, as the bills rightly have it, the soul of every fair, the life of every funeral and the first fiddle at all wakes and patterns. The transformation from the middle-aged, quiet-manner gentleman—which Mr. Boucicault in private life is —to the rollicking, ragged fellow is complete—and astonishing. Thoughtless joviality shines from every feature of his honest, sunburnt face, the arch mouth has as much to do with the fun as the twinkling eyes have. But better still he is as full of expedients as of humor and this great gift of expediency plays a large part in the working out of the drama. In conclusion Conn is a nearly perfect specimen of the thoughtless and thoughtful, lazy and active, dishonest and true dependent, half servitor, half friend, indigenous and peculiar to Ireland.

Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre Company.

Daly's company will arrive on Saturday evening, and open on the succeeding Monday. It is the intention, we believe, of Mr. Morrissey, and a party of California gentlemen, to proceed to Sacramento there to meet and welcome the latest addition to our theatrical attractions. The sale of seats began at Sherman & Hyde's, this morning. Full programme will be issued to-morrow.

Infantile Opera.

On Sunday evening next, the Mexican Infantile Opera Bouffe Company, give a farewell performance at the California Theatre, when the new opera of "Marina," will be played.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Charley Kimic's success continues unabated. Vinnie Welch makes her appearance here and Miss Lydia Livingston, both good singers and dancers. The double clog of Senate and Price is a great feature.

Palace Variety Theatre.

George C. Thompson's specialties, Alli Barbee's fire feast, Sam Baylis' shadow pantomime, and Harry Devoy's Dutch songs and dances, are two or three of the almost numberless attractions here Friday, benefit of J. R. Goss, the Business Manager.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The programme here is a good one, and includes a variety walk-around by all the company, Dutch specialties by Lotta and Charley Harris, serio comic songs by Ned Barry, jigs by Johnny Cook and other attractions too numerous to mention.

WHEN THE SONG'S GONE OUT OF YOUR LIFE.

["When the song's gone out of your life, you can't start another while its a-ringing in your ears, but it's best to have a bit of silence, and out o' that maybe a psalm 'll come by and by."—Edw. Garrett.]

When the song's gone out of your life,
 That you thought would last to the end,
That first sweet song of the heart,
 That no after days can lend;
The song of the birds to the trees,
 The song of the wind to the flowers,
The song that the heart sings low to itself
 When it wakes in life's morning hours;

"You can start no other song,"
 Not even a tremulous note
Will falter forth on the empty air;
 It dies in your aching throat.
It is all in vain that you try,
 For the spirit of song has fled—
The nightingale sings no more to the rose
 When the beautiful flower is dead.

So let silence softly fall
 On the bruised heart's quivering strings
Perhaps from the loss of all, you may learn
 The song that the seraph sings;
A grand and glorious psalm
 That will tremble and rise and thrill,
And fill your breast with its grateful rest
 And its lonely yearnings still.

Musical Needs in Paris.

The members of "La Societe des Compositeurs de Musique," in Paris, have presented a petition to the National Assembly, affirming that musical art in France is in a critical state: first, from the competition of the impressarios of Italian opera in all countries, who are out-bidding the home directors for French singers; secondly, becouse the star system is much too prevalent, and the ensemble in execution consequently neglected; thirdly, because the choralists and instrumentalists are under-paid; fourthly, because pensions of retraite no longer exist; fifthly, because the repertoires of grand opera and the opera comique are too restricted, the works of the grand old masters being too rarely represented; and sixthly, because there is not activity enough in the production of novelties to encourage the rising generation of composers.

To remedy this disastrous state of things, the honorable Society suggests: first, that a third subsidized lyric theatre ought to be established in a central position of Paris; second, that the Government ought to erect a large concert hall for the performance of oratorios, symphonies, etc. Official support should be extended to choral and orchestral societies; in fact, the Government should vote sufficient funds to turn to the best account the intelligence and activity of the artistic aspirants to fame and glory.

The French musicians justly refer to the aid afforded the painters and sculptors as a reason for the development of music by similar grants and facilities. They maintain that a noble art is being corrupted by the doings of the present day, and that official intervention—and a powerful one—is necessary, or otherwise the present system will tend to falsify and pervert the mind as the manners of the masses.

Finally, the Society asks for a sum yearly of 100,000 francs to uphold choral and symphonic music exclusively.

This petition is signed by the following members of the Institute: Ambroise Thomas, H. Reber, Felicien David, Bazin, Victor Masse, and eighty of the leading professors of Paris.

Now, what would either of our State Legislatures or the Federal Congress say to any motion for a grant of money in support of music? But, alas! we must not forget that our cousins, the French, hardly dare shorten their beard—and still less cut it off entirely—without being officially supported by the Government, and that, in short, the nauseous smell of a gendarme virtually poisons the moral atmosphere—private as well as public—of this unfortunate country.

Fashionable Fiction.

A gentleman called on a lady one day, and was told by the servant that she was not at home. As he turned to go out he caught a glimpse of her head in a mirror through a half open door. An hour afterwards he called on another friend, and found the lady there. "I have just been to your house," said he, "but not the pleasure of seeing you." "Indeed! I'm sorry. But I went out in great haste on business." "In such haste I presume, that you left your head behind you, for I saw it in the glass." "Did you? It is very possible; I'm so very absent-minded".

The Disputants.

Two persons were once disputing so loudly on the subject of religion that they awoke a big dog which had been sleeping on the hearth before them, and he forthwith barked most furiously. An old divine present, who had been quietly sipping his tea while the disputants were talking, gave the dog a kick, and exclaimed, "Hold your tongue, you silly brute! you know no more about it than they do."

Tennyson's New Play.

Mr. Tennyson has, at last, sent to press the drama which he has had so long on hand. It will be published shortly by Messrs. H. S. King & Co. It is entitled Queen Mary, a drama," and embraces the life of Mary Tudor, faom her accession to her death, together with the chief scenes in her reign.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar, the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which braud is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods? This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

TREASURER AND BUSINESS MANAGER ... J. W. MORRISSEY

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles, has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.

Stray Hits and Stolen Bits.

Don't advertise; it gives people abroad a knowledge of your town and they come and settle in it; it will grow, and other business will be induced to come in and thus increase your competition.

At a certain Episcopal Church in Boston the congregation revenge themselves on an inefficient choir by responding during the litany with, "Lord have mercy on our miserable singers."

The manager of a theatre gave a splendid banquet to some artists and a few dramatic authors. One of the latter proposed the health of the manager who received them so splendidly, though he would not receive their pieces. "Gentlemen," replied the manager, "if I received your pieces, be assured I could not receive you as well as you say I do."

A large, ferocious dog, finding his way into a dry-goods store filled with lady customers, created considerable alarm, when a raw-looking case remarked that if they'd give him what he wanted, likely the dog would leave. What could a dog want in a dry-goods store? Why, he wanted muzzlin', of course.

Holmes remarks on the wonderful provisions of nature. He says there is not even left a narrow crevice under a flat rock without a thin black bug prepared by Providence to fill it. It is the same way when vacancies occur in official positions.

Cloves sprinkled in an umbrella will keep it from moths. We hope the man who has got ours will hear of this.

An indignant subscriber called on a Minnesota editor a few days ago, and fired six shots from a navy revolver through the unfortunate man's brain, after which the editor got up and kicked the indignant subscriber down stairs, remarking, as he did so, that be would be "eternally salivated" if he wanted any man to come fooling around bothering him while he was at work.

This is what an envious Chicagoan says: "When a Detroit girl wants to see how her new pull-back dress looks from a distance she hangs it over a pair of tongs."

If this story came from any place but Colorado, we wouldn't believe it. But the newspaper men out there are all George Washingtons in their love for the truth: "A miner, who has been prospecting in south-western Colorado, has found a whole forest of petrified trees with petrified birds sitting on the limbs singing petrified songs."

It's astonishing, says the New Orleans Bulletin, to see how little there is of some ladies in these days of contracted skirts. And it is equally astonishing to see how much there is of some others.

The market is very hard on a broker when he cannot bear it.

A German figure of speech—Nein.

An Ohio girl got up the other morning to bathe her face in the liquid dew, and cut off one of her fingers on an old scythe hidden in the grass. There's always some drawback to sentiment.

"What a shame that I should be starving!" exclaimed a poor corset-maker out of work—"I that have stayed the stomachs of hundreds."

"On which side of the platform is my train?" asked a stranger in a Jersey City depot the other day. "Well, my friend," replied a gentleman, passing, "if you take the left, you'll be right, if you take the right, you'll be left."

A young lady on Madison avenue who had previously led a most uneventful life yesterday took a short walk, in the course of which she met the most hideous woman wearing the loveliest dress, the dearest duck of a fellow with the sweetest moustache, the most horrible mud-puddle, the nicest weather, and the rudest man that she had ever seen, known or heard of.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

The London Sportsman says, that Salvini receives only the modest salary of £15 or $75 a week. It seems that he was originally offered "half shares," but remembering what a bad speculation Ristori made on these terms during her last visit in England, he declined the proposal, and accepted the magnificent remuneration of £2. 10s a night in return for which, I should say, he has brought thousands into the Drury Lane treasury.

During a recent performance of "Girofle-Girofla" at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, Miss Catherine Lewis, the heroine, fell into a violent fit of hysterics at the close of the duet at the breakfast table. The bridegroom, carried her off, and the curtain was lowered for fifteen minutes, when the performance was recommenced.

Miss Genevieve Ward, an American actress, who played in this country merely as a novice, has attained considerable distinction in Dublin and elsewhere in the British Isles. She lately played Medea at a dramatic performance given to the American rifle team. It is announced that she will play in Italian with Salvini next fall, and ultimately return to this country in her maturity of power and experience.

In an account of a visit of its Paris correspondent to the class-room of Prof. Wartel, the Chicago Times recently mentioned Mrs. Edward Knox, nee Miss Florence Rice, in this wise: "Her voice is a superb mezzo soprano or high contralto, and she is making astonishing progress under Prof. Wartel's tuition. Mrs. Knox will sing "La Favorita" and "L'Africaine," with the double attraction of a magnificent form and expressive face added to one of the rarest voices Nature has ever gifted her children with. Mrs. Knox will sing in French, and expects to appear at the Grand Opera House in the fall."

During the Summer months Mr. Lytton Sothern is engaged to appear at the Londesborough Theatre, at Scarborough, in a large round of characters, including Romeo, Claude Melnotte, and Orlando. He will return to the Haymarket for the Winter season.

Miss Kate Bateman will act Lady Macbeth at the Lyceum Theatre, London, next Autumn, to the Macbeth of Mr. Henry Irving.

The London Haymarket season terminated earlier than usual, and the house after the 28th May was to let until the beginning of August.

The production at the Mirror Theatre, London, (late Holborn), of the "Detective," adapted by Clement Scott and E. Manuel, from Adolph Belot's "Le Parricide," took place May 29. A version of the piece was given under the title of "The Patricide" a couple of years ago at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York.

George Rignold's mother, a veteran actress of seventy-four, published in the London Era, a letter from a Rev. George C. Miln, an American clergyman, complimenting her son upon his performance of "Henry V., and expatiating upon the elevated tone of the play. Who is the Rev. George C. Miln?

Mesdames Christine Nillson and Emma Albani sang the duet, "Sull,' Aria," at a recent state concert at Winsor Castle. Campanini, Stanley and Maurel, gave at the same entertainment the famous trio from "William Tell."

At Posen, Mlle. Oria, a soubrette, has been summoned before the Police tribunal for singing an extempore couplet libeling Madame Lucca.

M. Strakosch is about to construct, in Paris, a magnificent building in the style of the Alhambra palace.

An immense hippodrome, capable of holding 15,000, is in construction at the Champs Elysees, Paris. It will be ready for opening about the July 15th.

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold; for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T. & D. Lundy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

California Theatre.

An embarassment of good things, a surfeit of good characters. It puzzles one exactly where to begin our individual noticing after Mr. Boucicault has passed under review. But there is certainly safety in following the bill, and next in order to Conn we find Mr. H. J. Montague as Captain Molineux. Now although he is a Saxon, a red-coat, and therefore, to be thoroughly well hated,—nay, it is even be who is in pursuit of, and who does secure the "young master" Robert Ffolliott still he is not cursed by the pisantry, nor is he hissed at by the gods. For Captain Molineux as represented by Mr. Montague, is as good-hearted, honest, tender and manly a young fellow as ever lived, whose only faults are an occasional tendency to let love weigh down duty, and a certain bashfulness of manner, which after all, is not a fault. We are as interested in his wooing as we should have been, had he been a young Irish squire, perhaps more so, and the conclusion when Miss Claire so prettily and pointedly asks him if he has a a Christian name, is inevitable that Claire will call him by this or perhaps with a "dear" as prefix all her lifetime and be a very happy woman. Courteous and gentle Captain Molineux, you have done much to sweep away the old time bitter prejudice against the red coat and put a better and more human feeling in its place!

The house was crowded as usual last night.

Maguire's New Theatre.

As far as the principals were concerned, "Il Trovatore" was an unqualified success, but O the chorus at times, and O the scenery, always! But neither an occasional shakiness in the one, nor a general deficiency in the other, could detract from the pleasure experienced in attending so fair a musical treat. Mme. C. B. Bernard (Caroline Richings) showed no signs of decadence in her singing, no lack of spirit in her acting. Her voice is still that powerful, well cultivated, and well displayed voice, that charmed Californians nearly ten years ago, whilst her acting, well warrants her being styled the prima donna dramatique of the company. And what shall we say of Mrs. Seguin? Wonderful in make up, the crazed fiend of a gypsy woman, to the life; with a voice full and rich in its forte and sweet, very sweet in its piano; with enunciation so admirable that not a word was lost, her success was unmistakable and well assured. The Manrico was Mr. Maas, who has a voice which in its tender quality fully makes up for a certain lack of power which at present may, however, be an effect climatic. His style is excellent, and his figure small and compact, yet graceful. Taking rank among the successes of the evening stands, Mr. Carleton as Count di Luna. A baritone voice of great compass, full in the lower register, clear and strong in the upper, and with no faltering in the middle; with a fresh manly style about him that reminds one strongly of Charles Santley, a good figure and fervid action, these are his qualities and i' faith they made their mark last night. The Ferando sung by Mr. Conly should not pass uncommended. This evening "Maritana" and the debut of Mlle. Redenti, who, we believe, makes her first appearance in America, to-night.

Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre Company.

The sale of seats for the performance of this company, began yesterday, and closed to a very excellent showing.

At the California Theatre, on Sunday evening next, these wonderful children give a farewell performance, previous to their returning home, of "La Grande Duchesse," the opera in which they have made themselves so famous. Between the acts Senorita Soledad Unda y Moron will sing arias from "Ernani" and "Traviata" and the Bolero from "The Sicilian Vespers," which is repeated by universal request.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"The Demon in the Woods," "U. S. Mail," "Too Late for the Boat" and "Handy Andy," are the acts for to-night, besides, which, there are a score of other attractions.

Rich in Eloquence.

He walked out of the depot with a satchel in his hand—a good looking satchel, yet terribly gaunt and thin. If satchels had ribs, one could have seen that scatchel's ribs and noted how thin in flesh it was. When a professor of hack-driving asked the stranger if he would have a carriage he smiled blandly and replied:

"Not this time, Colonel—not just now, although I warn thee that it is plebian-like for a duke to walk around with his baggage in his hand. I am in search of a hostelry—a caravansary where I can recuperate and refresh."

When he stood before the hotel clerk, the clerk noted that the stranger's, hat was full of dents and caves; that his shirt-front was badly soiled; that his garments were becoming thread-bare, and that there was need of thorough repair.

"I desire a seat at the banquet-board without delay," said the stranger. "I have traveled far and feel the need of refreshment."

The clerk smiled as the satchel was lifted over the counter. He "hefted" it and smiled again.

"I carry the ducats here, in my wallet," said the stranger, "and after I have sipped the amber mocha and carved the Spring poultry, I shall cheerfully return and requite thee."

He might have seventy-five cents about him—the clerk would chance it. Victory lurked in the stranger's eye as he turned to one of the bell-boys and said:

"Youthful slave, conduct me to a place where I can lave my fevered brow."

He was conducted, and after he had laved he looked a little better. Even a boot-black is improved by a liberal application of soap and water. Still there was that lank satchel behind the counter, those thread-bare garments, and that hungry voice.

"Now, serf, proceed to the banquet hall and I will follow thee," said the stranger, as he ran a coarse comb over his head for the last time.

Seated at the table and approached by a waiter, he remarked:

"Thou cans't bring me rare viands of any kind, and I shall not quarrel with thee about the cookery."

"Beefsteak, fried ham, mutton chops or liver?" queried the girl.

"Fair lady, to thine own good judgment do I leave it," he replied; "only let wings be added to thy speed, for my castle is leagues away, and I hunger."

She brought him a well-selected stock of groceries and provisions, and he got away with them as a steam-ditcher goes down through sandy soil. He ate his fill, and then crammed another meal down on top of that. He emptied his coffee cup again and again, and when he finally rose from the table, he could hardly lift himself. Turning to the fatigued waiter, he gently said:

"Fair maiden of the valley, thou hast done thy culinary work in a manner which speaks volumes for thee. Permit me to offer thee my heartfelt thanks."

He strolled into the office, put some matches in one vest pocket, and some tooth-picks in the other, and then, leaning his elbow on the counter, said to the clerk:

"Thou knowest thy duties well, and when I am far away I shall gladly sound thy praise."

"Come, no fooling now—out with that seventy-five cents."

"As soon as my retainers arrive I shall give thee a weighty purse, and thou cans't keep every ducat in it."

"Ducats be hanged! I want scrip—nickles—stamps! I want pay for your breakfast!"

"Gently, my friend with the Roman nose," continued the stranger; "thou cans't not say that I am a lord or a duke in disguise."

"And I don't care a cent! Are you going to pay?"

"Am I going to turn these fragments of wood into gold?" queried the stranger, as he held up a number of pine toothpicks.

The clerk came out of the office, having the lean satchel in his hand, and he took the stranger to the door kicked him with great good will, and then pointed up the street.

"I go," said the man, in a solemn voice; "but when my retainers arrive I shall seek revenge—human gore shall be shed to satisfy me!"

"You want to gore right away from here—quick—smart! exclaimed the clerk.

He went. His face was clouded for a moment, but then a grand smile covered it, and he stopped a newsboy and asked:

"My faithful minion, cans't thou direct me to an office over the door of which hang the traditionary golden balls of the base money-lender—a place where I may exchange a few precious heirlooms for some vile dross?"

And the boy did.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar, the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods! This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments,

SANTA MONICA

Stray Hits and Stolen Bits.

"It will come," said a candidate for Mayor of St. Louis the other day, while making a stump speech, "just as sure as it was that Romulus founded Rome."

"Time softens all things," except the young man who parts his hair in the middle, and whistles on the street cars. Nothing can make him any softer than he is.

In what respect does a bishop resemble a fish? Both live in the see!

A bachelor made a will leaving his property to the girls who had refused him; "For to them I owe all my earthly happiness."

A young man in a music shop was lately over-powered by a fastidious young lady, who wanted to purchase "Mr. Hood's —a —song of the a-gentleman's under-garment!" The young man is still alive.

A Scotch peddler completely cowed an irascible Welshman, who insisted on fighting him in an inn kitchen, by going down on his knees and imploring pardon for having killed "two men already, and being about to kill another."

The Rochester Democrat says that Mlle. Plaster, a young French actress, is coming over next season. We presume all the young fellows will be inclined to court Plaster.

The Mollychunkemunk is the euphonious title of a new pleasure steamer recently launched on a lake in Maine.

Many a pretty girl of humble extraction has risen far above her station in life. Why, even Venus herself came of the very scum of the ocean.

Articles that require looking into—pier-glasses.

People tell the story of a man who called at the house of a neighbor, half a mile from his own house, early in the morning, and after the usual salutation, seated himself on a chair, and on being asked to eat some breakfast, answered: "I don't suppose I ought to stop, for our house is on fire, and they sent me to tell you."

A Boston drummer, walking along one of the streets of Houston, Texas, reached under his coat-tails for his handkerchief, and was enabled to keep his hand in that position until he got to his hotel, as every other man he met drew a bead on him with a navy revolver, and threatened to send him "hellward" if he ventured to "pull that 'ere pop."

A man rushed breathlessly into a lawyer's office in St. Paul, and, approaching the legal luminary, excitedly remarked: "A man has tied a coop to my horse's tail! Can' I do anything?" "Yes," replied the attorney, "go and untie it." That was good advice, and didn't cost the man but five dollars.

A French dramatic author was remarkable for selfishness. Calling upon a friend, whose opinion he wished to have on a new comedy, he found him in his last moments, but, notwithstanding, proposed to him to hear it read. "Consider," said the dying man, "I have not above an hour to live." "Ah," replied the author, "but this will occupy only half the time,"

Last Sunday, a certain Methodist clergyman of Boston, Mass., after beginning divine service, discovered that he had forgotten his notes; but, as it was too late to send for them, he apologized to the numerous audience in the following terms: "My dear brethren, this morning I'll have to depend upon the Lord for what I may say, but in the afternoon I will come better prepared!"

Lundy, who have just opened at No 777 Mission street, opposite St Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

SOOTHING A WIFE WITH A HOE HANDLE.

"John Jacob Astor Harrison, is it right for a man to strike his wife with a hoe handle?" inquired his Honor of a colored man who slid softly out.

"Wall, she's just the wustest woman in this town," answered the prisoner.

"But that's no excuse, Mr. Harrison: you have no business to take the law into your own hands."

"Who's tooken de law? I took de hoe handle, and if you had been dar and seen what a little bit I hit her you wouldn't make de least fuss over it."

"I have been several time informed, Mr. Harrison, that you are as lethargic as a hotel waiter, and as cross as a hyena with a sore throat, and that it would be far better for your family if you were removed to a higher sphere—say the third story of the House of Correction."

"I'd jess like to have ye live wid dat ole wife of mine 'bout free days—den you'd know who's to blame," answered the prisoner.

"That is impossible, Mr. Harrison, and I believe that it is my solemn duty to put you where you can't hoe-handle the public any more for a long three months."

"Is I boosted?"

"You are."

"Den far'well to dis yere wourld—far'well! Dey'll find a corpse in the cell, and dat corpse will be me!"

"I can't help it," replied his Honor, as he picked out another warrant, "duty stands here with outstretched hand, and if you die I shall feel no stings of remorse—shall see no accusing spirit in my midnight dreams."

SOME FATHERLY ADVICE.

"Is the father of this offspring here?" inquired the court as a boy named William Barron, aged seventeen, came out.

No answer.

"Bub, you are charged with loafing, being drunk and disturbing the peace," continued the court.

"Bub" looked up indignantly. He had commenced to coax out a moustache, chewed tobacco, carried a pistol, and he had an idea that he was a full grown man.

"I have no doubt of your guilt," continued his Honor, "but I shall not send you up. They have no nursing bottles up there—no cradles—no one to get up in the night and give you catnip tea. I know you have the idea that you are a man, and I presume your parents have lost control of you, but you are only a child in the eyes of the law. If you were a child of mine I should spank you and tie you into a high chair for an hour or two, but as you are not, I shall send you back into the corridor and wait for your father to come and draw you home in a baby-cart. Follow Bijah, bub, and if there is a rattle-box or a whistle to be found around the building he will give you amusement."

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place o business.

Amusements, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

It would be difficult to name an opera so full of catching melodies as "Maritana." Every act is crowded with them and one is surprised to find how many familiar beauties are herein contained. For instance, in the first act we have "The Harp in the Air" Maritana's opening Romanza, the duo "Of Fairy Wand had I the Power" by Maritana and Don Jose. In the second act we find Lazarillo's exquisite aria "Ah these Chimes so Sweetly Pealing," the trio "Turn on old Time" by Don Cæsar Lazarillo and Don Jose, the celebrated cavatina of Don Jose "Let Me Like a Soldier Fall," Don Jose's ballad "In Happy Moments," and the chorus "What Mystery" In the third act are Maritana's aria "Scenes that are Brightest," the Orison duet of Maritana and Lazarillo "Holy Mother Guide His Footsteps," and Don Cæsar's concluding cavatina "There is a Flower that Bloometh," which, by the by, was transposed to the second act last night. All these that we have mentioned are popular pieces, besides which, there is a host of splendidly concerted numbers." With all these beauties it may easily be imagined that "Maritana" cannot fail to please. It certainly did not with Mr. William Castle as Don Jose, Mrs Seguin as Lazarilio, Mr. J F. Hall as Don Jose, Mr. Henry Peakes as the King, Mr. Ed. Seguin as the Marguis, Mrs. Julia Melville as the Marchioness and Mlle. Redenti, who last night made her debut, as Maritana. This evening Flotow's exquisite opera of "Martha" will be given with Mr. Maas as Lionel, Mme. Bernard as Martha and Mrs. Seguin as Nancy. The house last night was brilliant and crowded.

California Theatre.

Last night the house was as full as ever, "standing room only" being the notice after eight o'clock. Having mentioned this happy state of affairs we go on with our noticing. Next to Mr. Montague we place Mr Robt Pateman as Harvey Duff, a police agent in disguise This despicable character plays an important part in all Irish dramas, the informer being generally represented as the meanest of all mean Irishmen. Harvey Duff is not so conspicuous, is not so prominently brought forward we mean, as Michael Feeny, but Mr Pateman makes so much of that which is intrusted to him, that several times he is and that not ostentatiously—the central figure of the scene. This is especially the case in the last scene of the last act where being cornered and having to meet death either way, he prefers a sea grave to being clubbed and cut to death by an infuriated mob, every member of which has a mortal grievance against him. Abject to a horrible degree, he hugs the knees of Conn whom he had killed, (vide the wake), and grovels at the feet of Arte Doolan whom he had stolen: then in a perfect ecstasy of terror he actually dances around the place, and then—as the mob enters the place—with a yell he leaps to the rocks below. With a most characteristic make-up and so artistic carrying out of a clever idea, Mr. Pateman's Harvey Duff will not soon be forgotten.

Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre Company.

The box office for the opening week of this company's season, opened at Sherman & Hyde's on Wednesday, and is open every day. The sale is rapidly progressing.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

At the California Theatre, on Sunday evening next, these wonderful children give a farewell performance, previous to their returning home, of "La Grande Duchesse," the opera in which they have made themselves so famous. Between the acts Senorita Soledad Unda y Moron will sing arias from "Ernani" and "Traviata" and the Bolero from "The Sicilian Vespers," which is repeated by universal request.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Swain and West in a double song and dance, Senate and Price in a double clog, and Miss Lydia Livingston in character songs and dances, are two or three of the many great attractions here.

Palace Variety Theatre.

This evening, Mr J P. Goss, the Business Manager of this place of amusement, receives a complimentary benefit tendered him by the entire company A splendid bill will be presented.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The new local sensation "The Brand of Shame," is in rehearsal, and will soon be produced. Meanwhile the programme every evening is crowded with attractions of varying quality and kind.

Reisen Keller.—This mammoth symposium, corner of Third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House, gives a grand instrumental concert every evening The spacious Riesen Keller combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday, first time of Mlle. Victorine, in her great act on the Slack wire, Sig. Laviti the Fire King in his wonderful Repas Infernale, Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze act, also appear with the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold: for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Lab[illegible]ut because they keep the very finest brands of [illegible]rs both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

THE ORIGINAL YANKEE DOODLE.

[The following copy of the original version of "Yankee Doodle" is now in possession of Mr Dudley R. Childs, Boston. It was printed to be "Sold near Charles River Bridge, Boston."

A YANKEE'S RETURN FROM CAMP.

Father and I went down to Camp,
  Along with Captain Gooding,
And there we fee the men and boys
  As thick as Hafty pudding.
    Yankee Doodle keep it up, etc.

And there we fee a Thoufand Men,
  As rich af 'Squire David;
And what they wafted every Day,
  I wish it could be faved—

The 'Laffes they eat every Day
  Would Keep a Houfe a Winter;
They have fo much that I'll be bound
  They eat when they've a mind to.

And there we fee a Swamping Gun—
  Large as a log of maple,
Upon a duced little cart
  A load for father's cattle.

And every Time they fhoot it off
  It takes a Horn of powder,
And makes a Noife like Father's gun
  Only a Nation louder.

I went as nigh to one myfelf
  As Siah's underpinning;
And Father went as nigh again,
  I thought the Duce was in him.

Coufin Simon grew fo bold
  I thought he would have cock'd it;
It feared me fo, I fhrinked off
  And hung by Father's Pocket

And Captain Davis had a Gun—
  He kind of clap'd his Hand on't,
And ftuck a crooked ftabbing Iron
  Upon the little End on't.

And there I fee a Pumpkin Shell
  As big as as Mother's Bafon;
And every Time they touched it off
  They fcampered like the Nation.

I fee a little Barrel, too,
  The Heads were made of Leather,
They knock'd upon't with little Clubs,
  And called the folks together.

And there was Captain Washington
  And gentlefolks about him,
They fay he's grown fo tarnal proud
  He will not ride without 'em.

He got him on his Meeting Cloathes,
  Upon a flapping Stallion,
He fet the World along in Rows,
  In hundreds and in Millions.

The flaming Ribbons in his Hat
  They look'd fo taring fine ah,
I wanted peckily to get
  To give to my Jemimah.

I fee another Snarl of Men
  A digging Graves, they told me,
So tarnal long, fo tarnal deep,
  They tended they fhould hold me—

It feared me fo, I hook'd it off
  Nor ftopped as I remember
Nor turned about till I got home
  Lock'd up in mother's chamber.

Transmigration.

A contributor advances a systematic regulation of the ancient theory of the transmigration of souls. He says: "My advanced theory is an ascending scale of trans—or rather super—migration, something after the following fashion: ten souls of the cheese-mite equal the soul of a blue-bottle fly; five blue bottles' souls equal the soul of a bee; five bees' soul equal the soul of a bat; two bats' souls equal the soul of a rat; ten of the latter equal the soul of a cat; five of which souls equal the soul of a sow; ten of the same equal the soul of a cow; seven cows' souls equal the soul of a gorilla; ten gorillas' souls equal the soul of a man; five souls of men equal one soul of a girl, like my Susan Jane."

A Biling Shame.

She tried to sit down in the street car, but was pinned back so tight she couldn't. Old lady peeped over her specs and asked her "How long have you been afflicted that way?" The young lady blushed, and made "a break," sitting down sideways, and holding her knees tegether so tight that she looked as if she had on a one-legged pair of breeches. Old lady noticed her sitting in this sidewise, cramped position, and whispered: "Bile, I s'pose; I've had 'em myself."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called Los Brillantes, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that, they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods? This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

SANTA MONICA.

This far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

The average nightly attendance at Gilmore's Concert Garden reaches the enormous figure of 5,000.

Miss Maud Harrison, a young lady who is represented as beautiful, accomplished, and possessing a voice of the most exquisite quality, will make her debut during the approaching season at one of the principal metropolitan theatres. The young lady has studied under Miss Fanny Morant and Mrs. D. W. Waller.

Frank Lord, the millionaire, has an abundance of pluck despite his lounging style. The other night at the Central Park Garden, says the N. Y correspondene of the Baltimore Bulletin, Mr. Lord was presented to Miss Lillian Conway, who occupied a box with her sister and a party. Soon the bystanders were edified with seeing him take by the nape of the neck a gentlemanly looking person, who had been talking to Miss Lillian, and throw him down the stairs. Returning he said coolly, in explanation to the inquiries of some of the party who had not been attending prior to the demonstration, "He insulted Miss Conway, and I did the proper thing by him." This all took place very quietly and excited no particular sensation, except among those in the immediate vicinity. Miss Conway smiled her thanks upon the gallant gentleman.

Some time ago William R. Davis, Jr., a colored man, had William W. Tillotson, the Treasurer of Booth's Theatre, arrested for an alleged violation of the Civil Rights law, in refusing to sell him an orchestra or dress-circle ticket. Mr Tillotson when taken before United States Commissioner Davenport, waived an examination, and the case was sent at once to the Grand Jury, who refused to present a bill.

If industry and effort deserve to triumph, Messrs. Connolly and Pillet merited such a result in the fullest interpretation of the term. They had a grand subject for a drama in the French novel of "Around the World in Eighty Days," and in its presentation they were admirably seconded in the matters of stage and scenic effect by Manager Sinn, of the Brooklyn Park Theatre But their term was brought to an abrupt termination after the first night's performance of the second week, and the house was closed. It must be very discouraging to young American dramatists to find their labors on so grand a subject unappreciated by the public. The theatre will remain closed until further notice.

Messrs. John Simpson, Dave Reed and Ben Cotton, will henceforward be the lessees and managers of Bryant's, henceforth to be known as Darling's Opera House, in Twenty-third street. It will be opened for the season on August 23d, with a company to be called the New York Minstrels, embracing the most noted and talented artists in the profession.

Shakespeare's "Richard II." is to form a portion of Edwin Booth's repertory at the Fifth Avenue Theatre next season.

The Vokes Family will only remain four months in this country on their next trip.

Miss Clara Morris, accompanied by Mr. Harlott, her husband, sailed for Europe on 28th.

Miss Louise Hibbert accompanies Mr. Barry Sullivan to this country for principal female parts.

Victorien Sardou has been offered $25,000 for a new play for Miss Kate Claxton.

Mlle. Aimee will return to this country next year.

Miss Kate Field sailed for England on the 25th ult., to be absent one year.

Mr. C. Weinscheak, who is to produce the spectacular drama of "Around the World," at the Academy of Music, returned from Paris on Wednesday with the principal danseuse, ballet, ballet master, and Mr. Nezel, the master machinist of the Porte St Martin, who has been especially engaged to superintend the piece. A special arrangement has been made with the French Transatlantic Line to bring over all the scenery, etc., etc. They have already brought over the Grand Transformation Scene. It arrived last week. The success which this Parisian drama has achieved abroad it truly great as is shown by its having been performed in Paris 250 times; Brussels, 150 times; London 100 times; Berlin,, 230 times; Vienna, 200 times; St. Petersburg 80 times; Warsaw, 90 times and now it is in preparation in Constantinople.

E. T. Stetson has given up "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" and gone back to "Neck and Neck," which he is now playing at Wood's Museum.

For the first time in several years the early days of June chronicle the closure of all but one of the leading theatres in New York. This is a rare circumstance, and its cause may be credited to the lack of Summer novelties at the disposal of managers rather than to indifferent patronage. The public, as a rule, are on the alert for good dramatic entertainments at any period of the year. Managers heretofore considered July 5 as the most opportune period for closing, and the majority reopened immediately after that date with either a very promising stellar candidate or a really attractive dramatic sensation. New York is too metropolitan in character to submit for any length of time to a deprivation of the instruction and amusement afforded at the theatre, and already the principal managers have sounded the warning note of an impending preliminary campaign. Early in August, at Wallack's, Aimee and her merry companions will grimace and can-can to the lively jingle of Offenbach, Herve and Lecocq; the Fifth Avenue will be blithe and gay with the jolly Vokes quintette; the Union Square will be rampant with the satirical wit of Colonel Mulberry Sellers and his alterego, John T. Raymond; the Academy of Music will be redolent of scenic splendors, sensational effects and feminine beauties on a journey "Round the World." piloted by the spruce and agile Kiralfys and the Gallic proprietor of the spectacle; at Booth's, Barry Sullivan, covered with the histrionic glories of three generations, will reappear to garner fresh laurels in modern Gotham. In music, Titiens, Von Bulow, Trebelli-Bettino, and Belocca will monopolize the concert platform, while the honors of the variety arena will be combated for by Managers John F. Poole and Joshua Hart at the Olympic, Eagle, and Comique Theatre The sensation stage is already perturbed by activity at Wood's Museum and the Bowery, and the minstrels, led by the humorous San Franciscans, together with the animation apparent at the minor varieties, indicates a brilliant catalogue of novelties for the approaching amusement season.

ELSEWHERE.

Miss Charlotte Thompson, supported by William E. Sheridan and company, will commence her Fall

The "Two Orphans," with the principals of the Union Square Theatre cast, was produced at Hooley's Opera House, Chicago, on July 5th, with Mr. Hart Jackson, the dramatist as director.

Mr. Edward Arnott has changed the title of his doleful play "Rabagas," as Mr. Stephen Fiske's version of Sardou's comedy, with the same title, has already been copyrighted for production in New York.

Boston Theatre, June 21st —Second and last week of Miles. Moriacci and Cora Adriana in "La Bayadere." Fair business. Globe, "Evangeline" burlesque for second week to very good houses. Boston Museum, production of "Invisible Prince," with Rose Massey as the hero. Good houses.

Frank Mayo and troupe played in Hornellsville on the 28th, Elmira, 29th, Oswego, July 1st.

The theatrical season in Philadelphia is over. Nobody can sit in the theatres East and imagine they are enjoying the performance while the perspiration is pouring off them in their efforts to smile and be happy.

Tony Pastor and troupe, Grand Rapids, Mich., July 7th; Jackson, 8th; East Saginaw, 9th; Bay City, 10th; Detroit, 12th and 13th; Toledo, 14th; Cleveland, 15th; Buffalo, 16th and 17th; Toronto, 19th and 20th; Montreal, 21st, 22d, 23d, 24th; skip a week or so and then to Boston, August 9th, two weeks.

There is talk of building another theatre in Philadelphia to be opened at the Centennial.

Walsingham, the New York correspondent of the Baltimore Bulletin, in speaking of Miss Morris's Cora in "Article 47," which she played at Brooklyn just before starting for England, says: She has elaborated this part until it is a wonderful piece of art as well as a marvel of impulse. Anything more sinuous, more deadly and more abnormal than some phases of this character can scarcely be imagined. Her mad scene is horribly real, but almost as effective is the interview with her former lover when, pursuing him with alternate reproaches and entreaties, she strives to entangle him in her snare. The enthusiasm was intense the other evening, and Miss Morris was forced to re-appear more than once.

The "Big Bonanza" played by Daly's company, drew fair houses at McVicker's, Chicago, but the hot weather prevented the theatre being crowded. At Hooley's Tony Pastor's troupe were followed on the 28th ult, by the Oates Comic Opera for the week ending the 3d inst. The Academy is held by a variety organization.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"The Shaughraun" is so remarkably full of good characters that if one were to choose hap-hazard, he would be certain to fall on some one well worthy attention. Father Dolan, Corry Kinchela, Robert Ffolliot, Claire Ffoliot, Mrs. O'Kelly and Moya are all excellently drawn personages with scarce a difference of merit between them. However, place, not precedence, is given to-day to Mrs Judah's Mrs. O'Kelly. It is an axiom at the theatre and outside that whatever this dear old lady does, she does well. The axiom certainly holds good here. Kind-hearted Mrs. O'Kelly, worthy mother of so noble a son! Moderately given to tattling and with a taste in dress that runs toward a red skirt and a parti-colored gown; with a brogue as rich as her love for Conn; with just the least crank in her temper to save her disposition from being tiresome in its evenness; proud of the O'Kellys, who doubtless came from an Irish King and proudest of all that her son was to be buried in state as grand as that of any dead "Member of Parlymint," Conn's mother as presented by Mrs Judah "is the living picture" of one of that glorious old stock from whom have sprung the Mike O'Dowds, the Terence O'Bradys, the Pat Molloys, the Billy Pattersons, the Jimmy Reillys, the Conn O'Kellys and all the rest of that grand army of martyrs, heroes and good-for-naughts. A great crowd in attendance last night with not a standing place to spare.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—Of all operas we take it, Flotow's "Martha" is the sweetest. Its solos are exquisite bits of melody, its quartette and duet music lovely specimens of harmony, whilst its choruses are glorious. Seldom has San Francisco had the pleasure of hearing this charming work better given than it was last night by Mrs. Caroline Richings-Bernard as Martha, Mrs. Seguin as Nancy, Mr. Maas as Lionel, Mr Carleton as Plunkett and Mr. Seguin as Tristam It is not too much to say, that this was the success of the season. Encores were lavishly given and it was evident that everyone in the crowded house enjoyed the treat to the full. In the solos each received his or her meed of applause while the quartettes, and choruses even, were redemanded. The opening duet between Lionel and Plunkett, the good-night quartette, the chorus at the conclusion of the fourth act, the spinning-wheel quartette, "The Last Rose of Summer," Plunkett's drinking song in the fourth act, Lionel's "M'appari" and the duet in the last act between Plunkett and Nancy were as usual the favorites. But taken throughout, the performance was of such a first-class order that it alone would secure the success of the company. This afternoon "Maritana," this evening "Martha," with George Evans as Conductor and on Sunday evening "Mignon."

DALY'S FIFTH AVENUE COMPANY.—Among the other arrivals from the East to-night will be the above famous organization from New York, under the wing of the founder and Manager of the Troupe, Mr. Augustin Daly. The sale of seats has been such that a crowded house is sure to welcome them on Monday night at Platt's Hall, which cosy place has been newly decorated and otherwise improved, greatly to the comfort of the audience.

INFANTILE OPERA BOUFFE TROUPE.—At the California Theatre, to-morrow (Sunday) evening, these wonderful children give a farewell performance, previous to their returning home, of "La Grande Duchesse," the opera in which they have made themselves so famous. Between the acts Senorita Soledad Unda y Moron will sing arias from "Ernani" and "Traviata" and the Bolero from "The Sicilian Vespers," which is repeated by universal request.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—The acts for tonight are particularly good being, "Four O'clock Train," "Dutch Justice," "Uncle Jeff at Home" and "Snoozer." Besides these, there is the usual varied olio.

PALACE VARIETY THEATRE.—Mr. J. R. Goss' benefit last evening was a great success, the house being jammed. Among the volunteers was a certain Julian Adams, who gave a solo with imitations on the English Concertina, with such good style, that he was immediately engaged and will make his first regular appearance to-night.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—"The Brand of Shame" is a capital piece with a first-rate moral. The two chief characters are Mike and Mary Murphy, played by Hughey Robinson and Vinnie Welch. The usual strong bill to-night.

REISEN KELLER.—This mammoth symposium, corner of Third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House, gives a grand instrumental concert every evening. The spacious Riesen Keller combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—ATTRACTIONS! On Saturday and Sunday, first time of Mlle. Victorine, in her great act on the Slack wire, Sig. Laviti the Fire King in his wonderful Repas Infernale, Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze act, also appear with the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

NOTES.

Little Nell has been playing a successful week's engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento. On Wednesday evening "Fidelia" was the bill, on Thursday "Archy the Newsboy," last evening "Nan the Good for Nothing" and "The Pride of the Market," and this evening "Andy Blake" and "The Little Treasure."

Last evening a concert was given at the Music Hall, San Jose, by a musical society of that city, when the cantata of "The Flower Queen" was given. This and the climate will be sufficient to keep San Jose happy for a month at least.

Yreka has been revelling in the performance of the Yreka Amateur Club, who last week gave two "interesting" performances at Kesler's Theatre, the bill being "Dollars and Cents" and "The Dutchman's Ghost."

street, the floor of the orchestra stalls is in, the stage is in a fair way towards completion, the proscenium arch is being sprung, and the painting frames are up There are two of these, one on each side, the painting platform, which is situated at the back of the stage and which, with the frames, is hoisted clear up out of the way by means of counter weights, thus giving the stage the full possible depth of eighty-eight and a half feet. The height from the footlights to the proscenium arch is forty-five feet the width from wall to wall of the stage is one hundred and twenty feet with an available space of sixty five feet for scenes, that is from box to box. The lathing is nearly finished and everything betokens activity and progress.

At the Market street theatre, the advance from week to week is something astonishing. Already the walls are up to the first story, and the joists for stage and auditorium are in place. The hotel building keeps even pace, and the time for opening both cannot be more than two or three months hence. The prevailing feature of everything connected with the immense dual building is its massiveness and strength. No journeywork here.

"Montague is killing the ladies in San Francisco. Poor dears! We had hoped they had more sense than their sisters in New York." So says the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, and in so saying does an injustice both to Mr. Montague and to the ladies of San Francisco Mr. Montague has neither posed for an Apollo, nor striven to gain a reputation as a heart-breaker in this city. He has done much more, he has succeeded in making a worthy impression as a cultivated exponent of the unstrained, refined school of acting Mr. Montague is held in San Francico to be a courteous gentleman, almost guiltless of self-consciousness and a good actor. These are honorable titles To call him "a masher" would be an ill compliment indeed, and little short of an insult especially to the ladies.

We learn that Miss Fanny Davenport will go starring next season for three months, under the management of Mr. James W. Morrisey, all through the principal Eastern States, after which Mr James Lewis will make nearly the same tour under the same management.

We are sorry to hear that Fechter is lying seriously ill of heart disease at Montreal, Canada.

It seems that the Emerson Minstrels did not do particularly well at the gloomy Park Theatre, New York. However, they picked up at Boston and Philadelphia. They travel in the East during this month and August, re-opening in Chicago on the 1st of September, remaining there for four months, and closing their engagement on the 2d of January, 1876. Then back again to Bush street, San Francisco.

The Oates troupe closed at Hooley's on the 3d, and were to have opened at the Park Theatre, N. Y. on Monday last, but the arrangements were interrupted. Mr. J. W. Allinson sails on Monday next for Europe, to engage new talent for the coming season which opens at Providence, R. I., on the 27th of September.

The Hooley Comedy Company opened at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, on Monday, to one of the biggest houses ever inside the walls of the theatre The business has continued uninterruptedly good all during the week, and it seems probable that the two weeks' engagement will be extented to four The only change in the cast is the substitution of Miss Merry's name for that of Mrs. Mestayer, who it will be remembered played the professor's better half; and who has cancelled her engagement with Mr. Hooley,—cause, Sunday evening performances.

We learn that Mr. J. L. Toole, the English comedian, will soon return to London, where he is to appear in October, in a round of his old characters. Mr. Toole's American tour cannot be called a success. Mr. J. L. Toole is simply and purely a local comedian—so thoroughly English that no one outside of London can laugh at him or understand him. Still, he has "gone the rounds" in our principal cities, and met with a kind reception. But he returns home without having made the fortune he expected.

The latest we have heard of Frank Gilder is that he gave a concert on the evening of the 2d, somewhere on Vancouver's Island, with Mrs. Babcox, Miss Blanche Galton and Mr. Thomas Whiffen as assistant artists.

As we have already said, the Lingard season, at Portland, was an extremely successful one. The season closed on Saturday last with "A Life's Dream" and "The Weavers," played to a large house.

The White Race vs. the Mongolian.

This is the season of the year that the invasion of California by the Chinese barbarians is renewed. Thousands of emigrants, Christians by color, education and civilization are also swarming to this Land of Gold, induced to come by higher wages and a prosperous State. But the question arises will this prosperity last long, if the fact remains much longer, that this wretched scum of a leprous race find employment immediately on their arrival through the agencies of their companies, while many of our emigrants are seeking work in vain, until tired and disgusted they return East. In the face of this crying evil there is one firm in this city whose names ought to be emblazoned in letters of gold, for they, notwithstanding they run a Cigar Factory, employ none but white men. The firm we refer to is Gordon & Burke, No. 842 Market street, opposite Fourth. We recommend our readers to patronize them, not only because they employ White Labor, but because they keep the very finest brands of Cigars both Imported and Domestic, and the best quality of Tobaccos, Snuffs, etc

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

Amusements, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Last night a performance of "Mignon" was given to the biggest house of the season and was of a character worthy of so excellent an attendance. The cast was the same as on the occasion of its previous production. This evening Mozart's masterpiece "The Marriage of Figaro" with Mrs. Caroline Richings-Bernard as Susanna, Mrs Zelda Seguin as Cherubino, Mr Carleton as the Count, Miss Annandale as Marceltina, Miss Beaumont as the Countess and Mr. Peakes as Figaro. The National Anthem will be sung before the commencement of the opera by all the artists.

Platt's Hall.

This famous and very much talked-of Fifth Avenue Theatre Company, under the personal Management of Mr. Augustin Daly, open their season of 35 representations here to-night with Boucicault's comedy of "London Assurance." The cast will include Miss Fanny Davenport, Emily Rigl, Miss Kate Holland, Messrs. Charles Fisher, W Davidge, George Parkes, M. Barrymore, James Lewis and Owen Fawcett.

California Theatre.

Saturday's matinee was a crowd, and the Saturday evening house was a jam. This begins the second week of "The Shaughraun's" run, and we look for no diminished attendance.

C. T. B. C.

The above initials are those of the California Theatre Boat Club, an organization which has recently torn down the party wall of exclusiveness which formerly limited its members to those who were directly connected with the California Theatre. Any gentleman is now admissable by ballot, and we hope that this opportunity of strengthening a capital club will not be lost sight of. At present the club is making great exertions to bring about a successful annual fete in the form of a picnic and regatta, to be held at Badger's Park on Thursday next The regatta will take place on the creek in front of the Park, on the grounds of which a platform with a clear view of the race has been erected for the accommodation of the picknicers. Races will take place between the California and Mystic Clubs, besides which there will be a barge race, a scull race, four oared race and a tub race. Everything promises a very pleasant day.

The acts are all of a varied character, but all humorous and well given The various numbers of the olio are all marked by some good specialty business.

Notes.

Very early this morning a brigade of carpenters was turned loose in Platt's Hall to put in the new floor, which will have a gentle rise from the tenth row of seats. Floral decorations are also in order, new foot and head lights have been put in. The new scenery is up, so that stage and auditorium will show a change in form and manner little short of transformation.

In the opera of "Maritana," Saturday afternoon, Miss Beaumont filled the title role, vice Mlle. Redenti (Mrs Reed) who, by the bye, is a sister of May Nunez the actress.

We know how averse Mr. Daly is to having any one of his artists spoken of above another, but we can scarcely refrain from displeasing him in respect to Miss Fanny Davenport. It is generally known that Miss Davenport is the youngest daughter of the eminent actor E. L. Davenport, but it is possibly not so well known that her repertoire embraces such very different characters as "Lady Teazle," "Lady Gay Spanker," "Ruth Tredgitt," "Pauline," "Frou-Frou," "Lou Ten Eyck," etc. It was not until she became a member of Mr Daly's Company that she had the proper chance to display her ability. The public will have an opportunity to see her this evening, in the difficult role, for so young an actress, of Lady Gay Spanker, and will we fancy, be pleased with the rendition. Miss Davenport's beauty (this for the men) has long been the talk of the great metropolis, and her wardrobe (this for the ladies) has been copied by all the modistes in New York whenever they could get a chance to do so.

The farewell performance of the Mexican Infantile Opera Troupe was given at the California Theatre last evening to a full house. The rendition of the "Grand Duchess" by the clever little artists of the company delighted all who heard it, and Senorita Soledad Undp y Moron was vociferously encored in her aria from "Ernani."

There is a letter at this office for Manager John Wilson.

All will be pleased to hear that Miss Ellie Wilton is returning home from her Continental tour. She leaves New York to-day for San Francisco

Those who know Miss Bella Pateman, will need no denial from her of the charge brought against her of seriously making any such remark as "Take them flags off them dogs," which remark was credited to her in the first publication in which appeared the brutal attack on Miss Pateman's politeness and commonsense. Miss Pateman is a lady of refinement and education, and no sensible person will believe for an instant that she could seriously give utterance to any such sentiment, to say nothing of the execrable grammar charged to her in the published article The whole thing grew out of a little badinage, simple, little jokes about nationalities, given and taken in fun, uttered in the mere spirit of raillery in the midst of, and surrounded by friends. It has been most cruelly tortured to the disadvantage of the lady. We are assured that Miss Pateman never stopped in the street to bandy words with a fireman anyone else about the American Flag. In fact the whole statement bears the marks of misrepresentation.

A CARD FROM MISS BELLA PATEMAN.

Certain articles having appeared in some of the city journals ascribing to me offensive remarks on the celebration of the Fourth of July. I beg you will allow me to say, that the spirit and feeling of what I did say—amounting to some very innocent observations—have been cruelly misrepresented. I trust I am incapable as a lady, of the vulgarity such

MY OLD LOVE.

So this is Janet's wedding day !
Strange that my heart should feel so gay
And free from sorrow !
For 'twas through her, a year ago,
I cast me down, in bitter woe,
And prayed that I might never know
Another morrow.
Ah, well ! each day fresh knowledge brings,
And hearts are very changeful things.

I loved her wildly once, I trow,
And, foolish, thought I ne'er could go
Through life without her ;
And now, although she's just as fair—
The same bright eye and winning air—
Yet really I don't seem to care
A bit about her !
"Ah ! truly hearts are changeful things !"
A little voice within me sings.

So here's my old love once again,
Surrounded by her bridal train—
Bright blushing roses !
And as I watch the dimples play
On one soft cheek in that array,
No sadd'ning thought this joyous day
In me reposes.
Ah ! every day new beauty brings ;
Most truly hearts are changeful things !

So Janet, I can wish you well ;
For you may each glad wedding-bell
Ring gaily ever !
And as for me—to win that face
That's glowing there with sunny grace
To fill a bride's—not bride-maid's—place
Is my endeavor.
"How well it is," a soft voice sings,
"That hearts are made such changeful things !"

In the Detroit Police Court.

OUT OF HIS HEAD.

"Smashing furniture—kicking the children—raising a neghborhood row—threats—drunkenness—all grouped together under the one general head of disturbing the peace," remarked the court as Charles Derritt stood at the bar.

"Please, sir, I was out of my head," replied the prisoner.

"That's your defense, is it ?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you have no argument?"

"No, Sir."

"Well, sir, theoretically speaking, you are mashed—scooped—blown up—dismembered—whittled down to a fine toothpick. If you were charged with murder, and set up the defense that you were out of your head, it would clear you as slick as orange peel floors a fat woman, but it's no defense in this court, and the sentence is sixty days. You see you are out of your head and into the House of Correction, so that you have a double advantage over common offenders."

"HERE'S A VAG,

Said Bijah, as he handed out another man.

"Well, I should say he was !" exclaimed the court after taking a long look.

The man was barefooted, covered with dirt, hair full of hay, and had only a little more clothing on than Adam had when he wandered through the Garden of Eden.

"I've seen some hard cases in this room," continued the court, "but I believe you climb the climax."

"I hain't to blame for being poor and sick, am I?" asked the old woodchuck.

"Great bumps, man; you are rolling fat, and you look as healthy as a cannibal!"

"Don't I know when I'm sick ?" growled the man.

"Thomas Lang, I know what ails you. It's too late now, but if I could have taken you ten years ago and got a steam scrubbing brush to work on you and called in a mowing machine to cut your hair and a circular saw to pare your nails, I could have made you look half-way decent."

"It isn't fair to run on me," snarled Thomas.

"You are as useless to this world as an old hoop-skirt in an alley—as five wheels to a wagon—as two bells on a door—as buttons on a man's coat-tails. You are a kite-tail on a telegraph wire—a cocoanut shell in the gutter. Send you up ! Why the driver of the Black Maria would resign at once, and the old boots lying around the House of Correction would feel insulted !"

"I want to go home !" replied the man.

"Go on—go anywhere—get out of here ! Open the way there and let this prize-medal old champion of soot and hay-seed have a clear road !"

And mighty fond of oysters;

A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but wil surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods This country may come to this yet. jy7-1m

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked commercial city. Los Angeles has, perps, more nearly than any other place, tempted to supply this want, but Los ngeles has never been quite able to offset e great disadvantage of a harbor so dective as almost to be worthless. The nited States Government has expended er half a million dollars on San Pedro y without apparent beneficial result, and ight and passengers are discharged into hters, thence carried several miles up a rrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally sembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and rectly west of Los Angeles, from which is but fourteen miles distant, lies the autiful bay of Santa Monica. The harr is so much better than San Pedro, at, during a recent gale, while the amer was unable to discharge into a hter at the latter place, but carried her rgo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded Santa Monica lumber for the construcn of the wharf at that point. This wharf two thousand feet in length, and reaches point where there is thirty feet of wate low tide. From the wharf to Los Anles the road bed of the proposed railroad graded; the ties are contracted for, and ough iron has been purchased and pped to construct the road a distance forty miles. The pass grading through jon Pass is also nearly done, and means ve been secured to construct the road Independence within a twelvemonth.

hat Santa Monica is to be the future y of Southern California, will be readily ceded after an examination of its ny advantages.

MONDAY....... ....JULY 12

SANTA MONICA.

We reprint the following interesting article from the Resources of California. By its assistance and that of the map, published on another page, our readers will be well able to understand and appreciate the advantages of this new city by the sea. It is the hope of the projectors that Santa Monica may become the Long Branch of the Pacific, and we see no reason why it should not, and a great many, why it should.

Of all the land schemes of the day, whether cities or colonies, none seems more pregnant with the elements of success than the extensively advertised "coming city" of Senator John P. Jones. It is not often that beauty of scenery, fertility of soil and commanding commercial position are found in one locality; and when so found, it does not always happen that such localities fall into the hands of men of large enterprise and capital.

This rare combination of natural resources, this partnership of undeveloped riches with enterprise and power, seems to have been achieved at Santa Monica. We are not quite prepared to indorse the enthusiastic prophecy of the promotors of the new city, that it will have "a population of 25,000 people in three years, and of 100,000 in ten years;" but we can see no impediment in the way of its becoming a large and prosperous town. There are but few places in California where the coast range of mountains so approaches the sea as to entirely shelter the ocean valleys from the northern and eastern winds—Santa Barbara is one such place, and Santa Monica is another. The ocean current which sweeps down from the north so as to make sea bathing in this altitude rather uncomfortable, even in the Summer months, appears to bend to the west again about Point Concepcion, leaving the water of the bays and harbors below that point to the genial influence of the sun, and so giving to the people of our southern coast a six months' lease of warm salt water baths. With the growth of population and wealth this State must have its "Long Branch," and Santa Monica, with her bold bluff and beautiful beach, claims to supply this need.

Nor are the commercial pretensions of the "Coming City" to be disregarded. Of course, San Francisco will always be the New York of the Pacific, but there may be Baltimores and Norfolks and Richmonds, nevertheless, and Senator Jones' bantling asserts some pretty strong claims to a front rank among the secondary cities of California.

The Hon. John P. Jones, in connection with T. W. Park and Mr. Duncan, of the New York banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., has gained controlling interest in the Panama Railroad, and we learn that it is a part of the same plan to construct a road from Santa Monica to a point in the Mojave valley, where connection can be made with the Texas Pacific and with the Utah Southern. If this ambitious scheme should find fulfillment Santa Monica would be the practical terminus of the great Southern transcontinental road, and would also be connected with the Union Pacific at Ogden. But whether this be done or not the road running to Independence, Panamint, etc., will furnish abundant traffic to support a thriving city. We learn that Senator Jones intends to have the cars running into Los Angeles next month, and to Independence by January next. Iron and cars for the first division have already left New York, the wharf is completed at Santa Monica and steamers are stopping there.

The question of whether there is a good harbor at Santa Monica or not, we do not propose to discuss. Time will tell, but it occurs to us that the parties who have invested one-half a million dollars in the Santa Monica enterprise, must know what they are about. We regard the enterprise of Senator Jones as of importance to the development of our resources, and we wish it all possible success.

California Theatre.

The second week of the "Shaughraun" bids fair to equal the business of the first week. Long before the curtain rose last night there was not a vacant seat in the theatre, and the old stereotype sign "standing room only." was hung out at the box office. The "Shaughraun" is up for a big run. Miss Pateman received a very pleasant evidence of the esteem in which she is held by the community last night, in the form of an enthusiastic reception and many bouquets.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The rendition of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," last evening, added another triumph to the record of the Opera Company. The performance was a most successful and enjoyable one throughout. At the end of the second act all the company were recalled with fervor. Mrs Seguin's "Voi che Sapete," the duets "Mi Sento" between Madame Bernard and Mr. Carleton and "Sull' Aria" between Miss Beaumont and Mme. Bernard, were heartily encored. Mr Bernard as Basilio sustained and sang the character to the satisfaction of most present. Miss Beaumont make a most captivating Countess, Mrs. Bernard a charming Susanna and Mrs. Seguin a fascinating Cherubino. Mr. Peakes sang the music of Figaro in a dashing style, and in fact the this opera was presented with a cast which has never been approached before in this city. The house was full. "The Bohemian Girl" will be presented this evening, and "The Marriage of Figaro" will be repeated on Thursday.

Platt's Hall.

There are one or two matters which must be considered when judging the performance given by Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre Company here last night. In the first place, the stage is small and affords no possible opportunity for display either of costume or scenery. Next, the company were evidently not familiar with the size of the hall, and were either too loud or inaudible, and thirdly it is most probable that there were not ten people present who had not seen "London Assurance" played half a dozen times and who had, therefore, their own standards of the principal characters to judge by, and consequently their own comparisons to make. It would be, under these considerations, unfair to judge of the merits of this company or of their possible success by this opening performance in a strange hall and a familiar play. When they are accustomed to their surroundings and when they produce those new fashionable pieces in which they have attained such a metropolitan success, will it be time to decide whether last night's cold reception was deserved or not. The audience was a full and fashionable one. "London Assurance" again to-night.

C. T. B. C.

The above initials are those of the California Theatre Boat Club, an organization which has recently torn down the party wall of exclusiveness which formerly limited its members to those who were directly connected with the California Theatre. Any gentleman is now admissable by ballot, and we hope that this opportunity of strengthening a capital club will not be lost sight of. At present the club is making great exertions to bring about a successful annual fete in the form of a picnic and regatta, to be held at Badger's Park on Thursday next The regatta will take place on the creek in front of the Park, on the grounds of which a platform with a clear view of the race has been erected for the accommodation of the picknicers. Races will take place between the California and Mystic Clubs, besides which there will be a barge race, a scull race, four oared race and a tub race. Everything promises a very pleasant day.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Charley Kimic in his Dutch specialties, Lydia Livingston in her character songs, George Foster as Uncle Jeff, the farces of the "Four O'Clock Train," "Dutch Justice," "Snoozer," etc., fill the bill here to-night.

Palace Variety Theatre.

Harry Devoy, George C. Thompson, Matt Kelly, Harry Howard, Louise Lee and Maggie Brewer in farces, Sam Baylis in his living shadows, Julian Adams the English concertina soloist, every night at the Palace.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"Old Times Rocks," "The Two Rivals," "I'm in a Fix," "The Three Orphans," and "The Brand of Shame," to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday the beautiful Albino children, the greatest freak of Nature occurring in the human species; Mlle. Victorine in her great act on the slackwire; Sig. Laviti, the Fire King, in his astounding repas infernale; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze.

Notes.

Joe Murphy arrived from the East on Sunday night. Joe is looking well, and is in fine health. After a short trout season at Pescadero or San Gregorio, by the way of a ruralizer, he will probably put in a professional appearance before the public at one of our theatres.

Our appreciated correspondent "Call Boy" has again come to the front, and will make his reappearance on Thursday in the ever-popular play of "Our Australian Letter."

Mr. George Ciprico, the tragedian, will make an appearance as Edmund Kean in his play of "The Bohemian," at the California Theatre, August 6th. Mr. Ciprico has played engagements in this character in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other Eastern cities. George passed his boyhood's days in 'Frisco and has many friends here who will be glad to note the progress he has made in his profession East.

McDonough, the Puppet Manager, who went to Australia with the Marionettes, and who is generally known among the profession by the sobriquet of the "Managerial Squeeze," gushes in this way about Sydney in the Alta this morning: "I can say without any temerity that its bays, harbor and general surroundings are more beautiful than anything in Naples, while its little lakes would make a dozen Comos." Of course he could say it "without temerity," it didn't cost him anything, and he rang in a puff about his puppets at the same time. What a conglomerated squeeze he is!

The Kennedy Family arrived from Australia, yesterday, by the Macgregor. Mr. Kennedy will be well remembered here for his spirited singing of "The March of the Cameron Men," the stirring echoes of which still ring in our ears.

BEYOND.

I shall steer my bark where the waves roll dark,
  I shall cross a stranger sea;
But I know I shall land on that bright strand
  Where my loved ones are waiting for me.

There are faces there divinely fair,
  The earth lost long ago;
And foreheads white, where curls lay bright,
  Like sunbeams over snow.

There are sunny eyes, like their own blue skies—
  Eyes that I've seen before—
That will grow as bright as the stars of night,
  When I near the welcome shore.

There are little feet I loved to meet,
  When the world was sweet to me;
I know they will bound when the rippling sound
  Of my boat comes o'er sea.

I shall see them stand on the gleaming sand
  Their white arms o'er the tide,
Waiting to twine their hands in mine,
  When I reach the farther side.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,

There you can get your oysters raw,

Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the daily increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

TREASURER AND BUSINESS MANAGER ...... J. W. MORRISSEY.

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked commercial city. Los Angeles has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded; the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

THE GERMAN STAGE.

IN TWO PARTS.

The following very interesting article was embodied in the Leipzig correspondence of the Boston Courier. Much information is to be gathered from it concerning the state of matters dramatic in the Fatherland. The portion published to day treats of the position the theatre occupies in every German town, the scale of admission prices and the scene painting: that in to-morrow's issue will refer to the scenic effects, the German playwrights and the relations between Managers and Authors:

That the stage in Germany is on the whole in a far more satisfactory condition than that of England or America hardly admits of doubt. This may be owing to the recognition by the state and municipal governments of the theatre as an important factor in the life of the people. Besides the Hof, or court theatres in capital cities like Berlin, Dresden, Munich, Stuttgart and Weimar, nearly every provincial city of any improtance has its Stadt Theatre, owned by the city or either run directly by the municipality, in charge of a regularly appointd theatre inspector, or leased to a manager for a nominal sum. The Stadt Theatre, of Leipzig, Hamburg and several other cities vie with the Hof theatres in architecture and in elegance of appointments. It must not be thought that because these theatres are under municipal control they are a burden to the treasury. On the contrary they are often the source of considerable revenue, not unlike that drawn by Boston from Faneuil-hall market. The director of the Leipzig Stadt Theatre has made a large fortune in three or four years, and now the city is to resume the immediate control. And why shouldn't a city see that its people are properly amused as well as properly fed? The experience of Leipzig shows that growth of business has been largely affected by the sterling elegance of her public entertainments.

That you may have an idea of theatre prices here I will give you as closely as possible the rates of admission to the Stadt Theatre of Leipzig which has one of the finest operas in Europe, a great dramatic company perfect in all its parts, and a public to serve which for musical and dramatic discrimination has a world-wide fame: Middle balcony, first two rows, 95 cents; rear rows, 48 cents; side balcony, 72 cents; balcony boxes, 60 cents; parterre (like the Boston parquet circle) 36 cents; unreserved parterre, 24 cents; and for students, 18 cents; parquet boxes, 48 cents; amphitheatre (second gallery) 60 cents; amphitheatre boxes, 48 cents; third gallery centre seats, 36 cents; side seats, 24 cents; fourth gallery (unreserved) centre, 18 cents; side 12 cents.

Single seats in the proscenium boxes cost 96 cents and 60 cents. So you see that theatre-going here is not very expensive, and subscribers for the season get their seats for about a quarter less. Of course the prices for the opera are just the same. One good feature is the close classification of the seats, so that ticket buyers have the widest possible choice. The opera goes side by side with the drama and nearly every Stadt theatre in Germany has two companies, one for the opera and the other for the drama, the two alternating. So although the theatre is open on Sunday nights the actors are by no means an overworked class. Matinee performances are unknow in Germany. Here in Leipzig the curtain rises punctually at half-past six o'clock, and in early Summer it is no unusual thing for the performance to end before dark, for in this latitude the Summer days are very long.

I have noticed that even in the minor theatres the scenery and stage decoration in some points surpasses what we are accustomed to at home. I have seen no better landscapes, and have never seen here such elegantly set interiors as are shown on the American stages; but in the line of perspective, and of architectural and mechanical effects the German theatres are immensely ahead of ours. Their superiority in the way of architecture is not to be wondered at, as the noblest examples are on every hand. But the effects of perspective are marvellous, and in the interiors the flat often plays a part never dreamed of by American scene-painters. The flat is always one piece of canvas, and one never sees that dark dividing-line running perpendicularly through the centre, and which often destroys the illusion of the finest scene. The ceiling and sides of an apartment are often produced on the flat, in a perfectly natural manner. Here in the Leipzig Theatre in scenes where the whole vast stage is used, as in a palace interior for instance, the perspective is carried back with such wonderful truth and accuracy that one really cannot tell where the real stage ends, and the painted scene begins. I have never seen a more magnificent or impressive stage-effect than the coronation scene in the fourth act of Meyerbeer's opera "The Prophet," as given here. The scene is in the great cathedral of Munster. The full height and depth of the immense stage is shown, and the result is a really noble and majestic work of art. There is not the least sense of the "cabined, cribbed, confined." The real cathedral is seemingly before one in all its grandeur, with its tremendous height, and dim, vaulted ceiling; and the splendid procession winds through the spacious transept and marches on and on until lost to sight among the forest of columns in the great nave beyond. In these great perspectives, the scene very seldom stretches straight away before the spectator, but runs off obliquely, thus rendering the effect more attainable. In a simple interior the corner of a room is often in the centre of the flat, and the effect is a delightful relief from the stiff formality of the conventional stage apartment.

TREASURER AND BUSINESS MANAGER ... J. W. MORRISSEY

SANTA MONICA.

Thus far Southern California has lacked a commercial city. Los Angeles, has, perhaps, more nearly than any other place, attempted to supply this want, but Los Angeles has never been quite able to offset the great disadvantage of a harbor so defective as almost to be worthless. The United States Government has expended over half a million dollars on San Pedro Bay without apparent beneficial result, and freight and passengers are discharged into lighters, thence carried several miles up a narrow, shallow, muddy creek, and finally disembarked in a swamp, twenty-six miles by rail from Los Angeles.

Twenty miles north of San Pedro and directly west of Los Angeles, from which it is but fourteen miles distant, lies the beautiful bay of Santa Monica. The harbor is so much better than San Pedro, that, during a recent gale, while the steamer was unable to discharge into a lighter at the latter place, but carried her cargo on to San Diego, a schooner unloaded at Santa Monica lumber for the construction of the wharf at that point. This wharf is two thousand feet in length, and reaches a point where there is thirty feet of water at low tide. From the wharf to Los Angeles the road bed of the proposed railroad is graded, the ties are contracted for, and enough iron has been purchased and shipped to construct the road a distance of forty miles. The pass grading through Cajon Pass is also nearly done, and means have been secured to construct the road to Independence within a twelvemonth.

That Santa Monica is to be the future city of Southern California, will be readily conceded after an examination of its many advantages.

The future city of the Southern Coast.
The Long Branch of the Pacific.
The terminus of two trans-continental roads.
Twelve miles of beautiful beach for riding and driving.
A soil of unexampled fertility.
A site of unsurpassing beauty.
The terminus of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad.
Commanding the trade of Panamint, Coso, and Cerro Gordo.
Surrounded by 100,000 acres of land for Orange, Olive and Lemon Orchards.
Twelve miles from Los Angeles.
A harbor where vessels can find shelter in any storm.
Thirty feet of water at the wharf at low tide.
Abundant water from living springs, artesian wells and ordinary wells.
Streets and lots have a natural grade.
Climate the most delightful in the world.

To merchants desiring to commence business of any kind.
To mechanics seeking to establish themselves in a thriving locality.
To invalids looking for health and profit.
To all who wish to make safe and profitable investments.

THE GERMAN STAGE.

PART SECOND.

The mechanical effects are carried to a startling degree of realism; for instance the two ships in the opening scene of Wagner's "Der Fliegende Hollander," the magic mirror and destruction of Margaretta's cottage in Schumann's "Geneveva," which after a sleep of years has been revived here in the city of its birth, with remarkable success. Richard Wagner, who was present at one of the performances was so pleased that he sent a congratulatory note to the singers. Then such operas as "Oberon" and "The Magic Flute" are a blaze of splendor from beginning to end; in fact the setting of every opera and drama is marked by a faithfulness and care which is carried to the slightest details. A sensation was made by the introduction of an electric sun in one of the scenes of "The Prophet," and it shone with a dazzling splendor so like that of the real luminary that the audience could scarcely look at it, and when the curtain fell the brilliantly lighted theatre really seemed dark in comparison.

A pleasant feature of the German stage is the absence of the "running" system. No piece, no matter how great its popularity, holds the stage for night after night. This is partly the result of the subscription system which prevails in all Stadt and Hof theatres, the subscribers of course demanding a constant change. The absence of the running system may seem at first prejudicial to the interests of dramatic authors; but on the contrary dramatic authors in Germany are a remarkably prosperous class. An equitable law accords the author a third of the net profits at every production of his piece, and where a play has achieved a success nearly every principal theatre makes it a point to bring it out, and instead of a steady run of a week or so, it is very likely to keep a place in the repertory for a series of years, coming up constantly for reproduction. The income of G. Von Moser from his "Shiftungfest' alone was forty thousand thalers for one year; and the average yearly income of Benedix was something like fifty thousand thalers. Other well-known dramatic authors have achieved similar successes.

I have often wondered that the German drama has not been more frequently resorted to for adaptations for the American stage. The English stage in its unaccountable poverty has resorted to the French drama for its material, and the result is that we have been deluged with a succession of French nastiness, which has worked incalculable mischief and lowered the entire tone of our theatres. "Frou-Frou," "Fernande" and "Article 47," are worthy examples of the unsavory mess which has been served up to us. French thought is entirely foreign to the Anglo-Saxon mind, and the spirit of the French dramas, generally with marital infidelity for the foundation stone, can strike no sympathetic chord in an English or American public. Their brilliant, sparkling wit is untranslatable, and as genuine humor is unknown to a Frenchman, a French drama on an English stage is like a glass of champagne that has stood over night. On the other hand the German drama of to-day is closely in sympathy with the English train of thought. Its leading characteristic is its naturalness. The German dramatists are fertile and excellent, and many of the best of their modern novelists write for the stage—men for instance like Freytag and Spielhagen. There are the charming natural pictures of everyday life found in the comedies of Benedix and Von Moser, and brilliant historic comedies like "Zopf und Schevert" and "Das Urbild des Tartuffes." The German comedy is pervaded by a vein of humor which is as fully characteristic of the Anglo Saxon as of the High German branch of the great Teutonic race. That the German drama is adaptable to the English stage is shown by the great success won by T. W. Robertson with his comedies, and Benedix was clearly the model of Robertson, and when the latter departed from the path travelled by the former, he made a lamentable failure, as in "The Nightingale," for example. One of Robertson's most successful plays, and perhaps his most natural, was his "School," which had such a famous run at Selwyn's Theatre. And "School" was simply a free translation of Benedix' "Aschenbrodel, which still keeps the stage here. The changes made by Robertson were generally no improvement, and the closing scene of "School" was a tame and sorry substitute for the brightness of the last act of "Aschenbrodel." The great classical dramas of Germany are not only read, but acted, and the masterpieces of Goethe, Schiller and Lessing are frequently given, while Shakspeare's plays are oftener performed than on

The German school of acting, like the modern German comedy, is characterized by naturalness and realism, and many good judges place it in actual merit far above the French school, which we are so often told to look to as a model. The actors as a class move in good society, and the old prejudice which still prevails so powerfully in many parts of our land is rarely met with here.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"The Bohemian Girl" drew an audience that crammed every available nook and corner of this theatre last night. All the seats in the dress-circle and many in the orchestra and gallery were taken during the day. Better still it was as fashionable as it was crowded, many being present in full dress. But we had hoped for better things in the performance. The Florestein needed brightening up. Mr Bernard's Devilshoof, although well acted, was deficient in vocal strength and the chorus occasionally lacked confidence. Having, like a true friend, noticed the slight faults of the performance, we pass on with pleasure to speak of the good parts. Miss Beamont sang the music and acted the part of Arline with much cultivated effect. Mrs. Seguin's Gypsy Queen, as might have been expected, was all that could be desired, her ballad "Bliss Forever Past," receiving a most unmistakable encores. Mr. William Castle more than redeemed any little weakness in the first two acts by his singing of "When Other Lips" and Mr. G. F. Hall's Count Arnheim was, on the whole, very creditable. On Thursday next "The Bohemian Girl" will be repeated with an entire change of cast in the male parts. To-night Verdi's "Ernani" for the first time in this city in English.

California Theatre.

Revenons aux moutons, to resume our noticing. Very dear to the heart of Conn and introduced in nearly every scene of "The Shaughraun" is Moya, Father Dolan's neice, played by Miss Jennie Lee. Being the neice of a priest and the lover of a vagabond, places pretty little Moya in rather a difficult position; the sedate behavior necessary in the presence of the one and the coy humor when with the other, being two strongly contrasted phases of character. And yet there is a common bond between them, for the maid loves both reverend and neer-do-well. There is a general, prevailing spice of archness about all Moya has to say or do that well fits Miss Jennie Lee. All share Conn's "moighty tinderness" towards his bright-faced, trim-built sweetheart. Father Dolan would, we are satisfied, be better pleased if Moya had chosen a soberer, quieter man for a husband, but we very much question whether had she set her mind to marry even a greater vagabond than Conn the Shaughraun (were a gentleman of such very great leisure possible), if the priest wouldn't have been induced to giving his consent, for Moya is great in the Kingdom of Wheedledom. This is the last character in which Miss Jennie Lee will appear during her engagement and she is fortunate in its being one so well calculated to leave an impression of the happiest nature.

Platt's Hall.

This evening Augustin Daly's famous society drama of "Divorce," which has been played some fifteen hundred times in the principal Eastern cities, will be presented by the Fifth Avenue Theatre Company. It will be the means of introducing Mr. Ringgold, Mr. George Gilbert, Mr. E. M. Holland, Miss Alice Grey and Mrs. G. H. Gilbert to the San Francisco public, and of making us still better acquainted with Miss Jeffreys Lewis, who appears to-night as Miss Fanny Ten Eyck.

C. T. B. C.

The above initials are those of the California Theatre Boat Club, an organization which has recently torn down the party wall of exclusiveness which formerly limited its members to those who were directly connected with the California Theatre. Any gentleman is now admissable by ballot, and we hope that this opportunity of strengthening a capital club will not be lost sight of. At present the club is making great exertions to bring about a successful annual fete in the form of a picnic and regatta, to be held at Badger's Park, to-morrow. The regatta will take place on the creek in front of the Park, on the grounds of which a platform with a clear view of the race has been erected for the accommodation of the picknicers. Races will take place between the California and Mystic Clubs, besides which there will be a barge race, a scull race, four oared race and a tub race. Everything promises a very pleasant day.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

To-night there will be amongst the other attractions, Swain and West in a double song and dance, Charley Kimic in his Dutch comicalities, George Foster and Miss Lydia Livingston, and others in acts.

Palace Variety Theatre.

The engagement of Julian Adams with the English concertina is a success, besides which extra attraction there are Sam Baylis, Geo. C. Thompson Sam Baylis and others in their favorite specialties.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

All new acts to-night with the exception of "The Brand of Shame," which is a favorite. "The Two Travelers," takes the places of "I'm in a Fix" and "The Sonnambulist" is put on instead of "Old Times Rocks."

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday the beautiful Albino children, the greatest freak of Nature occurring in the human species; Mlle Victorine in her great act on the slackwire; Sig. Laviti, the Fire King, in his astounding repas infernale; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze.

Notes.

Our Australian Letter to-morrow.

Just received a sacred ballad from M. Gray, of No. 105 Kearny street, entitled "Friends in Heaven," the music by Felix Marti and the words by E. E. Rexford.

Mr. Daly evidently does not want in enterprise. It being very apparent to him that his season at Platt's Hall would not be a success, he has engaged the only vacant theatre in the city, the comfortable and cosy little Opera House on Bush street. The change of base is to be made immediately and to-morrow evening "Divorce" will be played at the Opera House. Seats that have been secured for Platt's Hall will be exchanged for others at the Opera House to-morrow morning.

A Magnificent Saloon.

For the very finest Liquors, the best Havanas, and for a hot lunch day and night, go to the elegant new saloon of Sample & Chamberlin, Hardy street, off Kearny, between Bush and Sutter.

Laughing Gas.

Dr. Wilson, Dentist, 205 Third street, makes a specialty of extracting teeth without pain by the use of laughing gas, and with twelve years experience in its use can warrant success with entire safety in the most difficult cases.

DEAD.

Dead! That is the word
That rings through my brain till it crazes!
Dead, while the Mayflowers bud and blow,
While the green creeps over the white of the snow,
While the wild wood rings with the song of the bird,
And the fields are abloom with the daisies.

See! Even the clod
Thrills with life's glad passion shaken;
The vagabond weeds, with their vagrant train,
Laugh in the sun and weep in the rain,
The blue sky smiles like the eye of God—
Only my dead do not waken.

Dead! There is the word
That I sit in the darkness and ponder!
Why should the river, the sky and the sea,
Babble of summer and joy to me!
While a strong, true heart, with its pulse unstirred,
Lies hushed in the silence yonder?

Lord! Lord! how long
Ere we rise to thy heights supernal?
Ere the soul may read what Thy Spirit saith;
"Life that must fade is not life but death."
Lift up thine eyes, O soul! Be strong;
For Death is the Life Eternal.

A Shirt Tale.

The young and inexperienced but ambitious wife of a young man of our acquaintance, resolved to surprise her husband, with a new shirt of her own make. One afternoon she spread the garment out before his wondering eyes at bed time. It was cut en train and decollete and had buttons from the throat to the floor, with the most complicated ruffles around the top and wrists. The sleeves were unfortunately set in to look the wrong way. It was a surprise in every respect. She presented it with a kiss to her "dearest Will," and blushed at her self-congratulations. Will was overcome.

"What, on earth is that, little woman?" he exclaimed, holding it out at arms length.

"Why, that's your new shirt, Will; I told you I'd make you one," said she, turning a little red.

"Shirt!" bless my soul, you don't expect me to wear that!" and he sat down on the edge of the bed and laughed.

"And why not, I'd just like to know!" said she, with some asperity, beginning to get riled. "It's better than you ever had before!"

"Of course, dear, but, but—you see, I ain't that kind of a cat."

"Don't get off any of your circus jokes on me! I won't stand it——"

"But, my dear, you——"

"If you don't like your shirt say so, but don't——"

"But listen, dear. I——"

"You've no business to abuse me if we are married. Give it here; you shan't have it if you want it—you're a brute—you don't know a shirt from an overcoat. If you think you're going to talk that way to me—gimme that shirt!"

A hasty step on the stair, as "dear Will" gathered up his hat and slammed the door, and a single emphatic expression was all the neighbors heard. Then followed the ripping of linen, and a shower of white pieces came floating down over the sidewalk, while the shrill voice of an exasperated woman shouted:

"Here's your shirt, you old fool!"

Pretty Well Settled.

An elderly female, on being examined before the magistrates as to her place of legal settlement, was asked what reasons she had for supposing that her deceased husband's settlement was at St. Andrews. The old lady, looking at the bench, said: "He was born and married there, and they buried him there, and if that isn't settling him there, I don't know what is."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

THURSDAY..................JULY 15

OUR AUSTRALIAN LETTER.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

MELBOURNE, June 1st, 1875.

MY DEAR FIGARO: Since my epistle of last month we have had a sensation of what promises to be, to us, a very severe winter. Heavy rains, dews, and fogs, some of which latter would remind a London cockney of the good old "pea-soupers" of his native city. The general health of the people too has not been of the best—the mortality in the city, and suburbs, principally from measles and typhoid fever, has in a given time being greater than of yore. Adults suffering from the former like young children. These occurrences have, as you may well suppose, anything but a beneficial influence on theatrical and other kindred entertainments.

THE THEATRE ROYAL

however has, under the able management of Messrs. H. R. Harwood, R. Stewart, J. Hennings and G. Coppin, presented to patrons a succession of new artists and novelties. At the date of my last epistle Mr. Coppin's aid as a comedian was called in to back up the failure of the Stones; it had the deserved effect, he brought the business up at least fifty per cent. Mr. and Mrs. Stone have met with disappointment and did not even shine beside the members of the stock company. They must have either over-estimated their own abilities, or have been wrongly advised to come out here. As I have before averred nothing, either as regards artists, shows, or pieces, but those of the very first class will have any show of success here. But these will meet with commensurate success. I again advise artists who meditate paying us a visit to pause and think twice before making their determination to "solicit our suffrages." On the departure of the Stones, McCoppin, single-handed, took up the running until the appearance of the clever ventriloquist, Mr.

E. D DAVIES,

Who made a most successful hit, in fact, it is very generally acknowledged that out here his equal has never been seen. He closed with his benefit last Thursday week to a crammed house. The evening's entertainment was, however, greatly marred by Mr. Davies himself, who showed very evidently that he had but shortly before left a very "convivial dinner," and this too on his benefit night! Mr. Coppin has been compelled to close his engagement in consequence of the opening of Parliament, he being member of the Legislative Assembly of East Melbourne, and under a promise to his constituents that he would not perform at any time while the Houses were in sitting. The re-engagement of Australia's favorite actress,

MISS ELEANOR CAREY,

Followed the secession of Messrs. Coppin and Davies. This handsome and accomplished young lady made her re-appearance as Naomi Tighe in Robertson's comedy of "School," and was well received. This addition to their corps dramatique, adds greatly to its strength. It is now the strongest, south of the line, and includes Mr. Dampier, (the able stage manager), Mr. F. C. Appleton, (who has just taken his degrees at the Melbourne University), Mr. Stuart O'Brien, Mr. John Dunn, ("That Rascal Jack,") Mr. Arthur Garner, Mr. C. H. Taylor, Mr. H. Leston, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. H. Warde, Mr. Maynard and Mr. J. R. Greville, Miss Cary, Miss Blanche Stammers (Mrs. A. Garner), Miss Katherine Russell (Mrs. Dampier), Miss Docy Stewart (Mrs. Collins), Miss Jenny Bryce (Mrs. F. C. Appleton), Miss Nellie Stewart, Mrs. Edwin Bryer and Miss Helene Paget. Last Saturday night, however, was the grand night of the season, as it was the occasion of the first production in this Colony of Boucicault's play

THE SHAUGHRAUN.

The house, long before the rising of the curtain, was crowded in all parts with a very large and fashionable audience whose applause from beginning to end was of the most hearty and vociferous character. The general verdict, both of the public and the press, has been expressed that it is one of the most complete and magnificent productions ever seen in Melbourne. The really splendid scenery painted by that premier of scenic artists,

MR. JOHN HENNINGS,

Baffles all description of its beauty. In it he has excelled all his previous efforts, and leads one to think that he has reached the summit of his profession. Loud and repeated calls were made for him during the evening, but, while feeling naturally gratified at such a warm recognition of his work, he modestly contented himself with the congratulations of his friends in the dress circle and cafe. The re-appearance, after an absence of some twelve years from Melbourne, of

MR. CHARLES WHEATLEIGH,

Was the signal for a real Australian reception. On his appearance, cheer upon cheer rang through the house, for a time disconcerting the actor and stopping the action of the play. Mr. Wheatleigh's Conn the Shaughraun, was an immense performance. He carried his audience with him right through, and met with an unmistakable "personal" call at the end of the play. Mr. Wheatleigh was excellently supported throughout by the company, especially so by

MR. A. DAMPIER,

Whose assumption of the character of Harvey Duff, the police spy, was a fine bit of artistic character acting. The cringing, fawning fear of the infuriated mob in the last scene being especially well delineated.

THE MANAGEMENT

money has been spared in its production, and its style would, I am certain, elicit the commendation of the great Dion Boucicault himself. Playwrights in your parts who may entrust Messrs. Harwood & Co. with any of their successful productions may rest assured they will do justice to them. The "Shaughraun" is destined for a long and successful run.

THE OPERA HOUSE

Has been doing a fair share of business lately, with opera bouffe, though the management with a wish to meet with public support has seen fit to engage supplementary attractions. The opera bouffe season will close with this week. Almost every work of that kind which has been a success in England, has been presented here. "Le Petit Faust," "Les Cents Vierges," "The Princess of Trebizonde," (revived), "La Pericholе" and "Girofle-Girofla," (now running), have been successively played by the very talented company with whom Mr. Lyster has surrounded himself. It includes Miss Clara Thompson, (sister to Miss Lydia Thompson), Miss Jennie Winston (Mrs. Bell), Mr. J. H. Fox, Miss Bessie Royal, Miss Maggie Stewart and Miss Cassidy; Messrs. Henry Bracy (stage manager), Daniels, Kitts, H. Bell, George Leopold, and Darbyshire. In the production of the different operas bouffe

MR. W. S. LYSTER

Has been most prodigal, sparing no money to insure their proper presentation. At a large salary he has engaged that eccentric genius, but clever musician,

JOHN HILL, K. S. R. A. M.,

As the musical conductor and scorer of the operas. In this particular position and as an organist and violinist, Mr. Hill has not his equal in this hemisphere. The supplementary entertainments to which I have alluded, consisted of the first appearance in Melbourne, of Mr. Charles Weightman, or as he professionally styles himself

NATATOR THE MAN FISH.

His performance was certainly very wonderful and was an attraction. He was succeeded by

VAL VOSE,

The ventriloquist who came out with "Ginger Blue" Smith's Variety Company from London same time back. Vose has been absent for some time in New Zealand, is a very young man and very clever. On his re-appearance at the Opera House, he showed that his powers were more matured, but the talent is there and it is only time and strict application that will land him at the top of the tree of ventriloquism. He is not equal to Davies, from want of experience only. Then on Vose's heels followed Monsieur Bosco, whose performances were very crude, but certainly very original. He disappeared after three nights. A season of English opera will succeed the close of the present series of opera bouffe. Mr. Lyster deserves the warm thanks of the music-loving portion of the colonies for his strenuous efforts to produce all the musical novelties of the old world at the earliest possible time here. I think it likely a farewell benefit will be tendered to him during this week. The United States Minstrels at the

APOLLO HALL,

Have achieved a well deserved success. It was a daring venture to take the hall when they did as it had such to a very low level, though in one of the best parts of the town. They are now in their fifteenth consecutive week and doing very good business. The "boys" consist of George Bockafeller, Thomas Campbell, Charles Holly, T. Buckley, H. Lloyd, Tommy Hudson, A. J. Oxest, O. Condurt and T. Wilkins. The "boys" seem to have made this place their "Minstrel Home" permanent, and they deserve it, they work very hard and act up to the old axiom that "Those who please to live must live to please."

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.

Has been tenanted for the past few weeks by Howarth's Hibernica of Irish life and scenery. Mr. Tim Cohan and his wife Marie Pornier and Mr. Harry Nickolson (Dutch delineator), and Nick Fieullade, leader of the band, meet with cordial receptions. It would be as well however, if Mr. Howarth provided himself with a gentleman as advance agent. It would, I am sure, add more to his success. Mr. Alphabet Williams, as this precious specimen of an agent styles himself, with his low vulgarity and contemptible airs, I will not believe to be a representative of American agents, in general.

THE COLOSSEUM

Has a variety company consisting of Annie Nesbitt, Alf. Massey and a few others of a very mediocre stamp.

THE KENNEDY FAMILY

Of Scotch players, reciters and singers have played a farewell season in this city at the Atheneum Hall, and made their final show at the Town Hall, on the Queen's brithday, May 24th, last. There were some thousands of people to hear their last programme "Twa Hours at Hame." They will leave Sydney for your Coast by the Macgregor on the 5th of this month. I can truthfully assert they are a clever troupe; but their entertainments are essentially Scotch.

THE CARANDINI TROUPE,

Consisting of Madame Caradini and her two daughter, and Messrs. Walter Shewin and Edwin Amery have just returned to Melbourne after a tour in the Renerna District. They intend taking a spell for a time. Miss Isabella Carandini and her husband George Cottevill, the clever monologuist have seceded from the Carandini corps and meditate a tour through Western Australia. It is seldom this, the last of English convict settlements—has a visit from any professionals or show people.

THE PROVINCES

Have been visited by an immense number of entertainments of all trades and descriptions during the last month, but the second city in the colony and the new See of a Bishopric

BALLARAT

Has had to put up with a series of concerts at the Mechanics Institute, by the local Harmonic Society. But next week a little life will be infused into their amusements by the opening of the new

ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

Which has been built at an expense of £13,000, by that liberal squatter and high-minded gentleman, Mr. Clarke, who lately on the death of his father, the Hon. J. S. Clarke, came into cash and landed prop-

LYSTER'S OPERA BOUFFE COMPANY.

During the season all the works which have been so popular in Melbourne, will be presented. A successful season is reasonably anticipated.

GEELONG

Has been bare of rational amusements lately. Tea fights, muffins worries, scandal, small talk (very), and Glory to God scrambles have had a very good innings, and are nearly played out—at least for a time. Last night Howarth's Hibernica, which has done a good season in Melbourne, opened to a tolerable house.

SANDHURST

Is very well provided with "relaxation." The Princes Theatre, under the Management of Mr. J. P. Macdonald has commenced what promises to be a good dramatic season. Among the company is found the names of Mr. H. Sefton (loaned from the Theatre Royal, Melbourne), Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lawrence (Miss Polly George, and who both lately returned from India and China), and Mr. W. G. Carey. The Theatre Royal (a variety show), has as attractions, Lance Lenton and Sally Lloyd (Miss Alice O'Brien), and Charles Rice. At the St. James Hall, Barlow—little Barlow, the original Blue-Tailed Fly, is doing big "biz," with a clever, but small troupe, Little Jessie and Messrs. Lewis and Westropp.

R. F. AND AMY STONE,

After their season at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, organized a company consisting of Miss Any Stone, Mr. H. F. Stone, Miss Emily Barrington, Mr. W. T. Kersh, Advance Agent, and W. Evans, Business Manager, to travel in the interior. Their entertainment is called "Our Country Cousin." They have already visited Daglesford, Taradale and at present are at Castlemaine.

THE "GRI" DRAMATIC COMPANY,

Under the management of Mr. Frank Towers, returned lately from a season in Tasmania, have taken to the up-country towns. The "star," Miss Rosa Towers, is a very clever child actress. The company has among its members Mr. S. Wolfe, Harry Power, E. C. Osborne, J. Martin, Nangry, Carolin and Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Towers and Miss Kate Douglas. They have visited Ballarat and Pleasant Creek, and will shortly appear at the Theatre Royal, Castlemaine.

THE MELBOURNE DRAMATIC COMPANY,

A "scratch" troupe, got together under difficult circumstances by Mr. J. D. Marsh, late prompter of the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, and who lately seceded from that establishment, are performing at the Theatre Royal, Stawell. Miss Julia Milne, is the "star," and in the company are Miss Emma Marsh and Messrs. J. Howe and W. M. Brown.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Lovers of amusement have no cause to complain of a dearth of amusements. There are traveling companies in the east, the west, the north and the south. In

SYDNEY

The centre of attraction is the Queen's Theatre, where

THE WILLIAMSON'S

Are carrying everything before them. At this present they are appearing in "Little Nell and the Marchioness," in which dual character Miss Maggie Moore is as successful as when in Melbourne. Their season in the city of the "constables" has been longer and quite as successful as their Melbourne tour. When they'll finish in Sydney is only in the womb of time.

THE OPERA SEASON,

At the Victoria, has been a gigantic failure from the initial to the final performance, last week. A second season is promised, and it is to be hoped with better results both to the public and the management. It must, however, be confessed that atmospheric influences on the voices of the singers was one of the main causes of failure. Signor Carmini Morley, who came here with Mme. Anna Bishop, has severed his connection with her and joined the company here, which consists of Signorini Zendni Gamboa, Tamburini Coy, Magi and Signors Dondi, Rosnati, Coy and Johnson. Signor Pompei is the Director, and Signors Georza and Zelman, Conductors. At the School of Arts, Mr. J. E. McDonough is showing his puppets,

THE MARIONETTES,

And report states, to good audiences. The

ST. GEORGE'S HALL,

In that city (Sydney), has been opened as a Variety Entertainment, with a very good company consisting of Miss Marian Saunders, Miss Lucy Osborne, Miss Blanche Neville, Norah Huxley, Messrs. James Filgate, Harry Flynn and Professor Heemecke (wizard). At

GOULBURN,

The Mechanics' Institute was, at last advices, tenanted by the Star Magnet troupe of Minstrels, including J. Oaten, Alic O'Brien, Charley Wallace, Harvey, Frank Lloyd and Johnny Burgess. The Theatre Royal at

NEWCASTLE

Is now open by Messrs. Edmund Holloway and Lachlan McGowan, with a very good dramatic company. Messrs. J. P. West, H. Jerdan, Charles Brown, G. R. Melville and Seymour, Mrs. L. McGowan, Amy Chambers and Mrs. J. P. West are amongst it. At

GRAFTON

The Lynch Family of Australian Bellringers, with Mr. Tom Marghetts (comique), have been giving a series of entertainments. On their return to Sydney they intend to book right through for California.

BATHURST,

As one time one of the most rising inland towns of N. S. W., has latterly been full of amusements, all of which have been well supported. The School of Arts is now occupied by Charley Sutton (late of Emerson's Minstrels), Dave Gardener, R. Ross, H. Martine and Professor Goulstone. The local papers teem with their praises as first-class "nigs." King, Bird & Blow's circus is also here, with George Gilham, J. Lewis, Katey Wallace and Fanny Yeamans in the programme.

TAMWORTH,

A very small inland town, is turned almost topsy-turvey through the visit of "Madame Sibley, the Mesmerist and Wonderful Woman." The people there bleed freely, and she "gobs the dollars."

ALBURY

telligence of the residents, the bulk of whom are of the "bucolic" persuasion. However, Burton & Taylor's circus has lately done a good stroke of "biz" in this place.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA

Is a very poor show place out of the principal city. At this present the Theatre Royal, Adelaide, is leased by Mr. G. B. Allen, the well-known composer and impressario, with the best English opera company that could possibly be brought together south of the line. Miss Alice May (Mrs. G. B. Allen) is the prima donna, and amongst the members of the company are Messrs. Armes, Beaumont, Hallam, Templeton, Vernon, Lester and Mitchell, Miss B. Harris, E. Lambert and Miss Fitzgerald. Signor Bisicciantі is the business manager, Mr. G. B. Allen conductor, and Mons. Fleury the leader of the orchestra. Signor Susini, the well-known basso, has lately joined the troupe from Melbourne. The company is to open shortly at the Opera House, Melbourne.

WHITE'S ROOMS

Have for some time been tenanted by the "Mirror of the Thames," a panorama brought over from your parts by Mr. Risley. He will shortly show it in Melbourne. The Adelaide papers speak highly of it. Risley gave place to the

HIBERNICON EMERALDS,

A new Hibernica ponorama and company, under the sole direction and proprietresship of Madame Claude Beatie. The company consists of Barry O'Mara (Peter Mansergh), Johnny Cowan, Shaw Cross, P. Gile, Thompson, (pianist), and Leaver, (advance agent), Miss Beatie and Bella Sutherland.

TASMANIA.

In Lanceston, all is dullness—not even a sing song to "chase the hours away," but at the Town Hal in Hobaston, a very good "crew" is pulling comfortably together. It consists of Miss Annie Lyons, Val Vose (ventriloquist), W. Saunders) harpist), Melchoior Winter (tenor), and Charles Weightman (the Man Fish).

QUEENSLAND

Has been very dull for the show folks lately, some small one horse entertainments getting "stuck" till better times. The dramatic season at the Queensland Theatre,

BRISBANE,

Under the management of Miss Surtees (Mrs. Tavares) and Mr. Morton Tavares closed to give place to

MADAME CORA,

The artist in Legerdemain, who, with her husband. T. W. Buslie, Master Johnny, Miss Alice Wren, Young America, and Mr. Martin Forde, are doing splendid "biz," the wind up of gifts is a great attraction. Mr. Mothersell, their agent, is one of the most energetic of his class. At the School of Arts,

MADAME ANNA BISHOP,

With Mr. Charles Lacelles and Beaumont Reed, the alto singer from St. James Hall, London, are giving concerts with, I am sorry to hear, moderate success. The old Theatre Royal at

ROCKAMPTON,

Is open with a very second-rate company, but the papers intimate that the players and audiences are equal in liveliness and talent. The corps dramatique consists of Mr. W. H. Newton, Messrs. Douglas, Wright, Wilson, Forde, Liveas, Miss E. Wilson, Miss C. Wilson and Miss Forde. The township of

WARWICK,

Like Albury, is only a canvas-show visiting town. Lahly Ashton's circus has shown there with Signor Farrari's dogs and monkeys, and Messrs. C. Lemont, Casterlemio, James Ashton, Kata Ashton and J. Armstrong (clown). CALL BOY.

Opera House.

Had Mr. Daly opened in "Divorce" it is possible that he would not have had to change theatres or have looked upon two uncrowded houses. Last evening, Platt's Hall was filled with a deeply interested audience, watching the action of Mr. Daly's stirring drama "Divorce" and critically scanning the magnificent dresses of Miss Davenport and Miss Jeffreys Lewis. The latter was received with decided enthusiasm and did much during the evening to deepen the good impression she had formerly made. To-night the company open their season at the Opera House, on Bush street. "Divorce" will again be played, when we shall take the opportunity of further noticing it.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The production of "Ernani" proved how possible it is to separate good music from, and enjoy it apart from its surroundings. The glorious numbers of this masterwork were listened to with enwrapt attention and obvious pleasure. Had the scenery and setting been of an equal standard with the performers, the sensuous charm of the opera might certainly have been increased, but the cultivated enjoyment of the music could scarcely have been increased. Mrs. Caroline Richings-Bernard sang Elvira with all that dramatic power and rich execution for which she has been and is still celebrated. Mr Carleton's Carlos was as magnificent in costuming as in singing, and Mr. Castle as Ernani, displayed unwonted strength and vigor. As to Mr. Conly's Silva, it is generally decided that he made a "hit, a palpable hit." Possessing a full, deep, powerful bass voice, he most fortunately knows how to use it. His "Foolish Dotard" (Infelice), was such a glorious rendition that an encore was most vociferously demanded. We look forward with great interest to the repetition of "Ernani." The house as usual was full and fashionable. To-night "The Marriage of Figaro."

California Theatre.

The attendance apparently increases instead of diminishing as the second week of "The Shaughraun" runs by and there now seems little doubt that it will be continued all during Mr. Boucicault's engagement. To-morrow, we shall resume our individual noticing, taking up the characters of Claire Ffolliott as played by Miss Pateman.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

On Sunday evening next, an extra performance of this troupe—induced by the success attending that of last Sunday night—will be given at the California Theatre. The bill is Offenbach's comic opera of "Robinson Crusoe," and will include a ballet of Savages, which was omitted at the former presentation of the opera at Plat's Hall, on account of the smallness of the stage.

Pacific Hall.

On Monday evening next, the Kennedy family, who have established a certain reputation in Australia, open here in their characteristic performance of "Twa Hours at Hame."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

To-morrow evening, Mr. Frank Mortimore, the efficient Stage Manager, of the variety theatre, takes a complimentary benefit, for which occasion an exceptionally attractive bill has been prepared.

Palace Variety Theatre.

"The Pride of Connamara" is in rehearsal and will soon be produced, meanwhile, the bills for each night are full of good things.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The Grand Trial Dance between Devoy, Stewart, Howard, and Adams the English Concertina solos, "The French Dancing Master" with Miss Louise Lee as Mons. Le Duc, all on the bill to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday the beautiful Albino children, the greatest freak of Nature occurring in the human species; Mlle. Victorine in her great act on the slackwire; Sig. Laviti, the Fire King, in his astounding repas infernale; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old-established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops, Breakfasts or Dinners, in town. Wait a Little.

An ingenious attempt was once made to escape from prison. Just before the prisoners marched from their shops, at the close of the day, one of their number, temporarily employed about the yard, managed to steal a coat and hat belonging to one of the instructors at the prison, and, in some unaccountable manner, also became possessed of a watch. Putting on the coat over his prison garb, and substituting the hat for the uniform cap, he walked boldly up to the door leading to the octagon, and rapped on it loudly. The officer responded, and partly opened the door. The prisoner in a business-like manner pulled out his watch, and looking at it, said : "I declare ! it's nearly five o'clock. I have only a few minutes to catch the cars. Wonder if I am right ? If so I must hurry along," at the same time attempting to put his foot on the threshold of the door. "Oh," returned the officer, "your watch is all right; but I hardly believe that you will catch the train to-night. Hadn't you better wait a few years longer ?"

Quiet Indeed !

"I shall insist upon a quiet and unostentatious wedding," said Miss Wriggle to her future mother-in-law. "Ma has ordered 1500 cards for the church, and only half as many for our reception at Delmonico's. Tiffany's man will see that the presents are arranged where all can see them, and I think Bernstein's is the best orchestra we can hire. I shall wear white silk, and my six bridesmaids white tulle. Pa says a bishop and two clergymen will be ample to perform the ceremony, and——" She paused for the mother-in-law elect had left the room to search for her son. There is a rumor that the engagement is off.

How artless ! When the crowded omnibus stops before a fine four-story mansion, one of the young women getting out invariably remarks, "Home at last !"

When may a chair be said to dislike you? When it can't bear you.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast ?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

FRIDAY....................JULY 16

[In consequence of the demand for yesterday's FIGARO containing "Call Boy's" long and interesting Australian letter, we have republished it in to-day's issue.]

OUR AUSTRALIAN LETTER.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

MELBOURNE, June 1st, 1875.

MY DEAR FIGARO: Since my epistle of last month we have had a sensation of what promises to be, to us, a very severe winter. Heavy rains, dews, and fogs, some of which latter would remind a London cockney of the good old "pea-soupers" of his native city. The general health of the people too has not been of the best—the mortality in the city, and suburbs, principally from measles and typhoid fever, has in a given time being greater than of yore. Adults suffering from the former like young children. These occurrences have, as you may well suppose, anything but a beneficial influence on theatrical and other kindred entertainments.

THE THEATRE ROYAL

however has, under the able management of Messrs. H. R. Harwood, R. Stewart, J. Hennings and G. Coppin, presented to patrons a succession of new artists and novelties. At the date of my last epistle Mr. Coppin's aid as a comedian was called in to back up the failure of the Stones; it had the deserved effect, he brought the business up at least fifty per cent. Mr. and Mrs. Stone have met with disappointment and did not even shine beside the members of the stock company. They must have either over-estimated their own abilities, or have been wrongly advised to come out here. As I have before averred nothing, either as regards artists, shows, or pieces, but those of the very first class will have any show of success here. But these will meet with commensurate success. I again advise artists who meditate paying us a visit to pause and think twice before making their determination to "solicit our suffrages." On the departure of the Stones, McCoppin, single-handed, took up the running until the appearance of the clever ventriloquist, Mr.

E. D DAVIES,

Who made a most successful hit, in fact, it is very generally acknowledged that out here his equal has never been seen. He closed with his benefit last Thursday week to a crammed house. The evening's entertainment was, however, greatly marred by Mr. Davies himself, who showed very evidently that he had but shortly before left a very "convivial dinner," and this too on his benefit night! Mr. Coppin has been compelled to close his engagement in consequence of the opening of Parliament, he being member of the Legislative Assembly of East Melbourne, and under a promise to his constituents that he would not perform at any time while the Houses were in sitting. The re-engagement of Australia's favorite actress,

MISS ELEANOR CAREY,

Followed the secession of Messrs. Coppin and Davies. This handsome and accomplished young lady made her re-appearance as Naomi Tighe in Robertson's comedy of "School," and was well received. This addition to their corps dramatique, adds greatly to its strength. It is now the strongest, south of the line, and includes Mr. Dampier, (the able stage manager), Mr. F. C. Appleton, (who has just taken his degrees at the Melbourne University), Mr. Stuart O'Brien, Mr. John Dunn, ("That Rascal Jack,") Mr. Arthur Garner, Mr. C. H. Taylor, Mr. H. Leston, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. H. Wardle, Mr. Maynard and Mr. J. R. Greville, Miss Cary, Miss Blanche Stammers (Mrs. A. Garner), Miss Katherine Russell (Mrs. Dampier), Miss Docy Stewart (Mrs. Collins), Miss Jenny Bryce (Mrs. F. C. Appleton), Miss Nellie Stewart, Mrs. Edwin Bryer and Miss Helene Paget. Last Saturday night, however, was the grand night of the season, as it was the occasion of the first production in this Colony of Boucicault's play

THE SHAUGHRAUN.

The house, long before the rising of the curtain, was crowded in all parts with a very large and fashionable audience whose applause from beginning to end was of the most hearty and vociferous character. The general verdict, both of the public and the press, has been expressed that it is one of the most complete and magnificent productions ever seen in Melbourne. The really splendid scenery painted by that premier of scenic artists,

MR. JOHN HENNINGS,

Baffles all description of its beauty. In it he has excelled all his previous efforts, and leads one to think that he has reached the summit of his profession. Loud and repeated calls were made for him during the evening, but, while feeling naturally gratified at such a warm recognition of his work, he modestly contented himself with the congratulations of his friends in the dress circle and cafe. The re-appearance, after an absence of some twelve years from Melbourne, of

MR. CHARLES WHEATLEIGH,

Was the signal for a real Australian reception. On his appearance, cheer upon cheer rang through the house, for a time disconcerting the actor and stopping the action of the play. Mr. Wheatleigh's Conn the Shaughraun, was an immense performance. He carried his audience with him right through, and met with an unmistakable "personal" call at the end of the play. Mr. Wheatleigh was excellently supported throughout by the company, especially so by

MR. A. DAMPIER,

Whose assumption of the character of Harvey Duff, the police spy, was a fine bit of artistic character acting. The cringing, fawning fear of the infuriated mob in the last scene being especially well delineated.

THE MANAGEMENT

deserve the hearty thanks for the generous liberality they have displayed in "getting up" the play. Neither trouble, time or money has been spared in its production, and its style would, I am certain, elicit the commendation of the great Dion Boucicault himself. Playwrights in your parts who may entrust Messrs. Harwood & Co. with any of their successful productions may rest assured they will do justice to them. The "Shaughraun" is destined for a long and successful run.

THE OPERA HOUSE

Has been doing a fair share of business lately, with opera bouffe, though the management with a wish to meet with public support has seen fit to engage supplementary attractions. The opera bouffe season will close with this week. Almost every work of that kind which has been a success in England, has been presented here. "Le Petit Faust," "Les Cents Vierges," "The Princess of Trebizonde," (revived), "La Perichole" and "Girofle-Girofla," (now running), have been successively played by the very talented company with whom Mr. Lyster has surrounded himself. It includes Miss Clara Thompson, (sister to Miss Lydia Thompson), Miss Jennie Winston (Mrs. Bell), Mr. J. H. Fox, Miss Bessie Royal, Miss Maggie Stewart and Miss Cassidy; Messrs. Henry Bracy (stage manager), Daniels, Kitts, H. Bell, George Leopold, and Darbyshire. In the production of the different operas bouffe

MR. W. S. LYSTER

Has been most prodigal, sparing no money to insure their proper presentation. At a large salary he has engaged that eccentric genius, but clever musician,

JOHN HILL, K. S. R. A. M.,

As the musical conductor and scorer of the operas. In this particular position and as an organist and violinist, Mr. Hill has not his equal in this hemisphere. The supplementary entertainments to which I have alluded, consisted of the first appearance in Melbourne, of Mr. Charles Weightman, or as he professionally styles himself

NATATOR THE MAN FISH.

His performance was certainly very wonderful and was an attraction. He was succeeded by

VAL VOSE,

The ventriloquist who came out with "Ginger Blue" Smith's Variety Company from London same time back. Vose has been absent for some time in New Zealand, is a very young man and very clever. On his re-appearance at the Opera House, he showed that his powers were more matured, but the talent is there and it is only time and strict application that will land him at the top of the tree of ventriloquism. He is not equal to Davies, from want of experience only. Then on Vose's heels followed Monsieur Bosco, whose performances were very crude, but certainly very original. He disappeared after three nights. A season of English opera will succeed the close of the present series of opera bouffe. Mr. Lyster deserves the warm thanks of the music-loving portion of the colonies for his strenuous efforts to produce all the musical novelties of the old world at the earliest possible time here. I think it likely a farewell benefit will be tendered to him during this week. The United States Minstrels at the

APOLLO HALL,

Have achieved a well deserved success. It was a daring venture to take the hall when they did as it had such to a very low level, though in one of the best parts of the town. They are now in their fifteenth consecutive week and doing very good business. The "boys" consist of George Bockafeller, Thomas Campbell, Charles Holly, T. Buckley, H. Lloyd, Tommy Hudson, A. J. Oxest, O. Condurt and T. Wilkins. The "boys" seem to have made this place their "Minstrel Home" permanent, and they deserve it, they work very hard and act up to the old axiom that "Those who please to live must live to please."

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.

Has been tenanted for the past few weeks by Howarth's Hibernica of Irish life and scenery. Mr. Tim Cohan and his wife Marie Pornier and Mr. Harry Nickolson (Dutch delineator), and Nick Fieullade, leader of the band, meet with cordial receptions. It would be as well however, if Mr. Howarth provided himself with a gentleman as advance agent. It would, I am sure, add more to his success. Mr. Alphabet Williams, as this precious specimen of an agent styles himself, with his low vulgarity and contemptible airs, I will not believe to be a representative of American agents, in general.

THE COLOSSEUM

Has a variety company consisting of Annie Nesbitt, Alf. Massey and a few others of a very mediocre stamp.

THE KENNEDY FAMILY

Of Scotch players, reciters and singers have played a farewell season in this city at the Atheneum Hall, and made their final show at the Town Hall, on the Queen's brithday, May 24th, last. There were some thousands of people to hear their last programme "Twa Hours at Hame." They will leave Sydney for your Coast by the Macgregor on the 5th of this month. I can truthfully assert they are a clever troupe; but their entertainments are essentially Scotch.

THE CARANDINI TROUPE,

Consisting of Madame Caradini and her two daughter, and Messrs. Walter Shewin and Edwin Amery have just returned to Melbourne after a tour in the Renerna District. They intend taking a spell for a time. Miss Isabella Carandini and her husband George Cottevill, the clever monologuist have seceded from the Carandini corps and meditate a tour through Western Australia. It is seldom this, the last of English convict settlements—has a visit from any professionals or show people.

THE PROVINCES

Have been visited by an immense number of entertainments of all trades and descriptions during the last month, but the second city in the colony and the new See of a Bishopric

BALLARAT

Has had to put up with a series of concerts at the Mechanics Institute, by the local Harmonic Society. But next week a little life will be infused into their amusements by the opening of the new

ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

Which has been built at an expense of £13,000, by that liberal squatter and high-minded gentleman, Mr. Clarke, who lately on the death of his father, the Hon. J. S. Clarke, came into cash and landed property valued at over three millions of money. The opening will be signalized by the first appearance in that gold-field city, of

LYSTER'S OPERA BOUFFE COMPANY.

During the season all the works which have been so popular in Melbourne, will be presented. A successful season is reasonably anticipated.

GEELONG

Has been bare of rational amusements lately. Tea fights, muffins worries, scandal, small talk (very), and Glory to God scrambles have had a very good innings, and are nearly played out—at least for a time. Last night Howarth's Hibernica, which has done a good season in Melbourne, opened to a tolerable house.

SANDHURST

Is very well provided with "relaxation." The Princes' Theatre, under the Management of Mr. J. P. Macdonald has commenced what promises to be a good dramatic season. Among the company is found the names of Mr. H. Sefton (loaned from the Theatre Royal, Melbourne), Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lawrence (Miss Polly George, and who both lately returned from India and China), and Mr. W. G. Carey. The Theatre Royal (a variety show), has as attractions, Lance Lenton and Sally Lloyd (Miss Alice O'Brien), and Charles Rice. At the St. James Hall, Barlow—little Barlow, the original Blue-Tailed Fly, is doing big "biz," with a clever, but small troupe, Little Jessie and Messrs. Lewis and Westropp.

H. F. AND AMY STONE,

After their season at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, organized a company consisting of Miss Amy Stone, Mr. H. F. Stone, Miss Emily Barrington, Mr. W. T. Kersh, Advance Agent, and W. Evans, Business Manager, to travel in the interior. Their entertainment is called "Our Country Cousin." They have already visited Daglesford, Taradale and at present are at Castlemaine.

THE "GRIF" DRAMATIC COMPANY,

Under the management of Mr. Frank Towers, returned lately from a season in Tasmania, have taken to the up-country towns. The "star," Miss Rosa Towers, is a very clever child actress. The company has among its members Mr. S. Wolfe, Harry Power, E. C. Osborne, J. Martin, Nangry, Carolin and Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Towers and Miss Kate Douglas. They have visited Ballarat and Pleasant Creek, and will shortly appear at the Theatre Royal, Castlemaine.

THE MELBOURNE DRAMATIC COMPANY,

A "scratch" troupe, got together under difficult circumstances by Mr. J. D. Marsh, late prompter of the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, and who lately seceded from that establishment, are performing at the Theatre Royal, Stawell. Miss Julia Milne, is the "star," and in the company are Miss Emma Marsh and Messrs. J. Howe and W. M. Brown.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Lovers of amusement have no cause to complain of a dearth of amusements. There are traveling companies in the east, the west, the north and the south. In

SYDNEY

The centre of attraction is the Queen's Theatre, where

THE WILLIAMSON'S

Are carrying everything before them. At this present they are appearing in "Little Nell and the Marchioness," in which dual character Miss Maggie Moore is as successful as when in Melbourne. Their season in the city of the "constables" has been longer and quite as successful as their Melbourne tour. When they'll finish in Sydney is only in the womb of time.

THE OPERA SEASON,

At the Victoria, has been a gigantic failure from the initial to the final performance, last week. A second season is promised, and it is to be hoped with better results both to the public and the management. It must, however, be confessed that atmospheric influences on the voices of the singers was one of the main causes of failure. Signor Carmini Morley, who came here with Mme. Anna Bishop, has severed his connection with her and joined the company here, which consists of Signorini Zenoni Gamboa, Tamburini Coy, Magi and Signors Dondi, Rosnati, Coy and Johnson. Signor Pompei is the Director, and Signors Georza and Zelman, Conductors. At the School of Arts, Mr. J. E. McDonough is showing his puppets,

THE MARIONETTES,

And report states, to good audiences. The

ST. GEORGE'S HALL,

In that city (Sydney), has been opened as a Variety Entertainment, with a very good company consisting of Miss Marian Saunders, Miss Lucy Osborne, Miss Blanche Neville, Norah Huxley, Messrs. James Filgate, Harry Flynn and Professor Heemecke (wizard). At

GOULBURN,

The Mechanics' Institute was, at last advices, tenanted by the Star Magnet troupe of Minstrels, including J. Oaten, Alic O'Brien, Charley Wallace, Harvey, Frank Lloyd and Johnny Burgess. The Theatre Royal at

NEWCASTLE

Is now open by Messrs. Edmund Holloway and Lachlan McGowan, with a very good dramatic company. Messrs. J. P. West, H. Jerdan, Charles Brown, G. R. Melville and Seymour, Mrs. L. McGowan, Amy Chambers and Mrs. J. P. West are amongst it. At

GRAFTON

The Lynch Family of Australian Bellringers, with Mr. Tom Marghetts (comique), have been giving a series of entertainments. On their return to Sydney they intend to book right through for California.

BATHURST,

As one time one of the most rising inland towns of N. S. W., has latterly been full of amusements, all of which have been well supported. The School of Arts is now occupied by Charley Sutton (late of Emerson's Minstrels), Dave Gardener, R. Ross, H. Martine and Professor Goulstone. The local papers teem with their praises as first-class "nigs." King, Bird & Blow's circus is also here, with George Gilham, J. Lewis, Katey Wallace and Fanny Yeamans in the programme.

TAMWORTH,

A very small inland town, is turned almost topsy-turvey through the visit of "Madame Sibley, the Mesmerist and Wonderful Woman." The people there bleed freely, and she "gobs the dollars."

ALBURY

Is a very so-so town. A circus or canvas show is about up to the standard of the intelligence of the residents, the bulk of whom are of the "bucolic" persuasion. However, Burton & Taylor's circus has lately done a good stroke of "biz" in this place.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA

Is a very poor show place out of the principal city. At this present the Theatre Royal, Adelaide, is leased by Mr. G. B. Allen, the well-known composer and impressario, with the best English opera company that could possibly be brought together south of the line. Miss Alice May (Mrs. G. B. Allen) is the prima donna, and amongst the members of the company are Messrs. Armes, Beaumont, Hallam, Templeton, Vernon, Lester and Mitchell, Miss B. Harris, E. Lambert and Miss Fitzgerald. Signor Bisciccianti is the business manager, Mr. G. B. Allen conductor, and Mons. Fleury the leader of the orchestra. Signor Susini, the well-known basso, has lately joined the troupe from Melbourne. The company is to open shortly at the Opera House, Melbourne.

WHITE'S ROOMS

Have for some time been tenanted by the "Mirror of the Thames," a panorama brought over from your parts by Mr. Risley. He will shortly show it in Melbourne. The Adelaide papers speak highly of it. Risley gave place to the

HIBERNICON EMERALDS,

A new Hibernica ponorama and company, uncer the sole direction and proprietresship of Madame Claude Beatie. The company consists of Barry O'Mara (Peter Mansergh), Johnny Cowan, Shaw Cross, P. Gile, Thompson, (pianist), and Leaver, (advance agent), Miss Beatie and Bella Sutherland.

TASMANIA.

In Lanceston, all is dullness—not even a sing song to "chase the hours away," but at the Town Hall in Hobaston, a very good "crew" is pulling comfortably together. It consists of Miss Annie Lyons, Val Vose (ventriloquist), W. Saunders) harpist), Melchoior Winter (tenor), and Charles Weightman (the Man Fish).

QUEENSLAND

Has been very dull for the show folks lately, some small one horse entertainments getting "stuck" till better times. The dramatic season at the Queensland Theatre,

BRISBANE,

Under the management of Miss Surtees (Mrs. Tavares), and Mr. Morton Tavares closed to give place to

MADAME CORA,

The artist in Legerdemain, who, with her husband. T. W. Buslie, Master Johnny, Miss Alice Wren, Young America, and Mr. Martin Forde, are doing splendid "biz," the wind up of gifts is a great attraction. Mr. Mothersell, their agent, is one of the most energetic of his class. At the School of Arts,

MADAME ANNA BISHOP,

With Mr. Charles Lacelles and Beaumont Reed, the alto singer from St. James Hall, London, are giving concerts with, I am sorry to hear, moderate success. The old Theatre Royal at

ROCKAMPTON,

Is open with a very second-rate company, but the papers intimate that the players and audiences are equal in liveliness and talent. The corps dramatique consists of Mr. W. H. Newton, Messrs. Douglas, Wright, Wilson, Forde, Liveas, Miss E. Wilson, Miss C. Wilson and Miss Forde. The township of

WARWICK,

Like Albury, is only a canvas-show visiting town. Lahly Ashton's circus has shown there with Signor Farrari's dogs and monkeys, and Messrs. C. Lemont, Casterlemio, James Ashton, Kata Ashton and J. Armstrong (clown).

Maguire's New Theatre.

Last night, "The Marriage of Figaro," was repeated to a full house and in as capital a manner as on Monday last. To-night "The Bohemian Girl" will be repeated with an entire change of cast to that given on Tuesday. This evening Mme. Rosewald will sing Arline, Miss Annandale the Gypsy Queen, Mr. Carleton Count Arnheim, Mr. Peakes Devilshoof and Mr. Maas Thaddeus.

California Theatre.

Miss Claire Ffolliott like little Moya Doolan, has also a love affair on hand, but she conducts it very differently. In Moya's case it is simply the love of Gill for Jack, but in Miss Claire's case it is the love of a Montague for a Capulet. In the first place the man she loves is the captain of an English regiment, in the second place he is scouring the country to arrest her brother, and in the third place he arrests her brother under her very eyes. It is against all these contending facts that Miss Ffolliott's love has to strive and thrive, and Miss Pateman's portrayal of the conflicting feelings is one of the most charming things we have seen her do. Certes, the part is not a long one nor a great one, but it calls for the display of much natural feeling or it would not stir the hearts of the people. Her love-making is neither stilted nor stagy. Tenderness has it now and now dislike has the upper hand, and out of all this wavering there spring two or three of the prettiest scenes in "The Shaughraun." What can be prettier for instance than the scene between the Captain and Miss Claire in the priest's cottage or, that when she tells her brother to "take Father Doolan's arm." Altogether, the character is a charming one, and—to this all say, "aye"—charmingly played.

"Standing room only" is now the stereotype notice concerning the house.

Opera House.

There seems to be no doubt as to the wisdom of the change from Platt's Hall to this cosy little theatre. The peculiarly quiet style of acting which is the fashion with Mr. Daly's company was ineffective in the large building, but in this theatre where there is little distance between actors and audience, all the points tell, be they never so quietly given. One, and the chief result of the migration, was seen in the crowded house present. Another was the increased warmth of the actors, and the third was the complete thawing out of the audience. "Divorce" was better played here than at Platt's Hall, and in consequence, was attentively followed by the house, whilst those in the cast—notably, Miss Jeffreys Lewis as Miss Fanny Ten Eyck, Mrs. Gilbert as Mrs. Judge Kemp, Mr. Lewis as Templeton Jitt, and Miss Davenport as Lu Ten Eyck,—were frequently and warmly applauded. To-night, "Frou-Frou."

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

On Sunday evening next, an extra performance of this troupe—induced by the success attending that of last Sunday night—will be given at the California Theatre. The bill is Offenbach's comic opera of "Robinson Crusoe," and will include a ballet of Savages, which was omitted at the former presentation of the opera at Plat's Hall, on account of the smallness of the stage.

Pacific Hall.

On Monday evening next, the Kennedy family, who have established a good reputation in Australia, as may be seen from "Call Boy's" letter on another page, open here in their characteristic performance of "Twa Hours at Hame."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

This evening, Frank Mortimore, the stage manager, takes a benefit. The house will, of course, be packed. A bill of extra attractions has been prepared and will be given. A host of volunteers.

Palace Variety Theatre.

There is a capital bill for this place of amusement to-night, including Julian Adams and his concertina, Sam Baylis and his shadows, Alli Barbee and his "cold wittles," and Geo. Thompson and his fun.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"The Brand of Shame" has made a hit, thanks to the capital acting of Hughey Robinson as Mike Murphy, and Vinnie Welch as Mary Murphy. There are many other good acts and a scope of specialties.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday the beautiful Albino children, the greatest freak of Nature occurring in the human species; Mlle. Victorine in her great act on the slackwire; Sig. Laviti, the Fire King, in his astounding repas infernale; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze.

Notes.

"Wager" is informed that "Sothern of 'Lord Dundreary' fame," is an Englishman, although his professional success was first assured in America.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old-established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops, Breakfasts or Dinners, in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges Moderate. D. B. Magee, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. N. B. Open to 2:30 A. M. YOUR KISS.

You kissed me love, do you remember
  The scene that is so fresh to me?
A bitter night—it was December—
  Eight years ago! So long, ah me!
The Winter wind blew wildly o'er us,
  I felt no chill within your arm,
My cheek against your shoulder rested;
  E'en now I sometimes feel the charm,
The thrill, half rapture, and half shame,
  The pressure of your bearded lips,
The warm breath that so quickly came
  And thrilled me to my finger tips,
And while I turned my face away,
  And shivered 'neath your ardent touch;
Half owning love's delicious sway:
  Half fearing that you knew as much.
So near me then! To-day we are
  As widely parted as can be.
You east; I west; between us both
  A thousand leagues of land and sea,
For you, a home 'neath Egypt's palms,
  Or tracking Afric's desert sand,
And not one lure to tempt your thoughts
  Back to the sunlit Western land,
Where one beloved in other days
  Still waits through years of wearing pain,
And wears your kiss upon her lips,
  For you to come and take again.

Done Brown.

Brown, on his first journey per coach not long ago, worried the driver beside whom he sat with incessant childish questions about everything on the road. At last he got his quietus thus:

Driver—"There's been a woman lying in that house more than a month, and they haven't buried her yet?"

Brown—"Not buried her yet! Pray tell me why not?"

Driver—"Because she isn't dead."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 682 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called LOS BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods. This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

OUR AUSTRALIAN LETTER.

[APPENDIX.]

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW ZEALAND

Is fast becoming the best and most remunerative of the Australian group of colonies for stock people and of a necessity for stars. The Princess Theatre at

DUNEDIN

Is at present leased by Messrs. J. B. Steele and Keogh, who are re-organizing their company for another campaign. "Formosa" is shortly to be produced.

THE FAKIR OF OULU

Is nightly filling the Queen's Theatre. The Entranced Lady and the Minehaha eliciting universal applause and approbation. Mr. J. C. Rainer is traveling with Dr. Silvester (The Fakir), and is well content with the result of his venture. In this city, (Dunedin), is also showing Batchelder's panorama of "Paradise Lost." The Theatre Royal, at

WELLINGTON,

Is now open with Miss May Howard, Mr. G. Collier, and very good working company. The "New Magdalen" has been lately added to Miss Howard's repertoire. A streak of luck lately came in her way, in this wise: When she left Sydney for New Zealand, she carelessly left her jewels and jewel box in her sleeping room at her residence in the former place. Thinking her maid had put them away, she gave no thought for them till required. Latter enquiries were set on foot, and until now, leading to nothing. Within these last few weeks they were discovered in the room where she had left them, and forwarded to her intact. She values them at over £2000.

AUCKLAND

Has been favored with a visit from Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Case, (Miss Gracie Egerton), but the attendance at the Prince Theatre during their engagement, has been very limited. They are played out. The running was taken up by Mr. and Mrs. George Darrell, who have lately produced their original play of "The Four Fetes." Mr. and Mrs. Hoskins (Florence Colville), have gone South, and will shortly appear in Dunedin.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Some few months back, a movement was set on foot by Mr. Stuart O'Brien, a prominent member of the Melbourne Theatre Royal company, to raise funds to remove at her request, Madame Albertine, to her native place, New York. Through his untiring exertions, and the generous assistance and timely aid of the American Consul, T. Adamson, Esq., and the Captain of the U. S. Corvette, Swatara, a comfortable passage was found for the poor blind, who for years has been an inmate of the Ballarat Benevolent Asylum. This is, but one of many acts of Mr. O'Brien's kindness. He is a man who really "does good by stealth, and blushes to find it fame."

THE OBITUARY

Of the month contains the names of Mrs. Stuart O'Brien, wife of the gentleman above spoken of. Mrs. O'Brien, who for years has been a great sufferer, passed away without apparent pain. She was an admirable actress of certain "old woman" parts, and her performance some years ago of Mrs. Willoughby, when Mr. Joe Jefferson played the "Ticket of Leave Man," will not be readily forgotten by those who witnessed it. Mr. and Mrs. Ray, very excellent artists in this colony in the early "diggings" time, died lately in Adelaide, where they had been located for some years. Mr. Ray died rather suddenly, and his partner followed him within a week. Both were pretty well up in years.

CALL BOY.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

SANDWICH ISLAND CORRESPONDENCE

[A correspondent sends us the following interesting news dated Honolulu, June 25th:]

DEAR FIGARO:—Mlle Ilma De Murska stopped at this place en route to Australia, and gave a concert on the evening of the 29th ult., which was largely patronized by all classes and all shades from the clear complexioned European to the molasses-colored Kanaka. There being no suitable concert hall in the place, one of the large Kanaka churches, capable of holding several thousand people, was obtained. The party landed from the steamer at noon on the 29th, and the energetic DeVivo lost no time in his preparations for that evening, as the steamer was to leave on the following afternoon. The residents were quite enthusiastic over the arrival of the fair Hungarian, and several prominent citizens interested themselves in assisting toward perfecting the necessary arrangements, which De Vivo, with all his reputed energy, would otherwise have failed to accomplish. Even though the place is small if there is anything the residents of Honolulu can thoroughly appreciate, it is music, and on this occasion they turned out en masse to listen to the fair young Nightingale, of whose reputation they had heard so much, but had little dreamed, until recently, of listening to. The price of seats ranged from $1.00 to $2,50, and although an unusual figure for Honolulu, was not demurred at. The furore was even greater than that created by Catherine Hayes, some twenty years ago, en route to Australia. Signor Giammona, the flautist, and Signor Ristori, buffo and basso, assisted DeMurska. The performance and hair of the former were much admired, but the latter was considered an unsympathetic old buffer, whose sonorous sounds served only as a contrast to bring out more sweetly the thrilling warble of the Hungarian songstress. The King's fine band, composed of young Kanakas, under the leadership of Mr. Henry Berger, an accomplished German musician, furnished some delightful instrumental music during the evening King Kalakaua and handsome Mrs. Kalakaua, with their usual retinue of attendants, and Admiral Almy of the U. S. ship Pensacola, with a large number of Uncle Sam's handsome naval officers, escorting the beauty and fashion of Honolulu, also attended in strong force. It was regretted that a scond concert was impossible. The DeMurska party were afterward entertained at the Palace by the King and Queen, and a scene of festivity was kept up until a late hour in the morning. The Hungarian's visit was no doubt as pleasant to herself and agreeable to the diminutive but ubiquitous DeVivo as it was enjoyable to the people of Honolulu. In this connection, it is much regretted that Honolulu is unable to boast of a concert hall or theatre. The ruins of what was once a cosy little theatre—where Edwin Booth and others once "strutted their brief hour," and where Charley Backus, Jerry Bryant, Sher. Campbell and other sons of Momus once held forth—still exists, but is liable at any time to collapse from extreme old age, although it is occasionally patched up for use. But it is seldom occupied of late for any first-class entertainment, and the public is somewhat shy of running any risks of entering its doors. In fact, a life policy would be liable to become forfeited, should an insured individual frequent the place.

Yours, EN PASSANT.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

Amusements, Etc.

California Theatre.—To-night closes the second week of "The Shaughraun," and as last night's house was the biggest for this week, there seems little doubt that the business for the next will keep up to the same wonderful standard

Opera House.—"Frou-Frou," as given by the Daly Fifth Avenue Theatre company at this place of amusement was a clever and appreciated performance. We unfortunately have not time or space to-day to be more explicit. This afternoon "Frou-Frou," this evening "Divorce," and on Monday that big attraction "The Big Bonanza."

Maguire's New Theatre.—"The Bohemian Girl" drew the usual "full and fashionable house" Whilst in some respects, the performance was better than that of Tuesday evening, in others it was lacking, but taken altogether the opera was delightfully given This afternoon, last performance of "Mignon," this evening, "Il Trovatore," and to-morrow evening "Martha."

Mexican Infantile Opera Company. To-morrow evening, an extra performance of this troupe—induced by the success attending that of last Sunday night—will be given at the California Theatre The bill is Offenbach's comic opera of "Robinson Crusoe," and will include a ballet of Savages, which was omitted at the former presentation of the opera at Platt's Hall, on account of the smallness of the stage.

Pacific Hall.—The Kennedy Family. On Monday evening next, the Kennedy family, who have established a good reputation in Australia, open here in their characteristic performance of "Twa Hours at Hame." From their various programmes we should imagine their entertainments would be of the most pleasing nature.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.—Frank Mortimore's benefit was a big one, as of course it should be. The principal features of this evening's programme are the old man and woman act "We're Seventy-Five To-day," by Mortimer and Kimle, and "The Yankee Boys," by Swain and West.

Palace Variety Theatre.—The bill for this evening contains a whole catalogue of attractions, from which we select Julian Adams' concertina solos, Miss Louise Lee's lightning changes, George C. Thompson's specialties, Alli Barbee's salamander feast, and Sam Baylis' living shadows.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.—This evening, Billy Everton, the celebrated banjo soloist, and specialty artist, will make his first appearance, Ned Barry will have a new budget of songs, "The Brand of Shame" will be continued and Harris and Carroll have a new act.

Woodward's Gardens—Attractions. On Saturday and Sunday the beautiful Albino children, the greatest freak of Nature occurring in the human species; Mlle. Victorine in her great act on the slackwire; Sig. Laviti, the Fire King, in his astounding repas infernale; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo in their lightning trapeze.

The Cliff House.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

NOTES.

The Post man indulged in a sensational article Wednesday evening, purporting to show how Daly's telegram had chased Maguire all over the country, and how so much had been paid by the one Manager to the other and so much had been settled between the two. We have been requested to announce that the telegraphic chasing is all nonsense, that Tom Maguire, Jr., on the receipt of Mr. Daly's proposition immediately telegraphed to the hotel in New York at which Tom Maguire, Sr., is staying, that he received an immediate answer and that the $2,500 said to have been agreed upon as the rent for the Opera House, is nowhere near the correct figures either this way or that way. A pretty card house the Post man had built, but Pouf! and the whole thing has gone down with the leg of a Knave of Hearts peeping out from underneath the ruins!

Little Nell has been doing well in Sacramento. She received a rousing farewell benefit on the 5th, playing "Nan, the Good for Nothing." On Monday evening last, she gave a benefit performance in aid of the Congregation Benai Israel. On Tuesday evening, the 13th, there was a large house at Metropolitan Theatre to hear Mr. A. P. Burbank, the reader.

San Jose has been absolutely glutted with amusements. On the night of the 9th a concert was given at the Music Hall by a singing society, the cantata of "The Flower Queen" forming the bill. On the 11th, Prof. Rice gave an instance of his mind-reading powers at the Opera House. On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings (13th and 14th), the Mexican Infantile Opera Bouffe Company gave two entertainments, playing "La Grande Duchesse" and "Robinson Crusoe." Lastly, on Monday next there is to be a grand gymnastic tournament at the Opera House by the San Jose Turn-Verein, under the direct superintendence and leadership of Mr. Louis Gerichten. After this who shall say that San Jose is not a show place?

But if San Jose has been dissipated what has Grass Valley been, where, on the 10th, a grand Ice Cream Social was given by the Methodists? Induced by the great success attending the entertainment, there is much talk of getting up——another.

Santa Barbara has also had its share of shows. On Friday, the 9th, the Denin-Sawtelle Troupe gave a performance at Lobero's Theatre of "Pygmalion and Galatea." The "biz." was, however, small. On Saturday "The Gilded Age" was given to a much better house. On Monday, the 12th, the Carreno-Sauret Troupe gave a most successful concert. Jackley's Circus opened there yesterday.

Portland has not been behindhand in amusements either. On the 7th Mr. Thomas Whiffen took a successful benefit at the New Market Theatre. On the 10th Mr. Frank Gilder gave his farewell concert at the Masonic Hall. One of the features of the programme was Gilder's arrangement of the Hammond Revival Melodies. The troupe, which includes Mr. Whiffen, Miss Blanche Galton and Mrs. Babcox left for Victoria on Tuesday, the 13th, where they gave a concert on Wednesday. They are, by this time homeward bound for San Francisco Miss Phelps

The American Burlesque Opera Troupe have their home in Eugene City There, less than a fortnight ago, did they give two performances, generously presenting the State University the entire proceeds of both shows—amounting to fifty dollars.

Borthwick Reid, the Scotch athlete and champion swordsman arrived from the East on Wednesday He is under engagement to appear at Woodward's Gardens

We have been desired to give the following correct account of the "difficulty" concerning the annulled engagement of the Oates Company at the Park Theatre, N. Y. A Mr Charles Culver, it seems, presented himself at the Park recently, and proposed to lease that house for two weeks with the privilege, representing himself as the authorized agent of Mrs. James A. Oates, with whom he claimed to be in constant communication. After the contract was signed, Mr. Culver directed Mr. Cool White, of the Park, to engage chorus and other persons necessary to produce the operas. Culver then proceeded to advertise the city extensively for July 5. Meanwhile there was no money forthcoming, as agreed with Manager Fulten. This induced direct telegraphic communication with Mrs. Oates, who replied through her business manager, repudiating Mr. Culver, and denying his assumed connection with her company. The season closed at Hooley's Opera House, Chicago, on the 3d. Mrs. Oates is at present at Long Branch.

"Ultimo," as played by the Hooley Comedy Company at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, only ran four nights, being withdrawn on Thursday evening, July 8th. On Friday, the 9th, "David Garrick" and "Jenny Lind" were produced with O'Neill as Garrick and Miss Baker as Ada Ingot; Crane, of course, playing Granby Gag, and Miss Katie Mayhew, Jenny Lind, in the farce. An extra performance of "Ultimo" was given on Saturday afternoon, and in the evening, Miss Louise Hawthorne made her first appearance as Nelly in "Lost in London." On Sunday, "David Garrick" and "Jenny Lind," and on Monday, 12th, "The Two Orphans." As this is the first time it has been produced on the Pacific Coast outside of San Francisco, and the first time the Hooley Company have played it we give the cast as a matter of record: Chevalier Maurice De Vaudry, James O'Neill; Count De Livieres, Minister of Police, H. M. Brown; Picard, Valet to the Chevalier, W. H. Crane; Jacques Frochard, an Outlaw, A. H. Hastings; Pierre Frochard, the Cripple, his brother, M. A. Kennedy; Marquis de Presles, E. J. Buckley; La Fleur, in service of the Marquis de Presles, J. O. Sefton; Doctor of the Hospital of Louis and La Salpetriere, John Jack; Martin, Citizen of Paris, J. W. Wilkes; Henriette, Louise, (the two Orphans), Miss Louise Hawthorne and Miss Katy Mayhew; La Frochard, Mother of Jacques and Pierre, Mrs. Chas. Edmonds; Sister Genevieve, Matron of La Saltpetriere, Miss Annie Firnin; Sister Therese, Miss Adamson; Marienne, an Outcast, Miss Emily Baker. The play ran four hours. Miss Hawthorne, Miss Katie Mayhew and Mrs. Edmonds have been very highly spoken of by the local press. It should be mentioned that Mr. Hooley produces "The Two Orphans" by arrangement with Mr. John McCullough.

It is very probable that Miss Alice Harrison will be soubrette at the California Theatre, in place of Miss Jennie Lee.

Emerson's Minstrels close at the Boston Theatre this evening, play at the Academy, Providence, on the 19th; Albany, 26th; Dayton, Ohio, August 6th and 7th.

Tony Pastor's troupe are playing at Toronto this evening, and may be expected here early in September.

About the same time G. L. Fox's "Humpty Dumpty" troupe will open at the California Theatre.

We are informed that no less than fifty three ladies have made applications to Manager Daly for places in his company next season. Of these eighteen offered to pay for the privilege.

From our usual weekly bulletin of the progress of the two new theatres, our readers will learn that at the Mission street Grand Opera House, the floors of the orchestra, orchestra circle, family circle and gallery are in, with the backs for the seats in the last two circles. The arch of the proscenium is sprung and presents a remarkably graceful appearance. Work is now rapidly going on with the ceiling, which will be boarded, canvassed and painted, but not plastered. The whole ceiling, being in a hemispherical form, will be in effect a huge sounding board. On the stage everything is activity, and the machinery for moving the enormous scenes is being added to daily.

At the theatre on Market street astonishing advances have been made. The beams and joists of the stage are in place, the orchestra floor is set, and the girders for the second circle are in place. There seems nothing rash in saying that the theatre will be opened early in October. For the hotel there have also rapid advances been made, the iron frontage of the ground floor all along the line of Eddy street being up.

On Friday, August the 6th, Mr. George Ciprico makes his first appearance at the California Theatre in his play of "The Bohemian" This play was formerly known as "Edmund Kean," but the name has been changed in consequence of pending arrangements with Mr. Barton Hill for the purchase of another play with the title "Kean." This latter was translated by Barton Hill from Dumas' celebrated play of that name for Edwin Booth, but Booth found his time too much occupied with "Macbeth" and "Hamlet" to do "Kean" justice. And so Booth relegated his interest in the play to Barton Hill, who has offered it to Ciprico, who will very possibly bring it out in the Eastern cities.

At the C. T. B. C. Picnic on Thursday, the theatre team were the winners in the six-oar contest with the Mystic Club, by something like half an inch.

Sam Wetherill has quit theatricals and taken to politics. He is now before the public as candidate for Supervisor of the Fifth Ward, and as he was Police Judge for two years and Committing Magistrate for a twelvemonth at Sacramento, he certainly has the claim of long acquaintance with municipal duties.

After concluding their season the principal members of the English Opera Company now playing here, will take a short rest and then under the prima donnaship of Miss Kellogg, open the Fall season at Booth's Theatre, New York, October 4th. Among the operas to be presented during the season will be "The Lily of Killarney," "Crown Diamonds" "Ballo en Maschera" and "L'Etoile du Nord." We very much hope that the present Company during their season here will also treat us to the above.

In our advertisement columns will be seen a "special notice," by which the patrons of the English Opera are notified that the only places where seats are placed on sale by the Management, are at Sherman & Hyde's Music Store and the Box Office of Maguire's New Theatre, and that they are in no way responsible for the transactions of speculators who buy seats and sell them at a premium. But would not the evil be entirely obviated by squelching the speculator? If he be an excresence, cut him off.

At the conclusion of Mr. Boucicault's engagement, Mr. John McCullough accompanies him to Redenti, says the N. Y Mercury, "has recently joined the Kellogg English Opera Troupe at San Francisco, as a prima donna, and has created a profound impression." When? or was it of disappointment?

Bartley Campbell is at present in Brooklyn, completing arrangements for the opening of the Opera House, with a dramatic company. We should not be very much surprised if that company were at present playing "The Two Orphans" in Virginia City.

The left wing of Daly's Fifth Avenue Company, is at present playing at Toronto.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

A new dramatic and literary club was organized at a meeting held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, July 1st. It is called the "Figaro," and its members will meet at 44 West Twenty-seventh street. The following officers were elected for the present year: President, John Brougham; Treasurer, George Brandreth; Manager, E. C Delmar; Secretary, John A. Mack; Cashier, D. B. Doty.

Mr. George Belmore, a noted English comedian, will be seen in "The Flying Scud" at Booth's Theatre, next season.

John Brougham is engaged on a new play for Miss Clara Morris.

Carl Rosa will not come to America this season.

Strakosch sails from London for New York on August 14th.

Charles M. Barras, author of the "Black Crook," left more than $43,000 of personal estate. Royalties from performances of the "Black Crook" since his death have added $9,225 more, making the estate amount to nearly $52,000. Debts not collected, fees and multitudinous other expenditures deducted, leave $37,671 to be distributed. The "Black Crook" as property, fell equally to Barras' four brothers, and has been traded among them until Alfred owns three-fourths of it and Washington the other fourth. John sold his interest to the administrator, Hiram, for $1,000, and Alfred bought the half, then owned by Hiram, for $3,000. The play netted William Wheatley about $150,000, and as much more to Jarrett & Palmer, so that the profits on the "Black Crook," in New York, and out of it, must have reached over half a million Barras realized over $104,000 out of the piece but lost over half of it in outside specelations.

Only one specialty theatre remains open on Broad way, the Olympic, and that because it has been rendered pleasantly cool by the operation of steam fans in the auditorium.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq arrived at Liverpool, July 12th.

Mr. and Mrs. Shiel Barry left for England, June 26th. Shiel Barry, will play Harvey Duff, in "The Shaughraun," which is to be produced at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, September 4th, but we doubt whether he will play it better than does Mr. Pateman.

Joe Jefferson and his two daughters sailed for Liverpool, June 30th, to be absent two years.

An English Opera Troupe, under the Management of Fryer & Colville, will soon appear at Wallack's Theatre, N. Y.

Mr. Stephen Fiske has left town for Long Branch and Saratoga and the newspaper men are happy.

"Girofle-Girofla" was replaced at Robinson Hall, July 12th, by an English verson of "Chilperic" and "La Rose d'Auvergne."

Colonel Raymond-Sellers will appear at the Union Square Theatre, New York, next month, and Barry Sullivan will make his bow at Booth's Theatre, at about the same time.

The Bowery has been leased by Mr. H. C. Husted for a period of five years. The theatre closed for repairs on the 6th, and will reopen August 21st, with the Parisian drama of "Rose Michel" and the new English play of the "Face in the Moonlight." The "Tichborne Claimant" is among the novelties to be produced at this house during the coming season.

Out of twenty-three regular places of amusement in New York, all but three have yielded up the ghost to the absorbing influence of old Sol and Gilmore's Concert Garden. This latter place has asserted an irresistible magnetism with the beaumonde of the city. The treasurer's books display the astounding fact that over one hundred and fifty thousand admission tickets were sold at the various offices during the first three weeks of its existence, besides a nightly sale of over one hundred private boxes. The receipts have averaged twenty-eight thousand dollars weekly, since the opening night.

Alterations of the most elaborate and extensive character are being made in the stage of the Acadmey of Music for the forthcoming Kiralfy Sensation of "Around the World." Unlike other scenic works, the success of "Around the World" will be made to depend a great deal upon its artistic refinement as a dramatic composition and the ability of each individul engaged in its representation. The Kiralfy Brothers state the initial performance will occur about August 16th.

In the U. S. Supreme Court, 28th, Josh Hart's counsel replied to the complaint of Boucicault, that his play, "The Shaughraun" had been stolen by Hart, filing a demurrer, which averred that the complaint did not properly allege that "The Shaughraun" was a copyrighted production, nor show wherein "The Skibbeah" (Hart's play) was plagiaristic. Judge Woodruff overruled this demurrer last Spring, and granted a temporary injunction, upon terms, forbidding the representation of several acts of "The Skibbeah." The Hart party of counselors, appealed from this decision. Judge Hunt, having heard the appeal, affirmed the judgment of the Court below, but gave the unsuccessful counsel twenty-five days in which to file an answer to the original complaint.

ELSEWHERE.

Lotta commences an engagement in Boston on September 20th.

Frank Mayo in "Davy Crockett," played at Utica, 5th; Troy, 6th; Cohoes, 7th; Lansingburg, 8th; Albany, 9th; Williamsport, Pa., 10th.

Sol Smith Russell joined at above date. Boylston Museum, little farces by the little company, and little curiosities, as usual.

Mr. B. W. Piercy will be leading man at the Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, for the season of 1875-6, as we announced some month ago when the engagement was made.

Miss Clara Louise Kellogg is at her Summer residence at Cold Spring, on the Hudson.

Miss Blanche De Bar will be leading lady at the Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, next season.

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us the prisons less crowded, and have bad something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called Los Brillantes, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods. This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

SALVINI'S HAMLET.

The Italian tragedian Salvini's appearance in "Hamlet" was the main feature of the London theatrical week ending Saturday, June 5th. A critic of the Era thus speaks it: He succeeded admirably in the dramatic passages of the play, and gave a fine stamp to the whole thing which cannot be equaled. Supreme gentleness is the key-note to the performance. He could not be mad, for lunacy does not spring from such sweet and even dispositions. Signor Salvini, whose whole impersonation was marked by a proper recognition of all the impulses of a well-bred gentleman, succeeded best in the scenes in which affection could best be shown. The dialogue with Ophelia when Polonious and the King are hidden behind the arras was a lovely inspiration of art; but nothing like Hamlet, if the text is to be believed. The interview with Gertrude has never been better carried out in a dramatic sense, or so warmly applauded; but the philosophy of the man was sacrificed for the picturesque touches of the artist. The soliloquies were unquestionably inferior to the purely dramatic scenes. "O, what a rogue and peasant slave am I," this famous soliloquy, with its wonderful changes, went for nothing, because its reflection did not suit the inborn temperament of the artist. Salvini is far too great an artist to do anything badly, but it is possible to misunderstand the tragedy. For, if this were not so, some more effect would have been wrung from "To be or not to be." The play scene, admirable throughout on account of its varied and interesting business, would, of course, have been improved if the players had been allowed an interview beforehad. Why this intense study of a play within a play of which Hamlet was not known—save by tradition—to have written one line; why this wonderful consultation of a text in manuscript which the audience had not been told was due to the authorship of the princely scholar? But to make amends for those shortcomings there were the first ghost scene, the interview with the queen mother, and the fencing scene, all of them most remarkable and intensely varied. All of them were distinguished for their affectionate character and refinement of reading. Of these scenes that with the queen mother was certainly the best, and more completely than in any other part of the play illustrated Salvini's idea of the character. It excited the audience to tremendous enthusiasm, and the actor was called forward again and again. But in the play of "Hamlet" a purely dramatic audience is as much interested in any novelty in the way of what is technically know as "business" as in the general grasp and idea of the character by the actor. The Hamlet of Salvini is rich in novelty and ingenuity of business. First of all, when the ghost appears at the further end of the platform, Hamlet enters from under the portcullis of the castle, and the ghost has, of course, preceded him. The full rays of the moonlight fall upon Hamlet's face, and the ghost addressed him with the ghost's back turned to the people. This is always reversed in England. Hamlet turns his back and the ghost faces the audience. How much better from an art point of view, to see the agony depicted on the face of Hamlet than to be attracted by the placid and pale face of the ghost. But it is to be feared there are few actors cast for the ghost who would see the matter in the same light. The second excellent idea of Salvini is the detection of the trick of Polonius and the King in the face of Ophelia. He reads in her eyes and by her indecision what is the matter. This hesitation and mental wandering form the key-note to the question "Where's your father?" The business of turning over the leaves of the manuscript play in the play-scene is very good, but we have already commented on this point. The falling of Hamlet into the arms of Horatio when the King has fled is very beautiful, but not new. It occurred to Mr. Fechter, and would to any actor of that temperament. It is curious indeed that the recorder scene should be omitted, but not, perhaps, according to the Salvini method, for he would not care to disturb the princely harmony of the reading by sarcasm or violence of any kind. In the closet scene Salvini agrees with Mr. Irving and others, and illustrates the two pictures mentally, and not by minatures [illegible] tapestry. The ghost illusion is here admirably done. It rises straight out of the floor before Hamlet and his mother whilst they are talking. Hamlet does not see the vision at first, but continues the conversation breaking off with a splendid shriek, and contriving to get his mother between him and the spirit. The graveyard scene is only remarkable for the preceded by a dirge played on instruments. The fencing scene contains one of the best bits of business in the play, which may not be new, but is thoroughly in harmony with Salvini's idea of Hamlet. During an excited bout Hamlet disarms Laertes, and, having done so, presents his antagonist with his own weapon like a courteous prince and gentleman, picking up for his own use the poisoned foil of Laertes. What an excellent way of getting out of a well-known difficulty, and what a chance for a good Laertes in the way of facial expression! He has, indeed, been "hoist with his own petard." The crouching attitude of the King trembling at the foot of his thorne, and half-sheltered by his courtiers, is noteworthy; as also the vigor of Hamlet as he breaks through all opposition and kills his enemy at last. The death of Hamlet as illustrated by Salvini, is perhaps, the most beautiful scene in the whole. It is the refrain of all this noble song of love and affection. His heart is bound to that of Horatio, and before his spirit departs he bends his friend's face towards him and kisses it. This exquisite idea thrilled the house with delight. But on this occasion the Salvini honors were fairly divided. Few playgoers present could ever have seen such an exquisite rendering of Ophelia as that of Signora Giovagnola. The actress held the house so that you might have heard a pin drop. The contemplation of her madness was absorbing, and her hysterical laugh so true that all in the house shuddered at it. A more beautiful and artistic specimen of acting has not been seen for some time. It would be difficult to discover a better Ophelia. Concerning the Hamlet, now that the excitement is over, the consideration of it has been arrived at with calmness and propriety, we cannot help thinking that, as a reading of Hamlet, it will not meet with the approval of English Shakespearian students.

The Latest Matinee Attraction.

The Chicago Tribune says: Of all queer things in this queer city the giving away of a Bible as a prize to be raffled for—a bonus for attendance at a theatrical matinee seems to us the queerest. Mr. Gardiner, manager of the Academy of Music, announced Friday that children would be admitted to his theatre at 10 cents a head, and the holder of the winning ticket would be presented with the Word of God, gilt-edged and handsomely bound. It was amazing to see the number of grown-up men and women who tried to rejuvenate for the sake of getting a Bible worth $10 for 10 cents. It would have warmed the heart of a cobblestone to contemplate this outburst of religious fervor. No. 333—a highly suggestive Trinitarian figure—won the Bible, and little Rosa France presented it. Perhaps as amusing a feature of the case as any was the fact that Robert McWade bought the Bible. A generation of hardened scoffers might comment satirically on this sudden outbreak of generosity. They might say that Robert, having failed to reap a harvest off the present generation of theatre-goers, was cultivating friendly relations with the next one, to be reaped hereafter. What a sly Robert it is!

Done Brown.

Brown, on his first journey per coach not long ago, worried the driver beside whom he sat with incessant childish questions about everything on the road. At last he got his quietus thus:

Driver—"There's been a woman lying in that house more than a month, and they haven't buried her yet?"

Brown—"Not buried her yet! Pray tell me why not?"

Driver—"Because she isn't dead."

Sweet Dear.

At the front-door, one o'clock in the morning: "Yes, you may come again next Sunday evening, Horace, dear, but"—— and she hesitated. "What is it, darling? Have I given you pain?" he asked, as she still remained silent. "You didn't mean to, I'm sure," she responded, "but next time please don't wear one of those collars with the points turning outward; they scratch so."

Opera House.

This evening the famous "Big Bonanza," will be put on at this theatre, by Daly's Fifth Avenue Company. The box sheet for the week indicates a succession of good houses. The cast will include Miss Fanny Davenport, Miss Emily Rigl, Miss Alice Gray, Mrs. G. H. Gilbert, Mr. James Lewis, Mr. Charles Fisher, Mr. W. Davidge and Mr. George Parkes.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Martha" was repeated last evening to an undiminished house. Mr. G. F. Hall sang the music of Plunkett instead of Mr. Carleton, and was happier in it, than he has been in any other character during the season. To-night, the unabridged version of "Fra Diavolo" will be given with Mrs. Richings-Bernard as Zerlina, Mrs. Seguin as Lady Allcash, Mr Seguin as Lord Allcash, Mr. Peakes as Beppo, Mr. Bernard as Lorenzo, Mr. Hall as Giacomo, and Mr. Castle as the Fra.

California Theatre.

This evening "The Shaughraun" enters on the third week of its remarkable run, with every prospect of the immense attendance that marked the past fortnight being continued during the next. The matinee on Saturday was one of the largest, if not the largest of the season, yet so perfect is the ventilation now, that the temperature, in the gallery even, was comparitively cool and pleasant.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

So successful have the Mexican Troupe been in their Sunday evening performances and country tours that we hear of arrangements being made for a concluding season of a week at Platt's Hall. "Robinson Crusoe" was a great success at the California Theatre last night.

Pacific Hall.

Those who have a fondness for the old Scotch songs, patriotic, tender and humorous, will have the opportunity of gratifying that fondness by spending "Twa Hours at Hame" with the Kennedy's in their excellent entertaiment at Pacific Hall, this evening.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Senate and Price's double song and dance, Mortimore and Kimic's character duet of "We're Seventy-five," and Swain and West's "Yankee Boys," are a sample of the good things given here every night.

Palace Variety Theatre.

Among the many nightly attractions here are Miss Louise Lee's lightning changes, Julian Adams and his concertina solos, Sam Baylis and Alli Barbee. Friday evening next, joint benefit of Harry Devoy and Henri Stuwart.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Hughey Robinson's local hits and comic songs are received with nightly applause, and altogether the bill is a good one.

Notes.

On Thursday evening next the new organ of Advent Church will be opened with a concert, in which the best local talent will appear, and several members of the English Opera Troupe.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

ANOTHER'S.

She has the most alluring eyes,
A little Grecian nose;
She wears the most bewitching guise,
And parti-colored hose!
Her touch can thrill one strangely when
One clasps her in the dance;
At least, they tell me so—but then,
I never had the chance!

Her melting tones, so people's say,
Intoxicate the brain,
And leave, when she has gone away,
A joy akin to pain.
Her voice is like sweet music when
Its strains are soft and low;
So those who heard it say—but then
I never did, you know.

She makes the most superb ragout—
Knits stockings by the score;
Knows Latin, and Italian, too,
Greek, French and plenty more!
She's just the girl to sweeten life—
Adorable!—divine!
In short, she is a perfect wife!
But then she isn't mine!

THE AMERICAN RIFLE TEAM AT THE DUBLIN THEATRE.

The visit of the American Team to the Gaiety Theatre on the 18th of June, is thus described in the Dublin Mail: Last evening the American Team visited the Gaiety Theatre. Great excitement was manifested by the public both within and without the house. The north side of Stephen Green and King streets were crowded long before the time announced for the arrival of the team. The theatre was crowded in every part, and numbers were obliged to go away, having been unable to obtain admittance. Shortly after eight o'clock, amidst great cheering and applause, the following visitors entered the theatre: Colonel Gildersleeve, General Dakin, Colonel Bodine, Mr. Yale, Mr. Canfield, Major Fulton, Mr. Ballard, Mr. Bruce, Mr. John H. Bird, Colonel Mitchell, Mr. Coughtry, Major Holland, Mrs. Dakin, Mrs. Arthur, Major Arthur, Miss Cole, Miss Ida Cole, Miss Mullen, Mr. Rigby, Dr. Hamilton, Major Leech, Mr. Pollok, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Miller and Mr. Foster, Hon. Sec. to the Irish Rifle Association. The Lord and Lady Mayoress and the Misses MacSwiney entered shortly after, and were well received. There was great applause when the Lord Mayor publicly visited the team in their box. On the appearance of the guests the orchestra struck up "Hail Columbia," and amidst vociferous cheers repeated again and again, they took their seats. Miss Genevieve Ward then came forward to recite an address specially composed by S. D. Elrington, Esq., B. L. She was dressed in a complete ancient Irish costume, of white robe and mantle, trimmed with green and gold, with tiara, broach and armlets complete, and having in her hand the wand and ring which Moore has rendered famous. When the drop scene went down, Miss Ward was recalled and bowed her thanks for her reception. "Medea" and the last two acts of the "Merchant of Venice" were performed. In the former, Miss Ward proved herself without peer on the British stage. None but genius of the highest class can touch or attempt it, without failing; and the hush of silence, the shudder of sympathetic fear, and the enthusiastic bursts of applause that marked the progress of the piece leave no doubt of the fact that not here alone but in America Miss Genevieve Ward's reputation as the first tragedienne—the successor of Miss Cushman—is made. At the end of each act she was called, and at the conclusion of the performance was greeted with a shower of bouquets. "Yankee Doodle" was played by the orchestra as a final air, and the team left the theatre amidst a vast crowd and enthusiastic applause.

Sloshin' About.

In Pike county there was a trial for a personal row, and a witness testified that one Saltonstall "just kept sloshin' about." As this remark regarding the conduct of the chivalrous Saltonstall was frequently repeated, said the lawyer for the defense:

"Come, witness, say over again what it was that Mr. Saltonstall had to do with this affair."

"Saltonstall? Why, I've told you several times; the rest of 'em clinched and paired off, but Saltonstall he kept just sloshin' about."

"Ah! my good fellow," exclaimed the lawyer, testily, "we want to know what that is. It isn't exactly legal evidence in the shape you put it, tell us what you mean by sloshin' about,"

"Well, answered the witness, very deliberately, "I'll try. You see, John Brewer and John Sykes they clinched and fout. That's in a legle form, ain't it?

"Oh, yes—go on."

"Abney and Blackman then pitched into one another, and Blackman bit off a piece of Abney's lip—that's legle too, ain't it?"

"Proceed."

"Simpson and Bill Stones and Murray was all together on the ground, a bitin', gogin' and kickin' one another—that's legle too, is it?"

"Very; but go on."

"And Saltonstall made it his business to walk backward and forward through the crowd with a big stick in his hand, and knocked down every loose man in the crowd as fast as he came to 'em. That's what I call sloshin' about."

Verdi on Wagner.

The following criticisms by Verdi on Wagner's works and on German singers are attributed to the Neue Frie Presse of Vienna: The conversation turning upon Wagner, Verdi remarked that this great genius had rendered incalculable service to melo-dramatic art, owing to his courage in emancipating himself from the traditional antiquated forms. "I also," said he, "have attempted to blend the music with the drama, certainly in Macbeth, but I could not myself write the libretti as Wagner does. Wagner surpasses all composers in the wealth of coloring in his instrumentation, but he goes too far in the form as in the manner. At first he successfully combated the realistic, but later on he got further from that ideal poesy through exaggeration, and fell into the very fault, the task of ameliorating which he had originally proposed to himself. Thus the uniformity which he so victoriously attacked once more threatens to rule him." With regard to German singing, Verdi observed: "There is certainly no want of voices in Germany; they are almost fuller in tone than the Italian. The singers, however, regard song as a gymnastic exercise, trouble themselves little with the formation of the voice, and aim only at obtaining a large repertory in the shortest possible time. They give themselves no trouble to bring a beautiful shading into their song; their whole endeavor is directed toward bringing out this or that note with great power. Hence their song is no poetical expression of the soul, but a physical struggle of the body."

The New National Opera House, London,

Will be commenced immediately, the Prince of Wales being expected to lay the foundation-stone before he leaves for India, and the house is to be finished and opened by Easter next, according to the contract. The new building will be surrounded by streets, and there will be separate entrances under the piazza for subscribers. The stage will be much larger than that of Covent Garden, in order that spectacular operas may be mounted upon a perfect scale of magnificence. The first new opera will probably be "Aida," of which Mr. Mapleson holds the sole right of representation there, and Signor Verdi has placed in the hands of the energetic impressario the charts for the processions and mise-en-scene which were designed by himself for the production of the opera at the Milan Scala. Sir Michael Costa will be director-in-chief of the music, and Mr. Augustus Harris will probably occupy the position of stage manager, a post which his father raised to a high degree of importance.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

PLAIN TALK.

What Will Become of this Country? is the cry of a good many, when they notice the dayly increasing arrival of those accursed Asiatics. Why it doesn't take a prophet to answer this question! Just as surely, as you read this, the horrors of civil war will be repeated again and the American people will pay dearly for its own folly, not alone for not having stopped this surging tide of China emigration in time, but also for having fattened this vermin at their own expense, until it become so numerous and powerful as to compel them either to give up the country altogther, or by a coup de main, free it from it.

But to come to the point. Those persons who cry loudest against this China pest, are those who patronized them most by giving them employment either direct or indirect; then what else do you call it, when they, thinking themselves unobserved sneak into Chinese washhouses or cigar stands and other such like establishments—in order to save a few cents on a dollar—at the same time squandering hundred fold the amount in drinking, gambling and for other things to bad and numerous to mention here. In the name of common sense, is this not the highest of folly?

Is it then impossible to stop this nonsense and patronize white labor and industry, and let the Chinamen and their white friends and patrons take care of themselves? Surely by so doing, we would have less idle men, woman and children among us, the prisons less crowded, and have had something else besides woodchopping and getting out railroad ties to offer to white emigrants being enticed to come to this country. Of the great numbers of ruined trades—let us only mention one, the cigar and cigaretta manufactories in this city, which are almost entirely in the hands of Chinamen, with the exception of a few, where only white men are employed and who have done their best to stem the tide, but will surely also succumb to their rivals for want of patronage, though it should be a pleasure and duty of right thinking men to keep them up. Chief among them is J. BOLLMAN'S & CO., Russian Cigaretta factory, 409 Washington street, established for the last ten years, who, besides their celebrated cigaritos (next to a good Havana cigar the best smoking article in market), also manufacture a small, but pure Havana cigar, called Los BRILLANTES, which brand is retailed all over the city and country towns, for 5 cents each. Now, did you ever hear of a Chinaman manufacturing pure Havana cigars at that price? We did not. Surely if white men undersell Chinamen, they ought to be patronized—or has it come already to this—that they should wear a tail, in order to sell their goods. This country may come to this yet. ju7-1m

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

The success of "Lohengrin" in London has been quite as marked at Drury Lane as at Covent Garden. The best of the solo parts, by common consent, seems to have been the Orturd of Mlle. Titiens, to which all the critics award the very highest praise. About Madame Nillsson's Elsa there is the widest diversity of opinion, and the Lohengrin of Signor Campanini receives only qualified commendation, having evidently been somewhat of a disappointment.

There is a duet of negroes in "Don Mucarade," the new work at the Paris Opera Comique, which is a great success. It is sung in syllables by two negro servants, who divide each word between them, and the effect is very droll.

It turns out that all the music of the two unpublished operas of Donizetti recently discovered is already familiar to the public, having been used by the composer in other works.

It is reported that Mr. Tennyson's new drama, "Queen Mary," is to be superbly brought out next Winter at the London Lyceum, with Mr. Irving and Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe), in the two leading parts. Arrangements for this purpose have already been made between Mr. Tennyson and Miss Bateman, who is now lessee of the theatre once managed by her father.

An English journal says: It is said that Mdlle. Titiens will receive £20,000 for her six months' engagement in America. Under these terms, and these alone, can we spare her, for it will be a well-deserved reward. The Americans may learn this much in advance, which will please them—namely, that Mdlle. Titiens has never sung so splendidly as during the last month. Her voice seems to have grander volume and richness, and her style more finish.

At Warsaw, the Grand Theatre is now occupied by a company of French artistes under Mademoiselle Emilie Keller. At the Circus Salamonsky, Esther Austin has appeared in several character dances, and her American sand jig has been loudly applauded. "Cinderella" has been produced on a scale of much magnificence.

John Oxenford, the noted English dramatic critic, is lying dangerously ill.

"Hamlet" has reached its two hundredth representation at the Lyceum Theatre, London, Mr. H. Irving being the Dane.

Mr. Robert Buchanan will contribute a paper on "The Modern Stage" to the July number of the "New Quarterly."

Capoul received $500 for singing two songs at a party given by Baron Rothschild.

J. K. Emmett is at the Royal Surrey Theatre, London.

The Majiltons are announced to appear at the London Alhambra, in a new piece by Mr. Reece and M. Jacobi.

The London Haymarket company was to close 26th ult. and travel in the provinces Sothern, Buckstone, Linda Dietz, and all hands included.

Patti receives $250 for each song sung at concerts; an encore $150 extra. She gets $1,000 for singing in opera.

Mrs. John Wood and company were to open at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, 21st ult.

Miss Emily Soldene made her re-appearance in England at Birmingham, on Monday week last.

Great efforts have been made in London to persuade Rubenstein, who is in Paris, to cross the channel and play for the Philharmonic, but without avail. Some people say he is so angry at criticisms upon his playing that were launched when he was last in London, that he has sworn never to play again in England. But although he declined the proposal to appear himself, he has offered to send his best pupil, Ludovico Breitner. The directors having given their consent, this gentleman arrived, and began smashing the unfortunate pianos placed at his service. His first half-hour's practice is said to have resulted in four broken hammers. Such tremendous force no one ever heard before, Rubenstein, Listz and Von Bulow being reckoned as mere pigmies at his side, as far at least, as thumping power is concerned.

At a fire which occurred lately at the Marseilles docks, nine packing cases containing theatrical properties and dresses were destroyed. They belonged to the tenor Tamberlik, and had been forwarded from Seville by steamer for a projected professional tour in France. The owner claims 50,000 francs as damages to repair his losses.

A Paris correspondent of a N. Y. paper says: "I spoke last week of the man and the child hired to lure an audience into a theatre. This week the anecdote is still better. One of the little theatres on the Boulevard hires a man with a wife and several children. These stand in front of the bills. The eldest girl then begins to read the bill from the beginning to end, omitting no detail, either in names of actors or the tableaux. Then the wife and the other children begin to beseech the man to let them all go in. At first he turns away; but pretending to melt gradually, he goes to the booking office and buys tickets for himself and the children. When in the theatre the party disperses, then goes through the stage door, and out again into the street, and by-and-by recommence the same trick. It generally takes."

One of the writers in the Paris Figaro, having stated that the death of Mlle. Mars was induced by the use of hair-dye and cosmetics, Laferriere writes to that paper contradicting the assertion, and describing the real cause of her final illness. After her retirement from the stage the gifted actress bought a little villa at Versailles, in order to be near her old comrade Armand. Her new house requiring some repairs, she received an estimate from an architect as to the probable cost, which amounted to 10,000 francs. But when the works were terminated this figure, as is not unusual in such cases here or elsewhere, swelled to triple that sum. This gave her such a shock that she had a fit, from which it was with difficulty that she was recovered. But from that moment death approached visibly, and with rapid strides. She quitted Versailles hurriedly and came back to Paris, to her old residence in the Rue Lavoisier, where she died the 4th May, 1874. Laferriere says in conclusion that, having traveled with Mlle. Mars, he can certify that she scarcely used any white powder on her face.

Old Time Menageries.

The earliest traveling menageries were those of Wombwell and Atkins, which were formed at the beginning of this century. Of Wombwell we read that one year, on the occasion of Bartlemy fair, he traveled to London so quickly from the north that his one elephant died on the journey. Atkins, a rival showman, forthwith placarded his canvas with the announcement that he had "the only live elephant in the fair;" whereupon Wombwell not to be outdone, posted his menagerie with the words: "The only dead elephant in the fair." Live elephants had been seen, but no one had seen a dead one, and consequently Wombwell's show was crowded—his rival's deserted. Wombwell had a lion-tamer in his establishment before Van Amburg appeared, but the latter is generally accredited with the honor of having introduced the art of lion-taming into England. The Duke of Wellington once asked him if he was ever afraid? Van Amburgh replied: "The first time that I am afraid, your Grace, or that I fancy my pupils are no longer afraid of me, I shall retire from the wild-beast line." An old pamphlet which we have met with tells us that her present Majesty was so pleased with Van Amburgh's performance, that she visited Drury Lane Theatre six times within so many weeks, and that on one occasion she gave the animals a close inspection, when they had been purposely rendered ferocious by a fast of thirty-six hours. From the same authority, writing of Amburgh's visit to Edinburgh, we learn that the den containing the wild beasts, occupied the whole breadth of the stage in the theatre; the strength of the company consisting of two lions and a lioness, a couple of tigers and a half dozen leopards. The leopards would spring upon their master's shoulders, or, spreading themselves upon the ground, form pillows for his head. Now he would box with them, growling, snarling and snapping at him with their fangs; now he would knock their heads together and cuff them, when if they showed the slightest sign of displeasure, a hint from their master would bring them groveling and prostrate at his feet. He would distend the jaws of a lion while it roared, and by shutting and opening them rapidly, break the roar into a succession of sounds that mingled the ludicrous with the horrible. When the lioness snapped and struck at him, he coolly put his face down to her head, and gazing into her eyes until she shrank back ashamed, brought down the house with applause. One of Van Amburgh's feats was to put his head inside a lion's month. This apparently foolhardy act was attended it would seem with but slight danger, for by taking hold of the nostril with one hand and the lower jaw with the other hand, the performer is master of the situation, provided always that the beast does not playfully stick its talons into the man, who, in such a case stands fast for his life till he has shifted the paw. The fame of this king of lion tamers, has been perpetuated by Landseer's well-known picture, now in Apsley House. Most of the performing lions have been bred in cages, and commence their instruction at a tender age; kindness and fearlessness on the part of their masters being the chief means employed to bring them to subjection. One performing lion in Sanger's circus was so tame that it used to lie at the feet of Mrs. Sanger in her impersonation of Brittania, when the cavalcade paraded the towns which the circus visited; and another belonging to the same company is suffered to roam about the house like a cat. Leopards and hyenas are other animals amenable to instruction, and a wolf has been seen in a cage lying down with a lamb.

Maguire's New Theatre.
With such a cast as that of "Fra Diavolo", yesterday, it was no wonder that Auber's charming opera was an unequivocal success. With Mrs C Richings-Bernard as Zerlina Mr. and Mrs. Seguin as Lord and Lady Allcash, Mr. Peakes as Beppo, Mr. Hall as Giacomo, Mr. Bernard as Lorenzo and Mr. Castle as Fra Diavolo, the theatre-goers will have no difficulty in determining the superior quality of the performance. This evening, Mozart's "Nozze de Figaro" for the last time.

California Theatre.
The third week of "The Shaughraun" opened to the same crush of business as marked the preceding two. The popularity of the play, which keeps the great audiences in a continual transition state between smiles and tears, will certainly keep it on the stage all during Mr. Boucicault's engagement.

Opera House.
At length "The Big Bonanza" has been produced and the business of the next two or three weeks will prove whether it is so popular a play as "Ultimo." We were unable to see sufficient of the comedy to speak fully as to its merits, but we saw enough to convince us that "Ultimo" and "The Big Bonanza" are at least first cousins. The plot of the one is in New York, that of the other in San Francisco, the names of the characters are changed, but their more marked idiocyncracies are retained, and the action of the two runs parallel in many cases. The humor of "Ultimo" is certainly broader than that of "The Big Bonanza," but while the fun in the latter is less boisterous, it is often more natural. In fact Mr. Bartley Campbell's adaptation is a farce—that of Mr. Augustin Daly a comedy. We shall take opportunity to-morrow to notice the characters of that now being played by the Fifth Avenue company. The house was a crowded one.

Pacific Hall.
The initial performance of the Kennedys has established the reputation of the family as accomplished glee-singers. The family is composed of Miss Helen Kennedy, soprano; Miss Marjory Kennedy, contralto; Mr. David Kennedy, tenor; Mr. Robert Kennedy, tenor; Mr. James Kennedy, baritone; and Mr. Kennedy, himself. The quintettes, "Hail Smiling Morn," "Strike the Lyre," "Ye Banks and Braces," and the sextette, "The capped towers" were all given with exceptional power of harmony and unusually careful attention to light and shade. The pianoforte playing of the two young ladies was warmly applauded, as were the stories and songs of Mr. Kennedy. The same programme—which is an excellent one—will be repeated this evening.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.
Senate and Nickerson's "Banjo Lessons," Kimic's Dutch specialties, Mortimore and Kimic's old man duet, Senate and Price's double song and dance are three or four of the attractions for this place to-night.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.
"The Brand of Shame" continues an immense attraction; the characters are all well taken and the moral of the drama is of the best kind. The rest of the bill is of equal quality. Johnny Tuers is under engagement to this theatre.

Palace Variety Theatre.
The bills for every night's performance abound in specialties of fun and humor, but that for Firday evening next for the benefit of Harry Devoy and Henri Stuart, will contain attractions to make you wink.

Reisen Keller.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Notes.
One of the Albino children did not die at Woodward's Gardens yesterday.

Some time ago Mollenhauer of New York, composed a new waltz called "The Fifth Avenue" and dedicated it to James W. Morrissey, Mr. Daly's treasurer. It is now being published by Messrs. Sherman & Hyde for San Francisco.

Mr. L. S. Lynch left by the S. S. Macregor yesterday for Melbourne, as advance agent in Australia for the Lingards, who leave in September.

On Wednesday afternoon, July 28th, Mr. H. J. Montague will receive a complimentary benefit, when a bill of extra attractions will be put on.

WHO CAN TELL?

[The following poem was written by Major Larkyns just previous to the violent death he met at the hands of Muybridge, for the alleged seduction of the latter's wife. This wife but three days ago, died in the public hospital of this city A sad, eventful history indeed. Of the three principal characters in the tragedy two are dead and the third, a prematurely old man, is away in South America. Will the two who are gone meet, and what will their meeting be like? The wistful refrain of the sad song following, rings in here with singular appropriateness, and the great question is still unanswered, for Who Can Tell?

How do we know what hearts have vilest sin!
How do we know?
Many like sepulchers are foul within,
Whose outward garb is spotless as the snow,
And many may be pure we think not so.
How near to God the souls of such have been,
What mercy secret penitence may win,
How do we know?

How can we tell who sinned more than we,
How can we tell?
We think our brother walked guiltily,
Judging him in self-righteousness! Ah, well,
Perhaps had we been driven through the hell
Of his temptions, we might be Less upright in our daily walk than he—
How can we tell?

Dare we condemn the ills that others do?
Dare we condemn?
Their strength is small, their trials are not few,
The tide of wrong is difficult to stem,
And if to us more clearly than to them
Is given knowledge of the good and true,
More do they need our help and pity too!
Dare we condemn?

God help us all, and lead us day by day!
God help us all!
We cannot walk alone the perfect way,
Evil allures us, tempts us and we fall!
We are but human and our power is small;
Not one of us may boast, and not a day
Rolls o'er our heads, but each hath need to pray.
God help us all!

Sardou's New Comedy.
M. Sardou has just completed a new comedy in three acts entitled "La Perle Noire." It is nothing more than a judicial anecdote put under a dramatic form. During a thunder-storm lightning strikes the house of a rich bourgeois in Amsterdam named Balthazar. The electric fluid runs down into his cabinet, scattering cards, maps, and papers into great confusion, upsets a box of jewels and ingots, and shatters a window pane in its exit. At first it was believed a theft had been committed, and Christine, a young girl raised by charity in the house, is suspected and arrested. Her fiance, Cornelius, who is a savant chemist, is the only one who never doubts her innocence, and he defends her in court. The scene in court reaches its culmination when Cornelius, is confronted by Balthazar's lawyer, with a black pearl which has been found in Christine's room; but this furnishes an argument of victory to the young man, who finds upon it traces of the electric fluid, which leads to the unravelling of the whole mystery, and the girl, of course, is acquitted. The play has been quite apropos these last few days, writes a Paris correspondent, as a terrific thunder-storm swept over the city three or four days ago, and, although no lives were lost, the tricks played by the lightning were so abundant and curious as to have provoked the recital of various strange things accomplished by electricity, one of which was the perfect restoration of a cripple of many years' suffering during a thunder-storm.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

LONDON'S NEW OPERA HOUSE.

The project of building a new opera house on that portion of the new public lands on the bank of the Thames, known as the Victoria embankment, meets with the general approval of the London press. In the first place the financial aspect is pleasing—for your Cockney is no Cockney if he fails to think of his pocket first. The Metropolitan Board of Works to which was intrusted the direction of the river-side improvements, could scarcely fail to look upon the proposition favorably, in view of the fact that an opportunity was offered of getting back a portion of the immense sums expended. And not only the mere profit to be derived for the piece of land required for the new theatre was to be considered: The value of the contiguous property—desert places, now intersected by occasional oases in the shape of flower gardens—would be considerably enhanced. It is also hoped that the over-crowded Strand will be relieved of some of its traffic after coachmen and cabmen have once gone over the new roads, or their employers have experienced the delights of an uninterrupted and airy drive-way. But the Opera House so long as it remains in the hands of Mr. Mapleson and Sir Michael Costa, must live by its own attractions, which will be, in some degree, augmented by the magnificent site chosen. It will be the only detached theatre in the English metropolis; it will have entrances on all sides; it will be nearly equi-distant from the extremes of the fashionable localities; and it will be within reach of the river,—all of which are, respectively, great points for the architects, the public, the managers and the underwriters. If there is any fault to be found, it is the nearness of the theatre to the Houses of Parliament. The British legislators may, as a rule, have more fondness for the delights of the turf than for those which the theatre may afford. But music may charm some of them, nevertheless. It is said that when, in the calm that followed the Revolution of 1848, Meyerbeer's Prophet was brought out, the French Chamber was deserted, though important matters were awaiting its attention, by gentlemen who could not forget that they were opera-goers first, and members of the Assembly afterwards. Similarly, an important musical event at the new house can scarcely fail to effect the M. P.'s in common with the rest of London society. But there is compensation to be found, even here. The law-maker who deserts his post may be summoned back by telegraph, in ample time to be in at a division. The most important part of the enterprise is, after all, its artistic and national character. It is intended to give, at the new house, operatic perforamances throughout the year—Italian in summer, and English in winter; all under Sir Michael's Costa's direction, with a permanent orchestra and chorus. English opera has led a nomadic life in England, and, as a consequence, English composers have had few opportunities to show their abilities as lyric writers. Everything else in the musical or dramatic form of art, creative or descriptive, has been allowed a fair field and abundant favor. The English operatic writer may soon have a chance to exhibit his powers in a house and with appliances hardly surpassed in all Europe. The name and plans of the theatre are not yet divulged; the latter, indeed, will not be completed until the architect has made a thorough study of the new houses of Vienna and Paris. A recent writer in an English journal rhapsodizes as follows concerning the proposed Temple of Song: "What a dream of delights this new Opera House conjures up! It is not to be finished for two years, but when it is completed, we are promised gardens which will have all that is beautiful in them—a regular French out-of-door evening promenade. In fact, we expect to have gondolas on the Thames, to come down rowed by musical boatmen to the opera, to hear the finest singers in the world, to walk for awhile in the most beautiful grounds, and then to return home still with the songs of the opera in our ears."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

TOMMASSO SALVINI.

Tommasso Salvini is of Milanese parentage, and was born in the Lombard capital on January 1. 1830. His father was an able actor, and his mother a popular actress, named Gugilelmina Zocchi. When quite a boy he showed a rare talent for acting, and performed in certain plays given during the Easter holidays in the school where he was educated, with such rare ability that his father determined to devote him to the stage. For this purpose he placed him under the tuition of the great Modena, who conceived much affection for him. The training received thus early from such able hands soon bore fruits, and before he was thirteen Salvini had already won a reputation in juvenile characters. At fifteen he lost both his parents, and the bereavement so preyed upon his spirits that he was obliged to abandon his career for two years, and returned once more under the tuition of Modena. When he again emerged from retirement he joined the Ristori troupe, and shared with that great actress many a triumph. In 1849, Salvini entered the army of Italian Independence, and fought valiantly for the defense of his country, receiving in recognition of his services several medals of honor. Peace being proclaimed, he again appeared upon the stage in a company directed by Signor Cesare Dondini. He played in the "Edipo" of Nicolini—a tragedy written expressly for him—and achieved a great success. Next he appeared in Alfieri's "Saul," and then all Italy declared that Modena's mantle had fallen on worthy shoulders. His fame was now prodigious, and wherever he went he was received with boundless enthusiasm. He visited Paris, where he played "Orasmane," "Orestes," "Saul," and "Othello." On his return to Florence he was hospitably entertained by the Marquis of Normanby, then English Ambassador to the Court of Tuscany, and this enlightened nobleman strongly encouraged him to extend his repertory of Shakspearian characters. In 1865 occurred the sixth centenary of Dante's birthday, and the four greatest Italian actors were invited to perform in Silvio Pellico's tragedy of "Francesca di Rimini," which is founded on an episode in the "Divina Commedia." The cast originally stood on the playbills thus: Francesca, Signora Ristori; Lancelotto, Signor Rossi; Paulo, Signor Salvini; and Guido, Signor Majeroni. It happened, however, that Rossi, who was unaccustomed to play the part of Lancelotto, felt timid at appearing in a character so little suited to him. Hearing this, Signor Salvini, with exquisite politeness and good nature, volunteered to take the insignificant part relinquishing the grand role of Paulo to his junior in the profession. He created, by the force of his genius, an impression in the minor part which is still vivid in the minds of all who witnessed the performance. The government of Florence, grateful for his urbanity, presented him with a statuette of Dante, and King Victor Emanuel rewarded him with the title of Knight of the Order of the Saints Maurice and Lazarus. Later he received from the same monarch a diamond ring, with the rank of officer in the Order of the Crown of Italy. In 1868, Signor Salvini visited Madrid, where his acting of the death of Conrad, in "La Morte Civile," produced such an impression that the easily-excited Madrilese rushed upon the stage to ascertain whether the death was actual or fictitious. The Queen, Isabella II., conferred upon the great actor many marks of favor, and so shortly afterwards did King Louis of Portugal, who frequently entertained him at the Royal Palace of Lisbon. Signor Salvini's recent visit to America is still fresh in the memory of the public, and the only drawback to its complete success was the fact that the eminent artist did not appeal to his audiences in their own language. Nothing is more remarkable than the difference which exists between the Salvini of the stage and the Salvini of private life, the one imposing, impetuous and fierce, the other gentle, urbane and retiring. His conversation is full of anecdote, and marked with enthusiasm for his art. The opinion that his interpretation of Hamlet is based only upon the translated text is erroneous. He is well acquainted (through literal translations) not only with the text, but also with the notes and comments of leading critics. Speaking himself of the part in which he is altogether unrivaled, he said, "I am of the opinion that Shakspeare intended Othello to be a Moor of Barbary, or some other part of Northern Africa, of whom there were many in Italy during the sixteenth century. I have met several, and think I imitate their ways and manners pretty well. You are aware, however, that the historical Othello was not a black at all. He was a white man, and a Venetian general, that of Shakspeare's hero in many particulars. Giraldo Cinthio, probably for better effect, made out of the name Mora, mora, a blackamoor; and Shakspeare, unacquainted with the true story, followed this old novelist's lead; and it was well he did so, for have we not in consequence the most perfect delineation of the peculiarities of Moorish temperament ever conceived?" The costumes worn by Salvini in this play are copied from those depicted in certain Venetian pictures of the fifteenth century, in which several Moorish officers appear. When asked why he did not learn English, "Ah!" he replied, "I am too old; and, even if I mastered it, I could not control my knowledge of it. When excited I should be lapsing into Italian, which would be very absurd. You asked me the other day why I do not play Orestes. I should make a queer young Greek with an Apollo like figure now-a-days! The time was when I looked the part and acted it well, and then I liked to play it. I must leave it with many other good things to younger men." Speaking about dramatic elocution, he said, "the best method is obtained by a close observation of nature, and above all by earnestness. If you can impress people with the conviction that you feel what you say, they will pardon many shortcomings. And above all, study study, study! All the genius in the world will not help you along with any art unless you become a hard student. It has taken me years to master a single part."

Sardou's New Comedy.

M. Sardou has just completed a new comedy in three acts entitled "La Perle Noire." It is nothing more than a judicial anecdote put under a dramatic form. During a thunder-storm lightning strikes the house of a rich bourgeois in Amsterdam named Balthazar. The electric fluid runs down into his cabinet, scattering cards, maps, and papers into great confusion, upsets a box of jewels and ingots, and shatters a window pane in its exit. At first it was believed a theft had been committed, and Christine, a young girl raised by charity in the house, is suspected and arrested. Her fiance, Cornelius, who is a savant chemist, is the only one who never doubts her innocence, and he defends her in court. The scene in court reaches its culmination when Cornelius, is confronted by Balthazar's lawyer, with a black pearl which has been found in Christine's room; but this furnishes an argument of victory to the young man, who finds upon it traces of the electric fluid, which leads to the unravelling of the whole mystery, and the girl, of course, is acquitted. The play has been quite apropos these last few days, writes a Paris corresponent, as a terrific thunderstorm swept over the city three or four days ago, and, although no lives were lost, the tricks played by the lightning were so abundant and curious as to have provoked the recital of various strange things accomplished by electricity, one of which was the perfect restoration of a cripple of many years' suffering during a thunder-storm.

An Elegy on Good Legs.

A lady who attended an amateur opera in Pittsburg sends this bombshell into the ranks of the performers: "The physical degeneracy of the men of our day has seldom been so fully displayed in public as during the two recent performances of "The Rose of Castile" by the Gounod Club. I was there on Friday night, and was astonished almost beyond measure at the exhibition of shrivelled limbs, bandy legs, and knock-knees of their male possessors. It was a revelation to me; for poor, untutored child of nature that I am, I had supposed, from frequently seeing these same young men on the street and in the drawing-room, wearing elegant suits of fine clothes, that they were shapely and comely in form, but the delusion was rudely dispelled by the anatomical display. I desire to say to the gentlemen of the Gounod Club that, before they sing another time in public it would be well for them to make arrangements with some planing-mill for a supply of sawdust with which to fill up their outline and tone down the ragged edges."

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs T. & D. Lundy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

California Theatre.

"The Shaughraun" still draws crowds to witness its numerous attractions. The scenery is particularly noticeable. The Shaughraun to-night.

Opera House.

Another full house was in attendance last evening to see the so-much-talked-of-Society-Comedy "Big Bonanza." Everybody who has seen the two has come to the conclusion that Mr. Daly's comedy in many respects holds a place above Mr. Campbell's farce. The Professor of Mr. Lewis is a less eccentric old gentleman than that of Crane and the humor is of a quieter nature. Lewis seems to depend upon facial expression, where Mr. Crane depended on action. Nearly all the members of "The Big Bonanza" have a strange sort of dissimilar likeness to those of "Ultimo" and in fact much public interest seems felt in attending the performance simply to compare it with that, so filling the house and thus nullifying the old-time odiousness of comparisons.

Maguire's New Theatre.

There is probably not another city of San Francisco's size in the United States, in which Mozart's "Nozze" could be produced three times in two weeks with mutual satisfaction to management and audience. For, although "The Marriage of Figaro" is a master-piece and destined to live for all time, it pleases a general audience less than Verdi's crashes of harmony, Flotow's pretty sweetnesses or Balfe's tender melodies. People are in the habit of saying it is "too much like church music." To this city's honor, be it written, there are in it sufficient admirers of good music to have filled the theatre three times, and we believe to fill it three times more, should "Le Nozze" be the bill. The handling of the orchestration, with its almost exclusive use of reed and string is in itself a study, whilst the graceful composition of everything from a romance to a finale is a lovely lesson on the powers of masterly simplicity. Fortunately, the means of interpretation, that is the present English Opera Company, is one well worthy the work. To-night "Mignon," and we believe, for the last time.

Pacific Hall.

The Kennedys gave their second performance last evening to a thoroughly appreciative audience. Many of the numbers were encored, "The March of the Cameron Men" being received with enthusiasm.

Platt's Hall.

As we hinted on Saturday, the Mexican Infantile Opera Troupe have decided to give another season at Platt's Hall, commencing on Friday next, when "The Doctor of Alcantara," the comic opera of "The College Girl" and operatic selections by the Signorina Soledad Unda y Moron will form the bill.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The week runs on with a good promise of capital amusement to all who attend. To night a first rate programme with acts and olio by first rate artists.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers, the eccentric comedian will make his first appearance here to-night in "Clameel." Johnny is a good card. Ned Barry will appear in his character songs, and a full variety bill will be given.

Palace Variety Theatre.

This house will remain closed until Friday evening for repairs, when Harry Devoy and Henri Stewart will take a joint benefit and present an attractive programme.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday first time of the great Borthwick Reid, the Scottish Athlete and Champion Trick Swordsman of the world in his marvellous feats with the sword, the beautiful Albino children. the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert.

Notes.

If Mr. Colville, late of Cheyenne, is in town, he will oblige by leaving his address at this office.

Emerson's Minstrels have made a hit in Boston, as may be seen by the following from the critique of the Courier: One of the most superior, if not the best, of the numerous organizations of Ethiopian performers that have visited Boston this season, is certainly the troupe known as Emerson's California Minstrels. It is an admirably balanced company, and its various members stand in the front rank of their profession. The witticisms have not been crippled with years of wrestling with the jester of the sawdust arena. The end men, Billy Emerson and Ben Cotton, have much native humor, and they seem fully to understand that moderation, even in broadest burlesque, is the true secret of conveying pleasure to an intelligent audience. The quartette of vocalists is an excelllent one, and I have seldom heard that fine descriptive ballad of "Dublin Bay" rendered with more dramatic effect than by J. G. Russell, the baritone of this troupe. Mr W. H. Tilla sang "The Little Ones at Home" with much expression, and indeed the vocalization generally was very enjoyable. The second part was full of excellent entertainment. Billy Emerson in his Album of Specialties, showed that he was one of the best of the delineators of the genteel citizen of African descent; Arlington in his banjo solos was quaintly funny, and Makin and Wilson in their double song and dance "The Briar," showed a finish and ease that fully sustained their already high reputation in this line of business. Arlington, Cotton and Rice, as "The Three Doves," proved that as dark hued comedians they could rejuvenate a hackneyed subject and infuse into it so much originality of action and make-up as to make it almost new to the most b[illegible] of minstrel hall frequenters.

M. Gray has published another ballad of Felix Marti. This time it is for a mezzo-soprano voice, and entitled "Footsteps on the stair." As usual the words are by E. E. Rexford.

Bradley and Rulofson seem determined to keep up their reputation as the premier photographers of the coast (which means the world). The pictures of Miss Fanny Davenport, just published, are glorious specimens of the art photographic.

The next Sunday evening performance of the Mexican Infantile Opera Troupe at the California

The new organ of the Church of the Advent was privately opened yesterday by Messieurs the organists, Geo. Evans, Jno. P. Morgan, Louis Schmidt and Sam. Meyer. All were unanimous in declaring it as sweet and rich toned an organ as there is in the city. The diapasons are particularly good, most of the solo stops are excellent and the swell is full and effective, whilst by a system of combination buttons, much manual labor is saved. It will be publicly opened to-morrow evening, at which time a concert of sacred music will be given by many celebrities, vocal and instrumental.

A BIRD OF PASSAGE.

As the day's last light is dying,
As the night's first breeze is sighing,
I send you love, like a messenger dove,
My thought the distance flying!
'Tis a bird that in plume and sinew
Is strong as the truth within you;
'Tis a bird as white as the faith you plight
With the lover so proud to win you!

I bid it speed till it meet you,
Then fluttering downward, greet you,
With a coo, perchance, or with glowing glance,
That softly seems to entreat you!
Let it perch on your sill; or better,
Let it feel your frail hand's fetter,
For under its wing it shall surely bring
Love, hidden away like a letter!

How He Won Her.

A young couple were occupying a rustic seat at Woodwards, one evening, and from the expression of the masculine representative's face, it was evident that he was "a goner"—drifted, as it were, over the great psychological Niagara of affection, and was even then being whirled dizzily about in the frothy whirlpool of sentiment. The swimming birds had no charm for him; the eagles were as nothing; and he did not even notice the big black bear.

"Oh, do be mine," he said, attempting to draw her a little nearer his end of the seat.

She made herself rigid and heaved a sigh.

"I'll be a good man and give up all my bad habits," he urged.

No reply.

"I'll never drink another drop," he continued.

Still unrelenting sat the object of his adoration.

"And give up chewing—"

No response.

"And smoking—"

Cold as ever.

"And join the church—"

She only shook her head.

"And give you a diamond engagement ring," he added in desperation.

Then the maiden lfted her drooping eyes to his, and, leaning her frizzes on his shoulder, tremblingly murmured into his ravished ear:

"Oh, Edward, you—you are so good!"

And there they sat, and sat, until the soft arms of night—that dusky nurse of the world—had folded them from sight, pondering, planning, thinking—she of the diamond ring, and he of how on earth he was to get it.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

A student who had been afflicted with a sermon one hour and a half long, grumblingly says that these professors study so much about eternity that they have no conception of time.

A certain young lady is so modest that she will not permit the Christian Observer to remain in her room over night.

Transfusion of blood is a humbug in some cases. A Chicago man had a pint of bull dog's blood conducted into his veins, and then tried to lick his wife. She laid him up for a week.

A near-sighted Boston man was lately riding in a street car, when a lady opposite bowed to him. He returned the bow, raised his hat, smiled sweetly, and was just wondering who she was, when she came over and whispered in his ear, "Oh! I'll fix you for this, old man!" Then he knew it was his wife.

Beynolds, the dramatist, observing the thinness of the house at one of his plays said: "I suppose it is owing to the war!" "No," was the reply, "it is owing to the piece."

It is the sagacious remark of a keen observer that you can generally tell a newly married couple at the dinner table, by the indignation of the groom when a fly alights on the bride's butter.

"What kind of sassages is them?" queried an old lady of the young man of literature and peanuts, as he passed through the train selling bananas.

A California octogenarian had buried three wives whose maiden names were Green, Grass and Groze. He stirred up the fire with kerosene the other day, and now he lies in the cold, cold grave, and the green grass grows above him.

"Mary, why did you kiss your hand to the gentleman opposite, this morning?" said a careful mother to her blooming daughter. "Why, the gentleman had the impudence to throw a kiss clear across the street, and, of course, I threw it back indignantly! You wouldn't have me encourage him, by keeping it, would you?"

"I want it nice and strong, and snug-like," said the widow exhuming a fresh pocket-handkerchief, and controlling her sobs with difficulty. "Oh! that's all right, ma'am, that's all right," returned the undertaker, tapping the coffin merrily; "he couldn't get out of it, if he had a mind to."

No man can become thoroughly acquainted with his family history without running for office.

A farmer complains that a hook and ladder company has been organized in his neighborhood. He states that the ladder is used after dark for climbing into the hen-house, after which the hooking is done.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

NOTHING IF NOT NOTORIOUS.

"On my honor," says the London correspondent of the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, "I believe that Mr. James Mortimer, editor and proprietor of the London Figaro, is anxious to play the part of an English Villemessant. He would win notoriety and capital by means of his unpopularity. M. Villemessant, of the French Figaro, does not break his heart when he is hissed at a theatre. He makes capital out of it, and gets the opportunity for a spirited article. Books and pamphlets and squibs and caricatures have appeared on the subject of this remarkable gentleman, and he exists at this day one of the best known and richest proprietors in Paris, owning also a charming summer retreat at Etretat, in Normandy. I wandered over the grounds of M. Villemessant's lovely chateau on one of the hottest days of last Autumn. I think I told you [illegible] Mr. Mortimer, of the London Figaro, had grievously offended the occupants of the gallery (we call them gods in England) and of the pit, by calling them 'a rabble' for expressing strong opinions on several occasions. Since the unlucky paragraph appeared, the theatrical life of Mr. Mortimer has been a burden to him. No sooner has he shown his face in the theatre than he has been greeted with a volley of groans and catcalls, annoying to the recipient, and terribly irritating to theatrical audiences. But the deliberate threat to Mr. Mortimer has always been, "Wait till you produce a new play, and then see how we will treat you." Nothing daunted, Mr. Mortimer did bring out a new play. He has done some good work before, notably with a version of "Le Mariage de Figaro," produced recently at the Olympic, and remarkable for the really excellent acting of Emily Fowler as Suzanne. The Figaro of Mr. Edward Righton was not a remarkable specimen of genius, by-the-by, but never mind that. Well, on Saturday last, the English Villemessant brought out, at the Princess Theatre, a tame and Bowdlerized version of "Le Dame aux Camelias, by Alexandre Dumas, the younger. The play is called "Heartsease," and it was written for Miss Helen Barry, who had made up her mind to play the sentimental heroine. I need hardly tell you that the whole idea of the romance was necessarily altered for the sake of English prejudice, and for fear of the Lord Chamberlain and his trusted official, the "Examiner of Stage Plays." Although the opera, called "La Traviata," has been permitted in Italian, the play called "La Dame aux Camelias" has been placed on the index expurgatorius. Mr. Mortimer's heroine is the incarnation of virtue. She is an actress sans peur et sans reproche, and when a sentimental young gentleman has fallen in love with her, and has promised her honorable marriage, she gives him up because his pig-headed old father objects to actresses in the abstract, and considers that the family will lose caste if an actress is received into it. Such a change of motive necessarily weakens the drama considerably, and though I am bound to say Miss Helen Barry played better, with more feeling, intensity, and intellect than on any other occasion, the play of "Heartsease" will be remarkable in theatrical history only on account of the "scene" which it occasioned. It was easy to see that a certain select few had come, according to promise, to condemn the play unheard. The curtain had scarcely risen, and but a few lines of dialogue had been spoken, before the old hooting and howling recommenced. If the heroine had been a Rachel, and the hero a Salvini, it would have made little matter. The word had gone round that Mortimer's play was to be hissed off the stage, good or bad. The trick was not very honorable, but there is no arguing with a mob. Poor Miss Barry! Every one pitied her; she was doing her best, but no actress in the world could make headway against such a storm. Suddenly there rushed to the front a gallant Horatius Coates, who defended the dramatic bridge and gained a conspicuous victory. Cast for the part of the lover was Mr. William Rignold, as handsome and fine a fellow as his brother, George Rignold, now with you. He is over six feet high, and broad in proportion. He was the bullying brother in "The Two Orphans," and quite as good in appearance as the original in Paris. When the storm of hissing was at its height, Mr. William Rignold rushed from the wings and came down to the footlights. [illegible] demanded a hearing. In pathetic and eloquent language he appealed to all who had mothers and sisters to give Miss Barry a patient hearing, and to postpone their adverse criticism. "Wait till you have seen the picture," shouted Mr. Rignold, "and then condemn it if you will; it is cowardly to do so now!" The effect of this sudden and impulsive address was miraculous. Evidently some of the malcontents had sisters and mothers. The shot went home, and from that instant the pit and gallery were silent as mice. There was not another murmur or whisper. They listened patiently to the play until midnight, and actually called for Mr. Mortimer, their enemy, in order to load him with honors and greet him with cheers. A good book might be written on the eccentricities of audiences. It was at this very theatre that, on the first night of "Never Too Late to Mend," by Charles Reade, the dramatic critic of the Morning Advertiser started up in the stalls, and protested against the brutality of the dramatic picture when the boy Joseph is ill-treated by the governor of the gaol. In point of fact, it was so well done and was so real that the audience was disgusted. Charles Reade has considered poor Mr. Tomlins "a hog of a critic" ever since, but then we never mind Charles Reade. His violence of language is proverbial. It is one of the numerous eccentricities of this sensible gentleman.

Salvini Not Original.

Herr Bandmann, referring to what has been described as new 'business,' in some recent representations of "Hamlet," writes to the Era as follows: "I find credit given to Signor Salvini for bringing the Ghost from under the stage. This is done in every theatre in Germany. Again, the introduction of a MS. of the play in the play scene, and the nervous turning over of its leaves during the performance to hide the Prince's excitement, and to mask his due scrutiny of the King, has been done by myself years ago. The introduction of the MS. is, in England at least, due to the late Mr. Bellew, who taught it to Mr. Fechter. He was the first to introduce it on the English stage. The fall into Horatio's arms after the play scene is over, is very old, and is done by every Hamlet in Germany. The action originates with Emil Devrient. Mr. Irving has been highly praised for having his back turned to the Ghost at his first appearance. This business originated with no less a personage than Garrick himself, which will be seen in an excellent little book called 'The Actor; or, A Treaties on the Art of Playing!' London: R. Griffiths. 1875. I may claim to have reintroduced this business at my first appearance as Hamlet in Gratz, 1860. Hamlet's sudden taking out of his tablets to compose the lines of the play scene, at the end of the second act, was introduced by Fritz Devrient (nephew of Emil), and afterwards repeated by Joseph Wagner, and many more German Hamlets."

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

A California octogenarian had buried three wives whose maiden names were Green, Grass and Groze. He stirred up the fire with kerosene the other day, and now he lies in the cold, cold grave, and the green grass grows above him.

"Mary, why did you kiss your hand to the gentleman opposite, this morning?" said a careful mother to her blooming daughter. "Why, the gentleman had the impudence to throw a kiss clear across the street, and, of course, I threw it back indignantly! You wouldn't have me encourage him, by keeping it, would you?"

"I want it nice and strong, and snug-like," said the widow exhuming a fresh pocket-handkerchief, and controlling her sobs with difficulty. "Oh! that's all right, ma'am, that's all right," returned the undertaker, tapping the coffin merrily; "he couldn't get out of it, if he had a mind to."

No man can become thoroughly acquainted with his family history without running for office.

A farmer complains that a hook and ladder company has been organized in his neighborhood. He states that the ladder is used after dark for climbing into the henhouse, after which the hooking is done.

"Minnie, I'm in such a quandary; for if I turn my back on Charlie he becomes offended at once, and if I don't, he can't see my new buckle. What shall I do?"

Best training ships for naughty little boys—Smacks.

Old gent—"What do you wear specs for, boy?" Bootblack—"Cos I puts such a shiny shine on gentlemen's boots, it hurts me eyes."

Costly furniture—Indian bureaus.

Garrick and Miss Younge.

Miss Younge (afterwards Mrs. Pope) was above the middle height, and finely formed about the neck and shoulders. There was a roundness and precision in her speaking, and her manner was commanding, and though her face was not handsome, it was expressive. She was so very successful in her first appearance that her salary was raised, after a night or two of acting, £3, and at the end of the season to £5, unsolicited. On the 8th of June, 1776, Garrick played Lear. It was the last night but one of his appearing on the stage; the curtain fell in the usual way, with his band locked in Miss Younge's, who played Cordelia. In that way he lead her into the green-room, and, recollecting that his next performance was to be his last, he said with a sigh, "Oh, Bess! this is the last time of my being your father; you must now look out for some one else to adopt you." "Then, sir," said she, falling upon her knees, "pray give me a father's blessing." Raising her up, he said "God bless you!" and, adding to the performers (who had crowded around them), in a faltering and affectionate tone, "God bless you all!" hurried out of the room. Mrs. Pope used to relate this with great pleasure, but seldom without shedding tears.

Opera House.

"The Big Bonanza" continues to attract good audiences. The house is filled every night, the setting of the piece is careful and elegant, and the acting a good sample of modern comedy. There is no talk of any change of bill yet.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Mignon" was given for the third and last time, last evening to as good and appreciative a house as ever. To-night "Ernani" for the second and possibly the last time with Mrs. Richings-Bernard as Elvira, Mr. Castle as Ernani, Mr. Carleton as Carlos and Mr. Conly as Gomez.

California Theatre.

All one need write of this theatre is, "Business as Usual," which means that the house is nightly filled with a great crowd of people who are swayed and moved by the action of the play as if it were a life drama in which they were active participants.

Pacific Hall.

The Kennedys had a very fair attendance last evening. To all lovers of part music most charmingly sung we can confidently recommend this entertainment. The management of the subdued harmonies in the glees is alone worth consideration.

Platt's Hall.

It will be seen from the advertisement elsewhere that the Mexican Infantile Opera Troupe give another season at Platt's Hall, commencing on Friday next, when "The Doctor of Alcantara," the comic opera of "The College Girl" and operatic selections by the Signorina Soledad Unda y Moron will form the bill. The next Sunday evening performance of the troupe at the California Theatre, will be for the benefit of Charles Schutz, the business Manager, when "Marina" will be given.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The local sketch of "Eight Hours a Day" has taken immensely, Kimic's Dutch comicalities are first-class, and the whole performance is as the bill says, a feast of fun and frolic.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The appearance of Johnny Tuers here has given things a fillip. His sketch of "Clameel" is intensely funny. "The Robbers of Poverty Flat" and "The Brand of Shame" are great attractions.

Palace Variety Theatre.

To-morrow evening. Harry Devoy and Henri Stuart, take a joint benefit, one of the attractions of which will be a champion clog dance by nearly all the clog dancers in towns for a silver cup and belt.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday first time of the great Borthwick Reid, the Scottish Athlete and Champion Trick Swordsman of the world in his marvellous feats with the sword, the beautiful Albino children, the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

THE FAN.

[The origin of the fan is told very prettily in these arch and gracefully turned verses:]

MISCHIEF FOR IDLE HANDS.

When fallen Eve became aware
How ill she had behaved to man,
To hide from his reproachful stare,
She went and made herself a fan.

But when she peeped above the rim
In wistful deprecating wise,
The action rather tickled him—
He "didn't know she had such eyes."

So when he asked her to explain
The object of that new conceit,
Away went shame—she peeped again,
And said, "To screen her from the heat."

The day was her's; full many too
Have conquered thus in many lands;
Eve told her daughters what to do
In future with their idle hands.

The New "Figaro" Club.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held on Thursday, July 1st, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, of the leading members of the dramatic profession in N. Y. Among those present were Mr. Stephen Fiske, Chairman; Mr. J. J. Wallace, John Mack, Mr. B. Ryan, and Mr. McCloskey. After an elegant collation, Mr. Delmar addressed the meeting and described the nature of the new club, which is, in every way, a very laudable undertaking. The "Figaro Club," such is its name, seems likely to be a really valuable institution. It has a club-house, and well-organized dramatic agency. Administered by its members will be a relief fund for the sick and destitute members, and a committee to visit the sick and even to bury the dead. In a word, it is a dramatic "guild." The premises are in West Twenty-seventh street, and are elegant and commodious. The following is the list of the board of officers: President, John Brougham; Treasurer, Hon. John A. Brandreth; Secretary, John A. Mack; Manager, E. C. Delmar; Assistant Secretary, D. R. Doty. Committee on Organization—J. J. Wallace, J. J. McCloskey, Chandos Fulton, Sephen Fiske, E. C. Delmar, John A. Mack, D. R. Doty. It has been further proposed to tender the position of honorary vice-president to the following ladies and gentlemen: John McCullough, John E. Owens, W. J. Florence, Ellsler, Ben DeBar, Charles Pope, Mrs. John Drew, Rev. Dr. Bellows, Mrs. Morrison (Toronto), Minnie Conway, R. M. Hooley, J. H. McVicker, Lester Wallack, H. B. Palmer, H. C. Jarrett, John T. Ford, William Sheridan, Ben McCauley, John Albaugh, D. Bidwell, Joseph Jefferson, Max Maretzek, Frank Chanfrau, Edwin Booth, Barney Williams, J. Brutus Booth, William Wheatley, A. Oakey Hall, Whitelaw Reed, Frank Leslie, Frank Queen, Demas Barnes, William Davidge, Augustin Daly, A. L. Parkes, Bartley Campbell, George Wilkes. The "Figaro Club" will open on July 10th. We wish it every success, and feel persuaded that it will prove of genuine benefit to the theatrical profession in this country.

"MR. CLARK."

A novel just published in Paris, entitled L'Americaine, by M. Paulin Niboquet, is attracting considerable attention both in literary and social circles from the very readable descriptions which it gives of New York and Chicago life. The hero, Maurice Durand, is a young French gentleman of birth and wealth, who has been unfortunate enough to be drawn into the Commune a little, and who consequently finds it agreeable to take an airing in America. Arrived in New York, he visits the operas, sees Miss Evelina Taylor in a private box, and she sees him. Result, love at first sight. In due time M. Durand finds that Evelina's father is his banker; he is introduced at the mansion, and he marries Evelina at the end of the book, after many and singular adventures. Here is an entertaining passage concerning a visit which M. Durand pays to a New York banking establishment: With French customs still in his mind, Maurice evidently expected as he entered the great banking-house that some one would ask him twenty times what he wanted, who he was, whence he came, and to whom he wished to speak. But no one paid any attention to him; time is money, and the three or four colored servants in the vestibule were too busy doing nothing to take any notice of his presence. He finally decided, however, to venture into a large room where there were numerous clerks in their shirt-sleeves (as it was very warm), the aforesaid clerks appearing absorbed in contemplation of the cigar smoke which curled in capricious circles above their heads, and he held out his letter of credit to one of them. The clerk took it without saying anything, examined it, turned it over, felt of it carefully, and after a short silence, handed it back, uttering this single and memorable sentence:

"Mr. Clark!"

Maurice was no better off than before, not knowing Mr. Clark, nor what might be the duties of that functionary in the banking-house of James Taylor & Company. He therefore went to a second employee, who was reading the New York Herald, and who was almost entirely concealed behind that voluminous journal, but who did not even deign to disturb himself to look at the letter of credit. Taking the matter pleasantly, and even finding it original, Maurice passed on. A third clerk was busy with his pen. He was writing as little as possible, but he was at least writing. Such an active person certainly ought to comprehend the value of information, and Maurice hoped for some assistance.

"Mr. Clark!" repeated this faithful employee, and returned to his caligraphy.

"The deuce!" thought Maurice. "This is getting complicated. I wonder how it would do to go and ask Mr. Taylor who this Mr. Clark happens to be?" As he reflected thus his eye fell on the banker himself, in his shirt-sleeves, seated in a handsome private office, and very busy just at that moment in polishing an apple before proceeding to eat it. All the world knows that the Americans are the greatest consumers of apples under the heavens. If they lived in Normandy, there never would be any cider to drink there, and if they had ever inhabited the terrestrial paradise, they would have shaken all the apple trees so thoroughly that poor mother Eve would never have been able to commit her sin, not even with the assistance of the devil.

"A man who eats apples," thought Maurice, "ought to have a first-rate character."

So he went resolutely to ask for Mr. Clark.

"Mr. Clark?" repeated the large man. [The reader remembers that Mr. James Taylor was large.] "Ah, you wish to see him?"

"Certainly, sir," said Maurice, with a little warmth, "very much."

Mr. Taylor said nothing, but put his finger on a bell. A clerk the same who had first pronounced Mr. Clark's name, came in.

"Mr. Clark," said the banker.

The employe raised his head and looked round in every direction.

"Mr. Clark!" cried he, in a sonorous, though somewhat nasal voice.

"Mr, Clark!" was transmitted successively in the same tone, and with the same nasal drawl, from one to an other, by all the employees in the bank. At last one of the negroes in the ante-chamber decided to arouse himself.

"Mr. Clark," he said, "has gone out to take a drink!"

A Word to the Wise, etc.

WAGNER'S MUSIC.

A writer in the London Contemporary Review says some very true things about Wagner's style of composition. The attempt made by Wagner to deny all independent æsthetic value to music, apart from poetry, must be regarded as the weakest part of his theory. The writer thus cleverly combats it: "Herr Wagner's idea of eliciting from poetry the primitive melody that slumbers in it, is, no doubt, a very pretty fancy, but is, when interpreted literally, an absurdity. No natural language of the emotions, whatever may be its analogies to music; no primitive type of speech, however poetic, affords an adequate basis of tonality—which is a condition of the new dramatic melos, no less than of all previous varieties of melody. However appropriate musical form may be to poetic material, it is in no sense the product of this material, but grew up as in independent mode of art. What is true of the conditions of the simplest musical forms is true of the conditions of the most complex. They are imposed by the laws of tone-impression itself, considered as an element of a discerning and comparing consciousness, and have no immediate connection with the requirements of poetic expression. First of all, it may be said that the highest mode of uniting music to a drama, is, as Herr Wagner maintains, that of uniting it throughout; accordingly, the whole of the dramatic poem should, as far as possible, possess a certain elevated emotional character. Further, since musical structure always involves a certain degree of unity of emotional character, it follows that the drama should be characterized by a high degree of unity of sentiment. The more complete the harmony of the parts of a drama in their emotional effects on the mind, the better, cæteris paribus, is the drama fitted for musical treatment. Hence, we find that the best lyrical dramas are always marked by some ruling sentiment or leading emotional idea, which serves as a basis of a double unity—poetic and musical. At the same time, musical form requires picturesque variety as much as organic unity, and, accordingly, the drama, which seeks to be lyrical, must present numerous contrasts of situation, such as are fitted to draw out different orders of musical capability. Skillfully to combine a few well-marked dramatic contrasts in a total unity, so as to provide ample scope to the composer for pleasing and effective coordinations of musical phrase and mood, is an art attainable by a few only. Passing now to the detailed parts of the musical drama, we observe, first of all, that the addition of music to a dramatic subject necessitates a number of definitely lyrical situations, in which feeling may express itself freely and exhaustively. Such moments must stand in marked contrast to the moments of the progressive action. I quite concur with Herr Otto Jahn, who maintains, in opposition to Herr Wagner, that the lyrical drama must not be a perpetual flux, but must contain points of repose. 'It is,' he says, 'according to nature, not only that single feeling should be suggested by leaps, (Sprungweise), but also that this perpetually renewed partial tension should be followed by a complete intensive satisfaction—a pouring out of the excited feeling, which must necessarily spread itself out.' It is this law of our emotional nature which forms the basis of the prolonged aria form, against which Herr Wagner is never weary of directing his attack. The aria is a complete and rounded vocal form, which offers ample score for a rich, various, yet united melodic structure. It is obvious that there is no room for this musical form amid the rapid progressive movements of a dramatic action; but it constitutes a fit and beautiful mold for a pure emotion when raised above a certain intensity, and needing, as Herr Jahn remarks, a lengthy and satisfying utterance. It may be safely asserted that an opera, which is replete with beautiful airs, appropriately united to the drama, will always be esteemed superior to one which lacks these elements. From all the foregoing considerations we are led to the conclusion that the relation of music and poetry, in the lyrical drama, is not, as the Wagnerites say, one of servant and lord, but one of fellow-servants to a common lord. The highest aim of the musical drama is realized, when both poetry and music co-operate in producing a large and harmonious whole. That it may be large, each must have as free a scope as possible for the employment of its own peculiar agencies." These remarks are evidently called forth by the state of public opinion in England on the subject of "Lohengrin," which has not met with so decided a success as its admirers imagined it would. It had to be shortened at Covent Garden, when Albani performed the part of Elsa, and the last accounts from London, assure us that, at Her Majesty's, the opera is still further limited. Mlle. Titiens plays the part of Oltruda at this theatre; Christine Nilsson, Elsa; and Campanini, Lohengrin. The London people find, with "Punch," that the opera has no decided melodies in it. Wagner, in an article he recently published, announces his utter abhorrence of the "luscious melodies of the Italian school." He does not even applaud Gluck, but somehow or other admires Weber, who is more melodious and Italian in his method than any German composer we know of. Still more odd to relate, he attacks Meyerbeer's historical operas fiercely, though, in the construction or better selection of his plots. Wagner certainly resembles Meyerbeer not a little.

"Were They Insured ?"

A superintendent of schools in one of the cities of this state writes that a duty had lately devolved upon him, as papa, to do a little Bible story every Sunday morning to his children, for which purpose he had provided himself with an illustrated bible. His last experiment in that department of human effort was in presenting to them the story of our old friend Lot. After reading the text and adding certain original and orthodox comments, the pictures were explained. How noble a thing is art! and, as Dr. Sitgreaves used to observe, "How hard it is to paint good!" The five year-old boy gazed with interest on the cities of the plain enveloped in fire from heaven, and then prostrated his paternal with the bold practical interrogatory: "Were they insured ?"

An Historical Acrobat.

When Queen Mary Tudor was crowned September, 1553, amongst the sights provided for the entertainment was the performance of a certain Peter the Dutchman who was a renowned acrobat. He mounted up to St. Paul's steeple, and there performed some astonishing gymnastics amidst fireworks and illuminations. On the occasion of Edward VI.'s coronation Peter did better still, he danced on a rope stretched from the top of St. Paul's steeple to the end of the choir roof. This steeple was 390 feet high and very sharp and pointed. He received the sum of £16 13s. 3d. for his trouble, and a gift from the Queen of cloth to make him a suit of clothes.

A Good Reason.

Lavender had been married just three weeks when he visited his club for the last time. One of his eyes had suffered a partial eclipse, there was an unnatural thinness noticeable in his whiskers and hair, and his voice seemed to have lost the jovial tones which belonged to his bachelor days, as calling the members about him he said: "It is one of the rules of the club that no member can resign without giving a good verbal reason therefor. I resign at the earnest solicitation of my wife. Need I say more, gentleman ?"

Rather Deaf.

A little zephyr struck Floyd county, Missouri, the other day, and nearly turned it upside down. It blew John Barney's house over, with Mrs. Barney and the children in it, rolled it over three times, jammed it against a tree and tore it to pieces, and the inmates were only slightly bruised. As a postcript to all this we would say that Mrs. Barney, who is somewhat deaf, never desisted from her knitting all that time, and when the final crash came, only looked up and said: "Come in; don't knock."

A New Flower.

It is the fashion in England now to name any new variety of flower that is produced after some personal friend of the ingenious cultivator. And thus we have nurserymen sending out cataloungues of their newest roses with such descriptions as these: "Miss Hassard—Beautiful delicate pinkish flesh color, large, full and fine form, very sweetly scented."

Maguire's New Theatre.

The "Ernani" of last night was in many happy espects a repetition of the performance given on Wednesday evening of last week. The house was full, thoroughly appreciative, the music excellently well sung and encores awarded Conly's "Infelice" and the chorus at the conclusion of the third act. To-night Mozart's "Don Giovanni" will be given here for the first time in English. The cast may be seen by consulting the bill elsewhere.

California Theatre.

The "Shaughraun" to-night with the same crowded house as was present last evening.

Opera House.

"The Big Bonanza" will be removed after to-morrow night, so that those who wish to see it must avail themselves of the only three opportunities which are left. On Monday next, "Man and Wife."

Platt's Hall.

It will be seen from the advertisement elsewhere that the Mexican Infantile Opera Troupe give another season at Platt's Hall, commencing this evening, when "The Doctor of Alcantara," the comic opera of "The College Girl" and operatic selections by the Signorina Soledad Unda y Moron will form the bill. The next Sunday evening performance of the troupe at the California Theatre, will be for the benefit of Charles Schutz, the business Manager, when "Marina" will be given.

Pacific Hall.

The Kennedys afford each night a treat to all lovers of Scotch ballad music and part singing. A change of programme for this evening.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Swain and West make their re-appearance to-night in their song and dance sketch of "The Yankee Boys," Mortimore and Kimic, Senate and Price and George Foster all on the bill.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

To-night Ned Barry in character songs, Johnny Tuers in his characteristic sketches, Hughey Robinson in songs, "Poverty Flat" and "The Brand of Shame."

Palace Variety Theatre.

The performance to-night will be for the joint benefit of Harry Devoy and Henry Stuart. One of the features on the bill will be trial jigs for the championship and silver-cup, between Murphy, Christie, Welch, Sally and Butler. Billy Taylor and other volunteers will appear.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Saturday and Sunday first time of the great Borthwick Reid, the Scottish Athlete and Champion Trick Swordsman of the world in his marvellous feats with the sword, the beautiful Albino children, the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert.

City Gardens.

Mlle. Pauline's leap of 100 feet through a blaze of fire, and triple trapeze acts, with the Luproll Brothers, Mme. Therese and Mons. Schmidt in their classic dances, at 3 o'clock, Saturday and Sunday.

Notes.

Applause having been squelched at the Church of the Advent Concert given last evening, it was impossible to judge of what pleased the large congregation most. For our part we thoroughly enjoyed the "Angel's Serenade" by Miss Clara Beutler, with violin obligato by Louis Schmidt, Jr., and "O Rest in the Lord" by Mrs Seguin. Of the three organ solos, we preferred first, Geo. Evan's overture to the "Midsummer's Night's Dream," and then J. P. Morgan's "Sonata." The church was well filled.

Miss Jennie Lee takes a farewell benefit on Wednesday week.

Miss Ellie Wilton arrives in town to-night, after an extended European tour. She writes that she followed the bibulous custom of Ems and other German towns to such good purpose that she has grown fat. Heaven forbid! Come back as you left us, please.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relie by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 207 Kearny street, between Sutter and Bush, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference given if required. N

Fresh and Sweet.

For the best confectionery, go to Canty and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St near Sutter. N

THE ANGEL AND THE SUNSHINE.

Last evening I saw an angel
His great white pinions wave,
And he passed through a quiet churchyard,
And stopped at an infant's grave;

And taking a ray of sunshine
Out of his pinions bright,
He laid it among the violets,
And it formed a cross of light.

This morning I went to the churchyard,
All through the soft Spring air;
The angel had flown to heaven,
But the sunshine still was there!

Speculators' Hardships.

"Yes, these are awful hard times," said a suffering capitalist, on La Salle street, as he stood on his steps, talking to a friend, last evening.

"Mighty tough, I expect," was the reply.

"Why," said the broker, "I've been investing and investing for a year back—a pile of money, I assure you—and I find I've been losing like fury."

"Indeed?"

"True's I'm living. If I've lost a cent, I've lost more than $300,000."

"No!"

"Certainly," continued the broker, "and what makes me feel the worst, is that fully $150 of it was my own!"

Too Bold Begging.

A Nashville orator at a public meeting said: "My dear brethren, it has been usual to testify approbation by the clapping of hands, one against the other; but let me recommend to you in preference, the gentle mode of clapping your hands, not one against the other, but into your breeches pocket, and thence withdrawing them; I would further advise that you clap your money into the collection box." The audience clapped their hats upon their heads, and retired.

"Summer Draws—."

"Summer draws near," mused Mr. Jenkins as he gazed on the landscape from his cottage window the other morning. "Summer drawers, dear Richard," said Mrs. J. sharply. "If you go to putting on Summer drawers before the first of July you may double up with the rheumatism before I'll sit up all night rubbing you again, Mr. Jenkins."

A Sensible Notice.

A gentleman of White Plains, N. Y., has placed a notice to burglars, printed in gold letters on a cardboard, in a conspicuous position on his safe, to the effect that it contains papers only, of no value to any one but the owner; but, if burglars wish to take a peep inside for themselves, not to burst the safe, but use the combination according to the instructions which he gives.

Woman's P. S.

"William," observed a Danbury woman to her husband, "Mrs. Holcombs feels pretty badly since the loss of her child, and I wish you would drop over there and see her. You might say that all flesh is grass, that we've all got to go the same way; and see if she is going to use her dripping-pan this afternoon."

Cool.

A cool matron of Philadelphia awoke one night recently and found a burglar in her room. Did she scream out? No! She just got him into an argument on the Beecher scandal, and thus detained him until daylight and the milkman came, when she made her situation known and the burglar was arrested.

A Nice Reason.

"Going to leave, Mary?" "Yes, mum; I find I am very discontented." "If there's anything I can do to make you more comfortable, let me know." "You can't alter your figure no more'n I can. Your dresses won't fit me, and I can't appears on Sundays as I used to at my last place, where missus' clothes fitted 'zactly."

At this old-established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops, Breakfasts or Dinners, in town. STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

The Brooklyn trial has not injured religon. Women wear just as good clothes to church as ever.

Troy has invented a new out-door game. It is a cross between base ball and croquet, and you have a chance to put your arm around a girl.

Mint's meat—Lamb.

If a girl named Ella with a small and pretty foot should die, and her body should be subjected to the process of cremation, could she be called a Cinderella?

"Jury," said a Western Judge, "you kin go out and find a verdict. If you can't find one of your own get the one the last jury used." The jury returned a verdict of suicide in the ninth degree.

If the ladies take another reef in their dresses they will appear to wear a sort of one-legged trowsers.

Although Arsene Houssaye seems to have taken the American public into his confidence, and quite freely communicated the secrets of the boudoir, the saloon and the kitchen, he has strangely omitted to mention whether the ladies of his acquaintace wear garters, or resort to the patent stocking-suspender.

The students at a Michigan college turned out with fish-horns and serenaded the Faculty, the other night. The president said he never imagined the institution boasted so many able tooters.

It is a little remarkable that the three murderers now in Boston jail, bear names commencing with P—Pomroy, Pemberton and Piper. Evidently Massachussetts, must mind her "p's" if not her "q's."

A rising young man accosted the proprietor of a Brooklyn drug store, last week, as follows: "Say, mister, gimme a stick of licorice—your clerk goes with my sister, Susie."

When the late Dr. Scudder (senior) of India was arousing the children of America to care for the heathen, he received a note from a little boy who had heard him, saying, "My dear Dr. Scudder, I send you ten cents. When you want any more money, write to me."

The pull-back style of feminine dress has developed an astonishing masculine interest in anatomical studies.

A Lowell man keeps up his woodpile by making bets that his wife can saw and split two cords in twelve hours. The poor women is so vain of husband's praise that she never can be brought to see the speculation in it.

The "mean" temperature is what disgusts a man with every climate.

An exchange suggests that if you want to see a man struggling to do several things at once, just watch him try to put on his overcoat and rubbers, and yet keep his head bowed while the minister is pronouncing the benediction.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

"Summer Draws—."

"Summer draws near," mused Mr. Jenkins as he gazed on the landscape from his cottage window the other morning. "Summer drawers, dear Richard," said Mrs. J. sharply. "If you go to putting on Summer drawers before the first of July you may double up with the rheumatism before I'll sit up all night rubbing you again, Mr. Jenkins."

A Nice Reason.

"Going to leave, Mary?" "Yes, mum; I find I am very discontented." "If there's anything I can do to make you more comfortable, let me know." "You can't alter your figure no more'n I can. Your dresses won't fit me, and I can't appears on Sundays as I used to at my last place, where missus' clothes fitted 'zactly."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1860 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

A Word to the Wise, etc.

Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Amusements, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"The Shaughraun" will be run all during Mr. Boucicault's engagement, but such condensations will be made next week as will allow of the production of "Kerry" as an after-piece. This bill will afford the public the opportunity of seeing Mr. Boucicault in two of his best and more strongly contrasted parts.

OPERA HOUSE.—This afternoon and evening "The Big Bonanza" for the last time. Next week will be devoted to the original Fifth Avenue successes as follows, Monday and Tuesday, "Man and Wife," Wednesday and Thursday, "Charity," Friday and Saturday, "Saratoga."

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—The "take" for "Don Giovanni" was an immense one, and in consequence, the house was jammed. Mozart's famous opera, was, on the whole, remarkably well played, the distribution of the characters being one well calculated to show the main strength of the company. Unfortunately we have neither time nor place to notice in detail the Don Giovanni of Mr. Carleton, the Donna Anna of Mrs. Richings-Bernard, the Elvira of Miss Beaumont, the Don Octavio of Mr Maas, the Leporello of Mr. Peakes, the Commandant of Mr. Conly or the Zerlina of Mlle. Carreno Redenti, who, by-the-by, was well received and narrowly escaped an encore for her aria in the second act. The masked trio was encored and all the favorite numbers loudly applauded. This afternoon "The Bohemian Girl" and to-night "Faust," which will be repeated to-morrow evening with a change of cast.

MEXICAN INFANTILE OPERA COMPANY. "The Doctor of Alcantara" and "The College Girl" were well given by the Mexican Infantile Opera Troupe, and the beginning of a new season promises well. The same bill will be presented this evening, whilst this afternoon "The Grand Duchess," the opera in which they have been most successful will be presented. To-morrow evening at the California Theatre, the new opera of Marina" will be given for the benefit of Chas. Schutz, the energetic business manager.

PACIFIC HALL.—Induced by the success which has attended their first week's series of entertainments, the Kennedys have determined to stay with us yet another seven days.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—In addition to the usual excellent olio of song, dance and specialty business, there will be to-night the acts of "Mrs. Didyimus's Party," "The Fellow that Looks Like Me," "The Siamese Twins" and "Eight Hours a Day."

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—Johnny Tuers, Ned Barry, Hughey Robinson, Matt Carroll, Vinnie Welch and others manage to give a first-class entertainment here. On Friday next, benefit to "Happy Jack."

PALACE VARIETY THEATRE.—There will be a performance at this house Saturday and Sunday evenings.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—ATTRACTIONS. On Saturday and Sunday first time of the great Borthwick Reid, the Scottish Athlete and Champion Trick Swordsman of the world in his marvellous feats with the sword, the beautiful Albino children, the Gymnastic Troupe and Orchestral Concert.

CITY GARDENS.—Mlle. Pauline's leap of 100 feet through a blaze of fire, and triple trapeze acts, with the Luproil Brothers, Mme. Therese and Mons. Schmidt in their classic dances, at 3 o'clock, Saturday and Sunday.

NOTES.

We see that J. McCabe has interested himself in the welfare of the blind actress, Mlle. Albertine and has reported to the N. Y. Dramatic Association his intention of organizing a benefit for her. We wish him God-speed therein, and are very sure that he will find many willing co-workers. For the further action of the Dramatic Fund Association in the matter see our New York news.

Mlle. Carreno Redenti's (Miss Kate Reed) sister, May Nunez, is at present playing with the left wing of Daly's Fifth Avenue Company, at the Grand Opera House, Toronto.

The Rosedale Theatrical Troupe, including Mr. and Mrs. Fulford, gave a theatrical entertainment at Kessler's Theatre, Yreka, on Thursday.

The Hooley's opened at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, on Monday last, in "The Two Orphans," and made an immediate hit. It was played until Thursday, when "David Garrick" and "Jenny Lind, formed the bill. So well has the troupe been received here that Hooley has decided to stay another week. On Monday next "Ultimo; or, Amongst the Bulls and Bears," will be produced.

Since the English Opera Company left Salt Lake nothing has been done in the way of amusements. On Monday next, however, Mr. J. S. Lindsay opens the theatre for an evening with "Money" and "A Fish out of Water."

The Saurets have done marvellously well south, it seems. The Santa Barbara papers come to us brim-full of the most extravagant praise of each member of the troupe, which, by the bye, consists of the Saurets, Signora Valerga and Mr. Cohen, the tenor.

Morrell's Minstrels showed at Salem, on Monday last.

The American Burlesque Opera Troupe (!) of Eugene City, performed at Springfield on Saturday evening last to a big house. They tried it again on Tuesday, but only a tiny few attended.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. H. J. Montague takes a benefit, when the much talked of and well remembered "Kerry" will be played, with Mr. Boucicault, of course, as the old servant. In addition to this the in which Mr. McCullough will appear, and the farce of "Woodcock's Little Game."

The Eastern theatrical papers are much exercised over Billy Emerson's receiving the largest regular salary ever paid a man in his profession, which they set down at five hundred dollars a week.

Lawrence Barrett opens at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, sometime in August. He will play there a week, and then open at the California Theatre. After Mr Barrett in tragedy will come Mr. G. L. Fox in pantomime.

On Wednesday, August 4th, Miss Jennie Lee takes her farewell benefit. The chief feature of the bill will be the burlesque of "Ahmed" localized, and with new songs by T. Vivian, besides which there will be the comedy, of "Used Up," and a song by Mr. Carleton.

N. Long we see, has taken the place of Charley Mestayer at the California Theatre.

More of Boucicault. A comedy written conjointly by him and De Narjac, based on George Sand's novel of "Lelia," and so entitled, is now in rehearsal at the Gymnase, Paris.

We lately came across a little scrap of news which is interesting as showing how wide-spread is that sentiment which is a sort of educated superstition. It refers to Miss Clara Morris, and states that she always wears two particular pieces of jewelry in "L'Article 47"—a bracelet in the form of a serpent, with emerald eyes and a curious thumb ring. She tells how, when a friend of hers saw the latter, he remarked: "Well, I know you must be going mad in this piece to wear that!" She prizes this curious bit of jewelry as a sort of talisman.

We note with pleasure that an improved order of things has force at Maguire's New Theatre. The lights now are turned up during the entr'acte and lowered during the act. This affords those present an opportunity of seeing each other during the interlude, an opportunity which is made the most of.

There is a very generally expressed wish that the English Opera Company give "The Lily of Killarney" during their present season. We believe that it is the intention of the management to meet this wish.

The two new theatres are progressing steadily. All the flooring is in at that on Mission street and the second story is rapidly rising of that on Market street.

Deus laudatur! Miss Anna Dickinson has concluded not to go on the stage at present. She has issued a circular from her home in Philadelphia, announcing an intention to lecture the coming season.

Mr. George Parkes, the dandy of the Fifth Avenue Theatre company, wore on his departure for Chicago a fac simile of the extraordinary many-pocketed Ulster which he introduced into the "Big Bonanza." He created such a sensation on the ferry boat that he was obliged to retire to an obscure part of the vessel.

The N. Y. Dispatch announces that Tony Pastor and his splendid troupe will commence a season in San Francisco, at Maguire's New Theatre, in August.

Miss Emily Rigl, of the Fifth Avenue Company, has a sister in London, yclept Betty, whom it seems has made a great sensation as a danseuse. The Era says: "Mlle. Betty Rigl excels all the artists we have seen of late years, not excepting Madame D'Or, who created quite a furore at Covent Garden two years ago."

We should not be surprised if the English Opera Company now playing here, returned to San Francisco next Summer, strengthened by the addition of Miss Clara Louise Kellogg and Mrs. Van Zandt. The New Opera House on Mission street will be open then.

VICTORIA, July 16th, 1875.

DEAR FIGARO:—We made the passage to Victoria in four days, opened on Monday, 12th, to a $430 house at $1 admission. The Theatre Royal is an old rackety place. The building and ground are owned by Dave Higgins, he who used to be on the S. F. Call in days of yore. He is now the publisher of the Daily Colonist here, a live paper. On Wednesday, the Alleghanians were honored with the patronage of the Leint. Governor and suite, and on Thursday evening, Rear Admiral Cochrane and officers of H. M. Royal Navy, were in attendance. The theatre was crowded on both occasions. We will clear about one thousand dollars above our expenses in this city, and have left a first-rate reputation. Friday and Saturday we visit Port Gamble, thence to Port Townsend, Seattle, Olympia, and open at the New Market Theatre, Portland, Oregon, on the 26th, for one week. Truly Yours,

D. G. WALDRON, Manager of Alleghanians.

When the week of benefits that succeeds Mr. Boucicault's engagement is over, "The Two Orphans," will follow. Great preparations are being made for its super-excellent production. Among other things the first act will contain a view of Le Pont Neuf and La Tour de Nelles, copied from an historical etching.

Miss Ellie Wilton and Miss Katherine Rogers returned to this city from their European tour yesterday, both well and we believe happy. We are looking forward with pleasure to Miss Wilton's reappearance on the boards of the California.

The fight over "Ultimo" and the "Big Bonanza," still wages. Last week Bartley Campbell had a jeering, jesting letter in the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, concerning Mr. Stephen Fiske's "statement," and this week, Mr. Fiske, replies, con spirito to Mr. Campbell's "impertinent personalities."

The Lingards give an entertainment at the Opera House, San Jose, on Friday evening next. The Company will include Horace and Miss Dickie Lingard. The San Jose Mercury announces the appearance of Howard Paul, in conjunction with the Lingards! Are they out of the world altogether down there?

A Miss McChain is traveling the Southern counties, giving readings. She was at Watsonville on Thursday.

Whilst we have no intention to take part in the present dispute concerning Eastern managers and their manner of selling tickets, we cannot allow the statement of a morning paper, that Mr. Daly employs a ticket speculator, to go uncontradicted. There is no such offensive individual connected with the Fifth Avenue Company either directly or indirectly, either in New York or San Francisco.

Among the debuts of the week after next will be that of Mrs. Norton Bush, who will appear as Lady Gay Spanker and Meg Merriles, and that of Miss Ella Badger, a young lady who is spoken of as bearing the promise of better things to come.

Laughing Gas.

Dr. Wilson, Dentist, 205 Third street, makes a specialty of extracting teeth without pain by the use of laughing gas, and with twelve years experience in its use can warrant success with entire safety in the most difficult cases.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

A meeting of the Dramatic Fund Association is to be (or has been) held to discuss the question of restoring Mme. Albertine, the blind actress, to her former position in that society. If they decide that her dues, since she was lost sight of, must be made good, the amount will be paid by S. F. Chanfrau, with whom Mme. Albertine acted for many years. It has been discovered that Mme. Albertine's step-sisters reside in Pleasantville, Pa., and other relatives have been found in Pittsburgh. The Dramatic Fund Association has written to Captain Ralph Chandler a letter of thanks for bringing the lady to her native country. Frank Chanfrau and J. McCabe, of San Francisco, have pledged themselves to give benefits for Mme. Albertine during the coming Fall.

Mr. J. L. Toole, sailed for England, on the 17th and will make his first appearance after reaching home in Manchester.

Mr. Josh Hart's New Eagle Theatre, will be ready for occupation early in September.

Mr. James G. Peakes, formerly of Daly's Theatre, has been engaged as stage manager for the Kellogg Opera Company.

Numerous stellar enterprises will cause the Fifth Avenue to begin the coming season August 2d. Mr. Daly was the last of the leading managers to close the past, as he will be the first to inaugurate the coming theatrical campaign. The Vokes Family will be the first trump cards, and they propose to make their rentree on the American stage in a new comedy entitled "A Buch of Berries."

Madame Van Zandt is re-engaged with the Kellogg English Opera Troupe commencing at Booth's Theatre, October 4th, and rumor says a new American prima donna will make her debut in this country with Miss Kellogg's company at the same time.

Miss Kellogg is preparing Meyerbeer's opera, "The Star of the North," to be presented for the first time in English the coming season.

The Union Square Theatre reopened its doors for a short season on Wednesday, the 21st to introduce to New York a combination, styling themselves the Troubadours, and composed of N. Salsbury, Ed. S. Marble, John Webster, Sam R. Reed, Miss Kate Wilson, and Nellie McHenry. The entertainment of the Troubadours is said to be similar to that of the Vokes Family, and consists of comic absurdities entitled "Patchwork."

Miss Dora Goldthwaite, who for the past two seasons was such a favorite at Wallack's Theatre, has accepted an engagement from the Kiralfy Brothers, and will appear in Jule Verne's great spectacular drama "Around the World in Eighty Days," to be produced at the Academy of Music on August 18th.

Mlle. Titiens, who has been engaged by Max Strakosch from October 4, 1875 to April 4, '76, will leave England, September 11th, with her niece Mlle. Augusta Von Kruis, a young singer of promise. Lord Newry will accompany the ladies.

Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Floyd, Mr. Montague and Miss Ada Dyas, and Miss Germon remain in Mr. Wallack's company next season. Mr. Charles Stevenson goes there after his return from Europe.

Madame Judic, French opera "bouffer," will be the next attraction at the Lyceum.

Mr. Henry Wertheimber, the late manager for Madame Ristori, has arrived in New York.

The San Francisco Minstrels will commence their next season August 30th.

Kate Field is traveling in Scotland.

A dramatic version of Cooper's novel of "The Spy" will be produced at Wood's Museum, New York, on Monday next, with Mr. Charles A. Barry (the author of the play) as Washington, and Mr. Dominick Murray as Harvey Birch. This is the first of a long series of dramatic bonfires that may be expected to blaze in commemoration of the centennial of American independence.

With the end of the current month Manager J. F. Poole will bring his season at the Olympic to an end. After a period of two or three weeks of repairs, Mr. Poole will inaugurate his new season.

Vocal music and the chick of Anglicized French comedy, have found a permanent and profitable house at Robinson Hall. An evidence of the popularity of "Girofle-Girofla," is offered by a continued run of this favorite work during the past two months. The Cancan by several well-defined young ladies proved remarkably attractive. "Chilperic" was presented on the 19th.

Darling's (late Bryant's) Opera House will be opened for the season by the New York Minstrels, Reed, Cotton and Simpson, Managers, on August 23d.

Miss Genevieve Ward, who made the exceptionally brilliant impression at the Gaity Theatre, Dublin, intends to revisit New York—her native city—next season.

Beauty, fashion, and Levy, the cornet player, have divided the attention of pleasure seekers during the past week, and have added enormously to the stereotyped large receipts of Gilmore's Famous Concert Garden. The patrons of this resort increase daily in point of numbers and enthusiasm, while each successive programme by the band teems with captivating classic and popular compositions. Mr Levy's cornet solos have created a furore.

The two Misses Conway are likely to lose the management of the Brooklyn Theatre, on account of their inability to pay $13,000 back rent due. Judge Troy advised them not to undertake the risks of management, as if their mother could not make the theatre pay they probably could not. Miss Minnie, however, thought differently, and insisted on managing. The connection of Judge Troy with the young ladies here ended. On the 10th they were to make oath before Jedge Moore concerning the property they possess. Messrs. Samuel & Harmon Weschler, who have a $458 bill against them for dry goods, have judgment for it. They called the evening previously on Mr. Barnard, counsel for the Weschlers, and temporized matters. On the 13th they will attend in the Supreme Court an argument in regard to the granting of a permanent injunction to restrain them from disposing of the scenery in the Brooklyn Theatre. We are afraid this looks like bankrupty, and as it Judge Troy were right.

ELSEWHERE.

Mr. Edward Arnott has been playing in his own drama of "The Manager in Love," at Colonel Wood's Museum, Philadelphia.

We are glad to find that Mr. Charles Fechter has recovered from his late severe indisposition, and has resumed his dramatic tour through the New Dominion. He is now playing at Ottawa.

The new company for Wood's Theatre, Cincinnati, for the ensuing season, will be composed in part of Laura Phillips, leading; Mollie Maeder, soubrette; Jennie McClellan, juvenile; Charlotte Crampton, first old woman; Ella Mayer, second old woman; Mr. Eytinge, leading; R. Fulton Russell, juvenile; H. C. Barton, walking gentleman; John Marble, first low comedy; J. T. Craves, second low comedy; Russell Soggs, first old man; J. K. Sprackman, second old man.

With the exception of "The Two Orphans" at Hooley's, there have been no special attractions at the Chicago theatres. The Academy has been closed, excepting Monday night of last week, when "The Days of '76" was played. Haverly's minstrels opened and continued during the entire week, the audiences diminishing somewhat toward the close of the engagement. This week McVicker's is occupied by Duprez & Benedict's minstrels.

While attending church at Portland lately, Miss Annie Louise Cary went into the choir and assumed the soprano part, which ran quite low in the closing hymn. When the congregation passed out commenting on the glorious voice of the unknown singer, a lady who prides herself on her musical taste said in answer to the question of a friend: "I think it is one of that Blank-street choir. She has a pretty good voice, but it lacks cultivation sadly." And now the prima donna's friends are urging her to supply that lack during her forthcoming visit to Europe.

A severe accident occurred to the burlesque actress, Miss Belle Howitt, while recently performing in "Little Red Riding Hood" at Fox's, Philadelphia, It appears that a negligent stage hand had left a trap insecurely fastened, and Miss Howitt fell through, severely injuring one of her nether limbs. (The fellow means that she hurt her leg we suppose.)

Daly's left wing played "The Big Bonanza" for the week ending the 10th, at Montreal, to good business, and opened on the 12th at Quebec.

Mr. Johnny Thompson recently produced a new play in Chicago written for him and called "Tykes, the Showman," which failed. It is a weak imitation of "Belphegor."

A hitherto unheard of show called the Girard Dramatic Company drew a small audience at Warren, O., 5th. Nothing to do with the Girard Brothers we believe.

Tony Pastor and troupe, are playing at Montreal, will show at Saratoga, Aug. 2d and 3d; Boston, 9th, two weeks.

Edwin Booth, Mrs. Chanfrau, John T. Raymond, Mrs. Jas. A. Oates, Chas. Fechter, Fanny B. Price, G. L. Fox and combination, Charlotte Thompson, Frank Mayo, Berger Family and the Frank Frayne Combination are among some of the attractions looked for at the Richmond Theatre during the coming season.

The grasshopper, the potato-bug, and Barnum's Hippodrome are devastating the country. The latter has reached Canada.

Mrs. James A. Oates is passing the hot months at Long Branch, and will begin her next season at Providence, September 27th, with a new opera.

Frank Mayo commences his next season at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on September 15th.

As we showed by a lengthy extract from the Boston Courier published in Wednesday's FIGARO, Emerson's minstrels have made a big hit at the Hub.

MONDAY.............JULY 26

Detroit Police Court.

There was an old man in the corridor—an old, old man, with long white hair and trembling limbs. The experience of a lifetime had gone for nothing—he had been found drunk.

When his Honor came in, Bijah whispered in his ear, and they went in to see the veteran.

"I'm sorry," said his Honor, as he laid his hand on the old man's white locks, "and I can't have you brought out there to be sneered at. You ought to be in heaven, old man, instead of being a prisoner."

"God helping me, I won't drink again," sobbed the veteran.

"Unlock the private door, Bijah, and let him out. Have you any money to cross the river, old man?"

"Not a cent."

"Here is a dollar, and I want you to get right home."

"And here is a half on top of that, and I'll help you to the ferry dock," added Bijah.

And his Honor watched the two white-haired men around the corner and then whispered:

"It wasn't according to rule to pass him out, but the heart said so."

And that's his Honor and that's Bijah. Sympathizing with the helpless, encouraging the unfortunate, dealing out justice to the vicious and obstinate. May men deal as fairly by them as they deal by men.

A FINE POINT.

"Have I the honor of addressing Sarah McIntosh?" inquired the court, as a little bit of a woman, with a sun-burned nose, skipped out.

"No, sir; my name's Sarah Jane Amanda Williams McIntosh," she squeaked in reply.

"Well, Sarah Jane Amanda Williams McIntosh, why did you throw a beef-bone at Mrs. Durand, and let your screams

"I want a lawyer," she cried, raising on her tip toes.

"I'm sorry, Sarah, but all the lawyers went to the Bunker Hill celebration, and none of them have returned."

"Then I want a jury."

"And there is no jury, my dear woman. All the men who generally sit on the jury have gone to the circus, or are getting ready to go."

"Then I want to go home."

"Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"That's my business!"

"Answer me, Sarah."

"I won't."

"Very well, Sarah Williams Amanda. It now becomes my solemn duty to lay you away among the archives of the future for three months. The sun-burn will have left your nose by that time. Your voice will be sweeter and more melodious, and you'll have such a double chin on you that Mrs. Durand won't recognize her old neighbor."

"Sarah Williams Amanda isn't my name!" she spitefully replied.

"That's a fine point, Sarah, but I have got lots of time, and so I will remark that Sarah Jane Amanda Williams McIntosh is withdrawn from the society of the cold-hearted public for the space of ninety days. Now go in and take a front seat on the saw-horse."

FAIR WARNING.

"Lucinda Jane Thomas, is it lady-like for a woman to send out after a pint of beer, drink it, and then want to fight her neighbors?" asked his Honor of the last case.

"No, sir."

"Of course it isn't, Lucinda. We were put into this world to live at peace with each other—to slide along toward the unknown valley as the goose slips off the grassy bank into the clear pond. We all have faults, it is true, but we needn't encourage them nor harbor jealousy or revenge. You were never here before, Lucinda, and I have a good mind to let you go."

"Do sir—do."

"Well, you may go, but look out for me if you come again. I can be a singing chickadee or a screaming eagle, and if you appear here a second time you won't be able to recollect whether it takes sixteen yards or sixty to flounce a dress after the latest fashion!"

The boys were at the door as she came out, and they surrounded her and sang:

"Oh, don't you come here more,
Don't you do it.
Don't you ever pass the door
Or you'll rue it.
It's oh, Lucinda Jane,
Don't you come here again.

[illegible]

THE IRISH RECEPTION.

Following are the lines recited by Miss Genevieve Ward on the occasion of the visit of the American Rifle Team to the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin: She was dressed in a complete ancient Irish costume, of white robe and mantle, trimmed with green and gold, with tiara, brooch, and armlets complete, and having in her hand the wand and ring which Moore had rendered famous:

Robed as Hibernia's daughter, lo! I stand,
Like you, a guest in dear Old Ireland.
Ye riflemen, by favor of our Gunn's,
Columbia's daughter hails Columbia's sons.
Had I ten thousand hands, with all I'd meet ye;
Had I ten thousand tongues, with welcome greet ye;
Tho' time and space may seem to interpose,
And 'twixt our shores, a cruel ocean flows,
With magic wand I touch the electric springs,
An instant, a responsive answer brings,
Which proves, however distant be each land,
Both nations are united heart and hand.
Our sires by famine and by wrongs opprest,
Found ever shelter in the glorious West.
And in their children's hearts left still enshrined
The love of home, that distance could not blind.
Then, by their honored ashes, by their graves,
We greet you, brothers, from across the waves.
Brothers in blood, as well as hearts and speech,
Brought here together by our favorite Leech.
Welcome, then welcome; and a happy time,
Marr'd by no weeping from our tearful clime,
We wish propitious skies—yet still we deem
The reigning favorite, the Rifle Team.
Come to our feast—with love our hearts are full—
The fatted calf we'd kill—it is a bull.
Soon, when arrayed in contest, you may try,
The metal of that bull—but mind his eye.
Ye strife in friendship; if you win, you'll meet
No heartier cheering than from those you beat.
And if your brothers win, you won't despair?
You still have left a younger brother's share.
Ireland, in either case, is doubly blessed,
She wins the most, in losing to her guest.
Oh! may the spirits of the blessed dead
O'Connell, on whose tomb warm tears are shed,
And Washington, with all that noble throng,
Whose names are ever an unceasing song.
Who strove for liberty, now by you stand,
And silent bless each patriotic band—
And so we welcome you, with hands, hearts, eyes,
Cead mile failthe, echo to the skies.

A Good Reason.

Lavender had been married just three weeks when he visited his club for the last time. One of his eyes had suffered a partial eclipse, there was an unnatural thinness noticeable in his whiskers and hair, and his voice seemed to have lost the jovial tones which belonged to his bachelor days, as calling the members about him he said: "It is one of the rules of the club that no member can resign without giving a good verbal reason therefor. I resign at the say more, gentleman? [illegible] wife. Need I

A Sensible Notice.

A gentleman of White Plains, N. Y., has placed a notice to burglars, printed in gold letters on a cardboard, in a conspicuous position on his safe, to the effect that it contains papers only, of no value to any one but the owner; but, if burglars wish to take a peep inside for themselves, not to burst the safe, but use the combination according to the instructions which he gives.

"Jury," said a Western Judge, "you kin go out and find a verdict. If you can't find one of your own get the one the last jury used." The jury returned a verdict of suicide in the ninth degree.

Opera House.

This evening begins the third week of Mr Daly's Company, a week which will be devoted to the presentation of three of those dramas which are established Fifth Avenue Theatre successes. The distribution of time and plays will be as follows: Monday and Tuesday "Man and wife," Wednesday and Thursday "Charity," "Friday and Saturday "Saratoga."

Maguire's New Theatre.

Mr. O. D. Hess and company are evidently determined to capture the people. On Saturday evening "Faust" was put on in such excellent style and sung with such particularly good effect that the advertised run of five nights for this one opera became at once an assured fact. It was produced again last night with increased success, that is, was received with increased fervor, and will be played to-night, to-morrow night and on that of Wednesday. So particularly strong, numerically as well as artistically is the company, that a change of cast is in order for every night, with the exception of the two characters Siebel and Martha, which are taken by Mrs. Seguin and Miss Annandale respectively, and which cannot be improved on. Mr. Peakes appears as Mephisto this evening in place of Mr. Conly, who is suffering from a slight attack of hoarseness. Mr. Conly will sing Mephisto to-morrow evening.

California Theatre.

This evening "The Shaughraun" will begin at the entrance of Conn in the first act and the recounting of the hunting escapade. This omission of two lengthy scenes will give Mr. Boucicault the much looked for opportunity of presenting his clever adaptation of "La Joie fait Peur" entitled "Kerry" and his still cleverer delineation of the character of the octogenarian and faithful servant. The cast will include T. W. Keene as the young officer Gerald Desmond, Miss Pateman as the wife-widow, Miss Belle Chapman as the sister, Nelson Decker as the brother officer and W. M. Leman as the family physician.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

Last evening the Mexican Infantile Opera Bouffe Troupe gave their farewell performance at the California Theatre for the benefit of Charles Schultz, the Business Manager. The bill was "Marina" and the house an appreciative one. This evening at Platt's Hall the comic opera "Compositor" will be presented, followed by operatic selections by the young prima donna Soledad U. y Moron, the bill concluding with the operetta of "The Island of San Balandran."

Pacific Hall.

The Kennedys have decided to stay here another week. This evening the programme is entitled "A Night wi, Burns" which definitely indicates its nature.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Good acts by the best members of the compay, and a good olio in which every one brings his or her best to the front. Altogether a famous programme.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The olio is a capital one and includes specialties by George C. Thompson the great negro delineator, character songs by Ned Barry, songs by Hughey Robinson, etc., besides which there are several good acts.

Palace Variety Theatre.

There will be a performance at this house to-night and a good variety entertainment will be given.

RIESEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

Saturday and Sunday, Borthwick the famous Scotch athlete and champion trick swordsman in his marvellous feats with the sword; first time of W. O. D. Stevens excelsior gymnast of Angelo's grand circus; the Albino children; mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo, Mlle. Victorine and the gymnastic troupe. On Friday, festival of the Chinese Mission Schools, interesting exercises by Chinese and others, concert and performance by the Chinese Acrobatic Troupe.

Notes.

Benefits by the dozen. On Wednesday afternoon next that of Mr. H. J. Montague, when "Kerry," "Woodcock's Little Game" and the dagger scene from "The Wife," will form the bill. On Friday evening benefit of Mr. Boucicault with the same bill, we expect, as that now running. On Monday evening of next week, Miss Pateman's benefit, on Wednesday that of Miss Jennie Lee, when "Used Up" and the burlesque of "Ahmed" will be held out as inducements to attend where no inducement is needed.

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T & D Landy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

Yet I perceive on the height
  Eastward, not now very far,
A song too loud for the lark,
  A light too strong for a star.

Germany, what of the night?
  Long has it lulled me with dreams;
  Now at midwatch, as it seems,
Light is brought back to mine eyes,
And the mastery of old and the might
  Lives in the joints of mine hands,
Steadies my limbs as they rise,
  Strengthens my foot as it stands,

Europe, what of the night?
  Ask of heaven, and the sea,
  And my babes on the bosom of me,
Nations of mine, but ungrown,
There is one who shall requite,
  All that endure or that err;
She can answer alone;
  Ask not of me, but of her.

Liberty, what of the night?—
  I feel not the red rains fall,
  Hear not the tempest at all,
Nor thunder in heaven any more,
All the distance is white
  With the soundless feet of the sun,
Night, with the woes that it wore,
  Night is over and done.

The New Carillon.

The new carillon as described in the English scientific journals, appears to be quite an improvement on the ordinary chiming machines. It is fixed in the same chamber as the clock, to which it is connected by means of a lever. On being slightly pulled the lever dislodges a pin, the machine is set in motion, and the tune begins at once to play. Fourteen tunes are played on eight bells, the tenor weighing one ton, and the whole peal about four and one-half tons. The motive power is obtained by weights of about half a ton each, which are suspended from an iron barrel by a steel line. At one end of this barrel is a wheel running in gear with a pinion, driving a spindle upon which are fixed twenty cam wheels, kept constantly revolving, ready to do the heavy work of lifting the hammers the instant they are released by the musical barrel, which is also kept revolving by a series of wheels similar to a musical box. The levers arranged at the top of the machine are at the musical barrel, and connected with the hammers above by means of wire lines and cranks and the key frame in front of the barrel; and as soon as the ends of the lever are released by the small brass pins pricked upon the musical board, the other ends of the levers, with the points of the arms attached to them, fall upon the revolving lifting cams, and are instantly raised into the striking position and locked by the key-frame at the other end; so that the two actions of releasing the hammers by the musical barrel and again lifting by the cams are perfectly simultaneous, and very rapid passages in the music can be played.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

The following startling notice appeared recently on the walls of the Paris Theatre Lyrique Dramatique: "Mme. Marie Láurent, expiring on the 15th of June, the last five nights are announced of "Marie Jeanne." It was a printer's error, and ought to have been "engagement expiring, etc." This reminds us of the astonishing manner in which "Venice Preserved, or The Plot Discovered" was once announced in London—viz., "Venus Preserved, or The Pot Uncovered!"

The late T. W. Robertson is said to have left behind him a play called "Australia."

It is reported that Mr. Sothern and Mr. John S. Clarke will associate themselves as managers of the London Haymarket next season.

A real Russian princess is about to make her debut on the Paris stage, in a new operetta written expressly for her. She is reported to be remarkably beautiful and very talented.

Mr. Charles Mathews has accepted a three months' engagement to play in India, commencing in Calcutta in November next.

The Lydia Thompson troupe closed at the Globe, June 26th, and rest until July 26, when they were to begin a provincial tour at Brighton.

The Haymarket re-opened June 28th under Edgar Bruce, with Miss Litton's company from the St. James. Charles Wyndham was to appear for six nights in "Brighton," followed by Pauline Markham in "The Zoo."

Playgoers.

Speaking of playgoers a writer says: Usually, we may note, the playgoer is youthful. An old playgoer is almost a contradiction in terms. He is merely a young playgoer who has grown old. He talks of the plays and players of his youth, but he does not, in truth, visit the theatre much in his age, and invariably he condemns the present and applauds the past. Things have much degenerated and decayed, he finds; himself among them, but of that fact he is not fully conscious. There are no such actors now as once there were, nor actresses. The drama has declined into almost past praying for. This is, of course, a very old story. Palmy days have always been yesterdays. Our imaginary friend, mentioned above, who was present at the earliest of stage exhibitions, probably deemed the second and third to be less excellent than the first; at any rate, he assuredly informed his friends and neighbors, who had been absent from that performance, that they had missed very much indeed, and had by no means seen Thespis at his best. Even nowadays middle-aged playgoers, old enough to remember the late Mr. Macready, are trumpeted, as it were, by older playgoers, boastful of their memories of Kemble and the elder Kean. And these players, in their day and in their turn, underwent disparagement at the hands of the veterans who had seen Garrick. Pope, much as he admired Garrick, yet held fast to his old faith in Betteron. From a boy he had been acquainted with Betterton. He maintained Betterton to be the best actor he had ever seen. "But I ought to tell you at the same time," he candidly admitted, "that in Betterton's time the older sort of people talked of Hart's being his superior, just as we do of Betterton's being superior to those now."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Stage Directions.

In the early days of the American Theatre there was a play on the subject of the Battle of Bunker Hill, which, being of the real Fourth of July breed, ought to have a sort of posthumous hearing this season. It earned $2,000 for its author in Boston, in 1767, and it was afterwards published and played in New York. These are the author's stage directions:

"The hill is raised gradually by boards extended from the stage to a bench. Three men should walk abreast on it, and the side where the English march up should, for the most part, be turned toward the wings. On one hill there was room for eighteen or twenty men, and they were concealed by a board painted mud-color and having two cannon painted on it—which board was three feet and a half high. The English marched in two divisions from one extremity of the stage, where they ranged, after coming from the wings, when they come to the foot of the hill. The Americans fire—the English fire—six or seven of your men should be taught to fall—the fire should be frequent for some minutes. The English retire to the front of the stage—second line of English advance from the wing near the hill—firing commences—they are again beaten back—windows on the stage should be open to let out the smoak. All the English make the attack and mount the hill. After a brisk fire the Americans leave works and meet them. Here is room for effect of the scuffle be nicely managed. Sometimes the English falling back, sometimes the Americans—two or three Englishmen rolling down the hill. A square piece, about nine feet high and five wide, having some houses and a meeting-house painted on fire, with flame and smoak issuing from it, should be raised two feet distance from the horizon down and doors cut out for transparencies—in a word, it should have the appearance of a town on fire. * * * *
When the curtain rises in the fifth act, the appearance on the whole is good—Charlestown on fire, the breastworks of wood, the Americans appearing over the works and the muzzles of their guns, the English and American music, the attack of the hill, the falling of the English troops, Warren's half descending the hill and animating the Americans, the smoak and confusion all together produce an effect scarce creditable * * * Small cannon should be fired during the battle which continued with us for 12 or 15 minutes."

This veracious authors adds: "A man from Boston, who pretends to criticise without knowing how to spell, has been industrious in depreciating the value of my piece;" and he closes by saying: "My new tragedy "Joan of Arc, or the Maid of Orleans," is ready for representation.

A Story of Victor Capoul.

A good story is told of an adventure which recently happened to Capoul in St. Petersburg, showing that one should never be negligent in correspondence on business affairs. One day as the young tenor was leaving his hotel to attend a rehearsal, a stamped paper, printed in Russian, was put into his hands. He placed it in his pocket without reading it, and straightway forgot it. Four days later a similar paper was handed to him, and this shared the fate of the first. Yet a few days thereafter, as Capoul was about leaving his apartment to take the train for Vienna, two gentlemen, clad in fur pelisses, called to seek him. He invited them in, and holding out a cigar box with hospitable intent, was horrified to see one of the gentlemen put the cigar box under his arm, and likewise hear him demand his watch. Capoul was about to turn the men out of the room, when one of them informed him that he was a "huissier," or bailiff, and had come to take possession. It seems that Capoul had endorsed a note for an artist friend in France, who had not paid it, and it had been sent on to Russia for collection. The first printed paper was a notice to Capoul to come into court, where he had been condemned by default; the second was a command, and as neither was obeyed, the "huissier" came. Capoul's trunks had gone on to Vienna, so the deputy stripped the tenor, leaving him, as the French papers say, "just enough to go to bed with," simply because he refused to pay the note. By morning Capoul thought better of the matter, and, after giving security, was allowed to take his effects and depart for Vienna.

AN OVER-WORKED OFFICER.

We learn that Col. Harney, the County Clerk, one of the city's most efficient and tried officers, has been tendered the nomination for County Clerk by two separate party organization, but positively refuses to be a candidate for the position again, even when requested to do so by many prominent members of the Bar and the various district judges. The fact is, the office is the most arduous one of all our city offices, and is most illiberally remunerated, and Colonel Harney feels that he has sacrificed a sufficient number of the years of his life as a slave to the position at a magnificent salary of $333 50 a month. Let us see what the duties of such a liberally paid office are: He is the ex-officio Clerk of the five District Courts, the Municipal Court, the County Court and the Probate Court. He has to sign every marriage license, keep full record of all the copartnership forms in the city, arrange and get up the Ward Registers for forty-five thousand voters every election, and, has besides, to sign thousands of official documents, legal and civil, that the duties of the position impose on him. The State Constitution defines the duties of all County Clerks and makes no exceptions. Consequently, the County Clerk, of San Francisco, has from ten to twenty times the amount of labor to attend to that other County Clerks have, and only receives the same salary that the County Clerk of Alameda, and other County Clerks receive. The office is one of poor pay and incessant drudgery, but has been most capably filled by the present incumbent for several terms. Col. Harney was re-elected to the position unanimously at the last election, being the candidate for every party for County Clerk, and would doubtless sweep the field again, if he would run for the position. He has brought order out of chaos in the office, and every member of the Bar knows how well he has fulfilled its arduous duties. We don't suppose the office will go a begging, but it is certainly shameful that the wealthy State of California should provide so contemptible a recompense for such an over-worked officer.

Swinburne on Cleopatra.

Mr. Swinburne has a fine appreciation of the heroine of one of Shakespeare's greatest dramas, and thus analyzes and portrays her queenly and sensuous characteristics: "In Cleopatra there is imperious consciousness of power by right of supreme beauty and supreme strength of will; a subtle sweetness of speech; a delicately rendered effect of perfection in word and gesture never violated or made harsh even by extreme passion; an evidence of luxurious and patient pleasure found in all things sensually pleasant; a capacity of bitter shame and wrath, dormant until the insult of resistance or rebellion has been offered; a contemptuous incapacity to understand a narrow passion of more external morality than her own; a rapid and supple power of practical action. All women in literature after her seem coarse or trivial when they touch on anything sensual; but in her passion there is nothing common or unclean; nothing paltry; no taint of vulgar sin or vulgar repentance."

Maguire's New Theatre.

An opera company that can produce "Faust" five times running with each night a change of cast, is at least entitled to our respect in point of strength in numbers, but when each presentation is an artistic treat and an apparent improvement on that preceding it, then is there much praise and respect due the company for superior artistic excellence. This the people of San Francisco evidently seem to think, for night after night the house is crowded by audiences as numerous as appreciative.

California Theatre.

If such a thing were possible the addition of "Kerry" to the "Shaughraun" has made the bill at the California Theatre even more attractive than it has been for the past three weeks. Mr. Boucicault's impersonation of the old servant did, as everybody expected it would, revived the old excitement created by the same character during his previous engagement. The piece itself is a beautiful idyl. The condensation to which "The Shaughraun" has been consequently subjected has, in no wise, impaired the unity of the drama or diminished its interest.

Opera House.

This pretty little theatre was well filled last night by those who wished to see Mr. Daly's famous dramatization of Wilkie Collins' novel "Man and Wife." The play was capitally put on, the artists evidently doing their best. Mr Harkins' Geoffrey Delamayn, was a forcible, yet, refined character, Miss Jeffreys Lewis played Blanche with spirit and brightness and Miss Davenport's Annie Sylvester was full of charming pathos. "Man and Wife" again this evening, to-morrow evening "Charity."

Pacific Hall.

The entertainments of the Kennedys grow in favor. The hearty spirit of Mr. Kennedy seems to be caught by all who attend. The part-songs are such specimens of good choral singing as one does not often hear now-a-days.

Platt's Hall.

"The Compositor" and "The Island of San Balandran," were given last night to 'a fit audience' though not a crammed one. The children retain all the spirited action and freshness of singing that characterized their first appearance here. The same bill to-night.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"Eight Hours a Day" has at length been withdrawn after a long run, in place of which J. C. Stewart's "Ethiopean Sketch" will be given. The other new act is "Eh, What is It? by the strength of the company.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

This evening, in addition to all the other attractions of this place of amusement, there will be the first appearance of Henry Harrison, said to be a particularly sweet ballad singer.

Palace Variety Theatre.

There will be a performance at this house tonight and a good variety entertainment will be given.

RIESEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

On Friday, festival of the Chinese Mission Schools, interesting exercises by Chinese and others, concert and performance by the Chinese Acrobatic Troupe.

Notes.

Hooley is playing "Ultimo" at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, this evening.

How is this for reliable news? Says the N. Y. Courier: "The Union Square Theatre Company this week brought out 'The Two Orphans' at Hooley's, in San Francisco, with great success."

'Young' McKenzie is turning-up again. He sang at Salt Lake on Saturday last, being advertised as "the most finished and effective singer in Italian that has ever yet appeared." Furthermore, "his extreme youth is another attraction," and again, "he has been called the Santley of America." Where, in the name of all the brass foundries in existence, will this "youth's" cheek lead him?

On the authority (?) of the Chronicle we give the news that Mr. Daly's suit against Mr. Hooley, for having violated his copyright in producing a separate version of "The Big Bonanza" under the name of "Ultimo," has been settled. The basis of settlement is not known, but it is supposed that Mr. Hooley does not suffer very heavily beyond his lawyer's fees.

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T. & D Landy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc, all of which they furnish on easy payments.

'Tis a dear little hand,
  Half assisting
My efforts to kiss it again,
That at the last moment
  Resisting,
Whew! makes my ears tingle with pain.

'Tis a lovely blue eye,
  Half assenting,
When I ask for a kiss ere I go;
And ripe, pouting lips,
  Not dissenting,
Tempt me on to a kiss and a blow,

But that dear, little hand,
  Loving, coaxes;
Those velvet lips pout full of bliss;
  And I soon find the blows
  Are but hoaxes—
Little stings "to add zest to a kiss."

A little wart-backed hop toad will break up a croquet party quicker than the darkest thunder cloud that ever gathered.

An eccentric old fellow, who lives alongside of a graveyard, was asked if it was not an unpleasant location. "No," said he, "I never jined places in my life with a set of neighbors that minded their own business so stiddy as they do."

"I wonder what makes my eyes so weak?" said a fop to a gentleman. "They are in a weak place," responded the latter.

"Sir," said an old judge to a young lawyer, "you would do well to pluck some of the feathers from the wings of your imagination and stick them in the tail of your judgment."

Scientists are now of the opinion that the only way to cure sleeplessness is for the sufferer to think of some large object, such as the Egyptian Pyramids, the Kentucky Mammoth Cave, or the foot of a Chicago woman.

Nothing comes home so much to a man as an unsettled bill.

Poor Carlotta is a woman. She does not speak, and they think her insane.

A good looking Milwaukee chap, who passed three weeks in Detroit, engaged himself to thirteen young women during that time, and now they hang on the front gate threatening every Milwaukee man who comes loafing around.

The dear Texas girls pin 'em back with bowie-knives, and it is a sight to see the men trying to look abstracted when riding with them in a street car.

The Indianapolis Evening News says that a Terre Haute gentleman, who has taken back his wife after her fifth elopement, each time with a different man, complains that the thing is getting monotonous.

A Boston editor blushes for the ignorance of three young girls of that city who tried to get their horse's head down so he could drink by unbuckling the crupper. Probably the same girls who unbuckled the breeching-strap going down hill, because it pulled against the poor horse so.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street. over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

The Green Room.

A London manager announces a play written to favor the anti-vaccination movement.

A Vienna correspondent, under date of June 19, says: The great event in our musical and theatrical world is at the present moment the production of Verdi's "Requiem," under the celebrated Maestro's own direction, at the Imperial Opera, which has already taken place three times during the past week, before brilliant and crowded audiences. To-night "Aida" will be performed in Italian, conducted by the composer, who will terminate his visit next week, after having once more directed the music of both his most recent works. The great exertion of long and numerous rehearsals, and of exciting performances, has unfortunately developed a nervous affection from which the great musician had been suffering before. After one of the rehearsals of "Aida" he had a fainting fit, and he is now compelled to wear his arm in a sling.

Strauss composed his first waltz when seven years of age, his father boxing his ears for fooling away his time.

Mlle. Mars, the great actress, broke her engagement at Dijon because there was an elephant showing in the same city. The economic suggestiveness of his single trunk was too much for her.

An amusing story tells how an actor recently made one of Henriette's most pathetic scenes in "The Two Orphans" ridiculous by answering the girl's sad story about her lost sister with the words: "I will order shirts to be made for her immediately." He meant search, and it is a pity he did not say what he meant—for the laughter he aroused was uncontrollable, and was by no means welcome to the representative of Henriette.

Mr. Carl Rosa has engaged Mlle. Torriani to sing in English opera.

"The Harp King of the North," Antoine Edouard Pratte, died recently at Odesnas, Sweden, in his seventy-seventh year. He was born in Bohemia, but was brought to Sweden when very young, and began life by playing the harp at a little theatre of marionettes. He was considered one of the best harpers in Europe, and his talent as a composer, shown in several concerted pieces for the harp, melodies with orchestra and choir, with one grand symphony, "The Night of Storm," was very considerable.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private-rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

It appears that coining copper is not profitable. The government has not made a half cent since 1857.

In what vehicle did the man ride who was driven frantic? When a man revolves much in his mind, does it make him dizzy? If all things are for the best, where do the rations for the second best come from? What is the exact width of a broad grin?

Scientists say there is no water in the moon. What a splendid place to open a beer garden!

The seats were badly scratched in a church fight recently, and they called it the Pew-nic war.

University Coach (to Coxswain)—"It's perfectly ridiculous! Here you've gone and gained an ounce and a half in the last fortnight! If you go on like this, I might just as well steer the boat myself!"

An elderly gentleman, returning home from church, began to extol the merits of the sermon to his son. Said he: "Jack, I have heard one of the most delightful sermons ever delivered before a Christian society. It carried me to the gate of heaven." "Why didn't you dodge in?" replied Jack, "You will never have another such chance."

At a circus, while the rope-walker was going through his performance, a boy about twelve years old turned to an acquaintance of the same age and remarked: "Tom, don't you wish you could do that?" "Yes, I do, sadly replied Tom, "but my folks make me go to school and are determined that I shan't never be nobody!"

They killed an advertising solicitor the other day up in Piqua, but they had to run over him with nine freight cars to do it. People who can't afford to keep a fast freight line in the house are still at the canvasser's mercy.

It is a strange fact that when people indulge in high words they use low language.

Why is a pig the most provident of animals?—Because he always carries a spare-rib or two about him.

What is the difference between the North and South Pole? All the difference in the world.

A Maine girl left her clothing in an open boat and hid herself, and when her parents were crying and saying if they only had her back, they would obey her slightest wish, she appeared and said she wanted to marry Jake.

What kind of robbery is not dangerous? A safe robbery of course.

Some ingenious observer has discovered that there is a remarkable resemblance between a baby and wheat, since it is cradled, then thrased, and finally becomes the flower of the family.

A boy who had stolen some apples was forgiven for the rather ingenious manner in which he excused himself. The schoolmaster asking him what he had to say for himself, the urchin replied: "The apples were Tom's; I don't know how he got them; and now they're mine, and he don't know how I got them."

We send to our butcher for sweetbread, and if we want a sweetmeat we send to our baker's.

A book agent took refuge under a hay stack during a thunder-storm and the lightning struck him on the cheek, glanced off and killed a mule two hundred yards away.

That was rather a trouching allusion to a deceased spouse, made recently by a farmer, who came to the village store to purchase things. "Can't I show you anything else to-day?" politely asked the clerk, "No I reckon not," replied the sad-looking customer, "I lost two horses and my wife last fall, and I feel pretty poor. Good span of horses, too."

"Antimony!"

A Silver City (Nev.) man, whose wife has applied for a divorce, thus relates his troubles to the editor of the Times: "You see, sir, the old woman has 'plied for a divorce; but that's not what makes me so mad. I don't mind about that—I don't care about the divorce—but you see, sir, she wants to get antimony out of me, sir—she wants to get antimony out of me!" And he rushed out of the office to see his lawyer.

On the Tapis.

We are always glad to speak of enterprise, and especially home enterprise. Messrs. Hall & Lachman, Carpet and Oil Cloth Dealers of 118 Sutter street, have only recently removed to their present commodious [illegible]re from their old quarters on Bush street, and here they expect, and are determined to keep up that past prestige which has made this firm one of the most prominent in the city.

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

A wonderful musical feat is chronicled from Plymouth, England, where, at a recent performance of Mendelssohn's "Athalie," a young lady, named Miss Patterson, repeatedly ran up the scale to the upper B—nearly an octave above any of the ordinary soprano voices, and several notes above the point reached by the best known singers. The notes, and especially the high B, were rung out clear and musical, without effort or hesitation on the part of the singer, who is an amateur.

A certain minstrel manager advertises in one of the sporting papers for a tenor singer "whose vocal abilities are first-class, and who knows how to work up a laugh when the end man is getting off a joke."

The centenary of the Drury Lane Theatrical was celebrated by a dinner at the Sydney Arms, Chiselhurst. It was presided over by Mr. Benjamin Webster as master of the fund; and around him were gathered Signor Salvini, J. B. Buckstone, Barry Sullivan, William Creswick, John Hollingshead, Swinburne, G. Belmore, Sinclair, Charles Harcourt, B. Wright, Spencer, Charles Warner, John Cormack, E. L. Blanchard, David James, Thomas Thorne, John Clarke, Mr. Churchill, Dr. Canton, Dr. Duplex, Mr. Parravicini, and others officially connected with the fund, or specially invited.

It is understood that the next local society drama will be written by a Frenchman, translated by Bronson Howard, adapted by Boucicault, and copyrighted by Augustin Daly.

California Theatre.

"Kerry" and "The Shaughraun." What a bill! A most marked contrast and Boucicault's two chief plays and characters. We question whether Conn or Kerry, the young vagabond or the old retainer, will be longest remembered, but it is very certain that neither will soon be forgotten.

Opera House.

"Man and Wife" drew another good house, as well it might, for it a capital Society drama excellently well played. This evening, W. S. Gilbert's successful comedy of "Charity" will be produced, with a cast that includes, Chas. Fisher as Dr. Athelney, Jas. Lewis as Fitz Partington, the private inquiry officer, John Drew as young Athelney, Geo. Parkes as young Smailey, W. Davidge as old Smailey, Miss Emily Rigl as Eve Vanbrugh, and Miss Fannie Davenport as Ruth Tredgett, the tramp, a part in which there is much curiosity to see her.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Lovers of Gounod have had their taste well satisfied during the past four days. "Faust" has now held the boards of this theatre since Saturday evening, and will be again repeated this evening,—for the last time. Every night has seen a change in the cast, so that sometime during the run everyone's favorite must have been to the fore. Last night the encores were particularly numerous, redemands for the soldiers' chorus, the devil's serenade and the succeeding trio being given.

Miss Pateman's Benefit.

Next week is a week of benefits and debuts, Miss Pateman leading off in the former department on Monday, when for her benefit will be presented Boucicault's thrilling war drama of "The Relief of Lucknow," with Miss Pateman as Jessie Brown, the ballad "Killarney" by Miss Jennie Lee, the recitation of "The Collier's Dying Child" by the beneficiare, and the comedy of "The Ladies' Club" with Miss Pateman as Mrs. Captain Fitzsmyth.

Pacific Hall.

The Kennedys are doing well. Last night was an evening of miscellaneous selections, whilst this evening will be 'a Nicht wi' the Jacobites," and Jacobite ballads are famous all the world over.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Swain and West in "The Yankee Boys," Mortimore, Senate, Price, Kimic, Foster and Nickerson, in acts and specialties, and a Chinese dance by Misses Livingston and Brewer to-night.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

George C. Thompson's negro specialties are immense, Henry Harrison's ballad singing is well liked, Ned Barry's character songs are all good and the whole bill is a taking one.

Palace Variety Theatre.

There will be a performance at this house tonight and a good variety entertainment will be given.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

Saturday and Sunday, Borthwick the famous Scotch athlete and champion trick swordsman in his marvellous feats with the sword; first time of W. O. D. Stevens excelsior gymnast of Angelo's grand circus; the Albino children; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo, Mlle. Victorine and the gymnastic troupe. On Friday, festival of the Chinese Mission Schools, interesting exercises by Chinese and others, concert and performance by the Chinese Acrobatic Troupe.

Notes.

Last night at the California Theatre, after the curtain had dropped on the last scene in "Kerry," a long-legged, lanky man clambered up from the orchestra stalls on to the stage and passed behind the curtain. Here he was promptly confronted by the prompter with the exclamatory question:

"How the devil did you get here?"

"Clomb up the stage" said the stranger, "where's Miss Bella Pateman?"

"But," said Preston, trying to keep cool, "don't you know that you did very wrong in climbing up on the stage, and coming in here?"

"Mayhap, maybe and perchance," quoth the stranger wiping his face with a huge blue umbrella, "Where's Miss Bella Pateman?"

"Bless the man," returned Preston, whilst a rush of employees, stage managers and other sinecure holders crowded around the two, "You can't see Miss Pateman!"

"Ah, can I not?" quoth the apparition, "then give her my photograph." Here he handed out a carte de visite from his coat-tail pocket and preparing to back off by the same way he had came on the stage.

"Here, hold, hard," shouted the heroic Bob Eberle, conscious in the rectitude of a clean shirt front, "you mustn't go off that way. Come round to the back door and down by the Bon Ton."

"Ah, ah," exclaimed the stranger, "r-r-r-remember the photograph," and seizing the call boy's hand he vaulted over three files and vanished by the stage door.

This afternoon Mr. H. J. Montague takes a farewell benefit, an occasion which, whilst we are glad it should be that of a benefit, we are very sorry that it should be one of farewell. Mr. Montague, both off and on the stage, has, we had almost said endeared, himself to the people, by his quiet, unostentatious gentlemanly manner and generous nature. Should he ever come back to San Francisco he will find how numerous are his friends as he will too, most pleasantly, this afternoon.

There are three San Francisco papers from which the Eastern journals copy extensively, and yet which have no existence. For instance, in just looking over our exchanges we find five items of theatrical news, two credited to the San Francisco Advertiser, one to the San Francisco Postscript, and one to the San Francisco Mail. Now the proper distribution of origins should be, two items from the Chronicle, two from the Call, and one from the FIGARO. We should hardly think this mis-crediting is intentional, but that such changes of name should occur in transit, (for the items are all of very recent date), seems equally improbable.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

A person of science went out to try,
To try if his wings would bear;
When all of a sudden an owl came by,
And didn't the creature stare!
He noticed the person attempt to fly,
And scoffed at the way he steered,
And ruffled his feathers, and winked his eye,
And waggled his tail, and sneered.

The person would wriggle in graceful curves
A-top of a two-foot stump.
And then he'd consider, and brace his nerves—
And steady himself—and jump.
With bitter emotions that owl was bowed
And grumbled, as well he might:
And very severely observed aloud:
"A truly degrading sight!"

The gentleman colored and felt quite hot,
But bottled his wounded pride,
And shuffled away to his lonely cot
And bolted himself inside;
But as for the owl he was still dismayed:
"A pitiful sight!' said he;
"A libelous, scurrilous masquerade!
A silly burlesque of me!

"I'll lighten my mind of its grievous load
By giving him tit for tat!"
And, seeking a shop in the San Bruno Road,
He purchased a beaver hat.
The "æronaut's cottage was Number Four;
And as for the owl he went
And asked for a lease of the house next door,
At fifty dollars rent.

Disguising himself as an "æronaut,"
With buttons and boots and all,
He puffed a cigar he had lately bought
A-top of the garden wall.
The "æronaut," person of tender heart,
Though having some sense of pride,
Perceived the rebuke with an inward smart,
And felt it was just, and cried.

He thought of his wings in the first-floor-back—
The wings he would never more flit,
And, packing 'em in a potato sack,
He sold 'em for just a bit.
They shed a reciprocal, briny tear,
That man and the artful bird—
And there they've resided some forty year,
With never an angry word!

Ways That Are Dark.

A penurious old citizen of Watertown, N. Y., recently received a letter signed "Conscience stricken," and reading as follows: "Ten years ago, in a business transaction, I swindled you out of $10. My conscience smote me for it, and I have ever since lived an unhappy life. Enclosed you you will find a $50 note, which you will please change and deduct the $10, forwarding the balance to my address in care of the post office." The benevolent old gentleman was rejoiced at this unexpected windfall, but after he had forwarded the $40 and discovered that his $50 bill was counterfeit, he did not get up much of a religious centennial in honor of the event. On the contrary, he withdrew from the church in which he was a member, and in a confidential talk with the pastor, declared that he believed Satan to be a more honest and upright man than half those with whom he had had dealings in his life-time.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T. & D. Lundy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and al epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

One Dollar Hats

They do not keep in "The" Hat store, 617 Washington street, below Kearny, but persons desiring a good, durable and stylish hat at a reasonable price, should go there, and they will find a larger and better select stack than anywhere in the city. Their motto is: "The best at the lowest possible prices." "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny.

Detroit Police Court.

"Hold up your head, swell out your chest, and inform me, James Manchester, of the leading incidents in your career for the last twenty-four hours," said his Honor to the next prisoner.

"He is the man who broke that winder," explained Bijah.

"Ah, yes. On or about the solemn hour of midnight last night you sailed down Larned street and maliciously and with wickedness aforethought smashed, broke, shivered, ruined and destroyed a light of glass measuring 16x22, the said glass being situated in a saloon window."

"There was a feller in there going to lick me," explained the red-necked James.

"And his name it was—what?"

"I dunno that, but he drew a knife on me about four weeks ago."

"Where was it?"

"I don't remember, but I know he's a reg'lar rough."

"And you fear him?"

"I do."

"And you expect he will stab you?"

"Yes, sir."

"I guess he won't—not right away. I'll make your sentence thirty days, and I don't think he will get into the House of Correction and hurt you."

"I hain't done anything!" protested James.

"I know it—you are about to do something now—about to make chairs."

"Well, I won't work!"

"I wouldn't either—I'd sit on a divan and do nothing but eat ice cream and drink champagne and read novels."

MATHEMATICAL.

"Young man, how'd you come by that black eye?" asked the court of the next prisoner.

"M m-m-m," muttered the young man.

"A hole in your head, blood all over you, a black eye, a hard-looking nose, and the charge is disturbing the peace."

"M-m-m-m," was growled in reply.

"Well, how do you plead?"

"I don't care."

"Nor I, and I'll make it thirty days."

"Who cares if you do?"

"I'll make it sixty."

"Sixty be darned."

"It's now ninety."

"I don't give a cent."

"And money's no object to me; it's four months."

"Pooh!"

"It's now five."

"Bah!"

"And now it's six! This is the highest I can go, and if you give me any more of your impudence I shall come down there and see you."

The prisoner swaggered on, shaking his head, and his Honor took an orange off the corner of the table and bit into the side and extracted a liberal quantity of juice.

THE LAST MAN

was a farmer, who expressed deep and lasting sorrow over his little accident, and he was let off on a suspended sentence, the court adding:

"Mr. Oliver, if you are here again this Summer, I shall send you to a place where they plow with a hoe and harrow with a scrubbing brush."

The boys were ready for him as he came out, and they held him against the wall as they sang

"You better be content old chap
To reap and plant and sow;
You'd better let the jug alone
Or to the jug you'll go."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

The walls of Paris are already placarded all over with the name of our late favorite opera-bouffiste, Aimee. She is to create the role of the heroine of "Un Voyage dans la Lune," a new fairy opera bouffe extravaganza, by Letteriere, A. Vauloo and Mortier; music by Offenbach. It is in four acts, and twenty-one tableaux.

The London Figaro says: "The State Concert at Buckingham Palace, on Wednesday, was chiefly noticeable, as usual, for the total absence of English vocalists. The single pieces of English music performed—Lady Edith's air, Solemnly, Softly, in Balfe's "Talismano"—was carefully disguised by an Italian translation of the original English words of Mr. Matthieson; while the air, Oh Araby, from the English opera "Oberon," written by Planche and Weber, in 1826, expressly for Covent Garden, suffered the same fate. The Court would have been shocked to have heard the national language of England.

A short time since, Paganini's violin was removed—for the purpose of being photographed—from the glass case in the grand hall of the Municipal Palace. Guiseppe Bacigalupo, the violinist, played the prayer from Moise, and Paganini's own "Carnivale di Venezia," upon the instrument which had so long been mute. The last artist who performed on it was Sivori.

Gounod is to write, they say, an opera on Lady Jane Grey, for the opening of the new Grand Opera House on the Thames Embankment, London. People are beginning to wonder why they should be treated to two dramatic compositions at once on the reign of Queen Mary. Is it the result of a league on the part of Mr. Gladstone against Cardinal Manning and his influence?

A well-known dramatic critic says the Paris theatres are all on the road to pecuniary ruin.

Hans Von Bulow will give the first pianoforte recital at Boston, October 30th. He has recently refused the post offered him as director of the Opera House at Pesth.

A prominent business man has bought the Victoria Theatre, London, and intends to fit up it for religious work.

"The editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean,' says the New York Spirit of the Times, "although doubtless a highly-educated person, evidently did not learn manners when at school, or else he sadly forgot his early training when he wrote the following civil Personal concerning Miss Cushman: 'Miss Charlotte Cushman is very ill. That is entirely untrue. Miss Charlotte Cushman was never in better health. It makes no difference to us. We give both sides, and you may believe which you please.' Really! It makes no difference to you? One would have thought that the health of an illustrious artiste and thorough lady, one who has done much to raise her profession in the estimation of the world, was a matter of interest to all Americans—even to the editor of the Inter Ocean."

A writer from a New York paper from Montreal, says: "As far as pleasure or recreation is concerned, Montreal is probably one of the poorest cities in the world. There are a few theatres and concert halls, but they are closed, and the one that is open remains empty. In several days spent here, I have not heard as much as one bar of music of any sort, except organ music in the churches. There are no open air concerts, which one would expect to find in a place half of the population of which is French. There are—fancy such a state of affairs!—even no German bands or any grinding organs to be seen or heard. Everybody has probably read a dispatch which went a few days back round the papers to the effect that Charles Fechter was lying dangerously ill with disease of the heart at the St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal. On my arrival here I found him sufficiently recovered to be able to appear before the public, but, alas! what an appearance it was! It was his benefit night, and there were not sixty persons in the hall, ushers included. The performance took place, not in a theatre, but in the Mechanics' Hall, without any scenery or any other stage effects. It was a real pity to see his Hamlet and his Ruy Blas reduced to such a miserable condition. His illness was caused by an explosion of anger against the manager of the Royal Theatre here, who made a contract with him for a tour in Canada, causing him to bring a whole company, and afterwards proved utterly unable to carry out the engagement."

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relie by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 207 Kearny street, between Sutter and Bush, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience,

Nemesis.

"Beecher," says the New York correspondent of the St. Louis Globe, "is rapidly decaying, and I fear his death is near. The fire that used to shine from those expressive blue eyes has gone out forever, and there is a dull restless look in them; the face is bloated, the head once carried erect is bowed down when its owner appears upon the streets, and his step is unsteady and tottering. Mr. Beecher, it is claimed, never drinks stimulants, but I saw him yesterday, and as he staggered along the street I stopped and looked, wondering whether he had been stricken by the sun, or had taken a drug. I am not one who delights in the misfortune of any one, much less such a man as Henry Ward Beecher, but I tell you candidly that I believe Mr. Beecher will never survive the Summer, no matter what the verdict was. Gath has written of a probable fit of apoplexy terminating the career of this gifted man, but after seeing him yesterday, I fear that reason is taking its departure, and that like Horace Greeley he will go down to the grave incapable of recognizing the dear ones about him. His utterances last Friday night, in which he defied all the devils in hell to make him stop preaching, by some is taken for bravery, but I attribute it to another cause, viz., that his mind is becoming dethroned."

A Philadelphia detective has now come to the decided conclusion that Charley Ross was carried of by the New Jersey mosquitos.

The report that Princess of Wales "had lost her hearing" was only a Cockney perversion. She lost an ear-ring.

California Theatre.

Yesterday afternoon, as was naturally expected, saw the theatre crowded with those who had come to pay kindly tribute to Mr. H. J. Montague's appearance as a benefitee. This evening, "Kerry" and "The Shaughraun," and to-morrow evening, farewell benefit of Mr. Boucicault. What the house will be like then, we leave the reader to imagine.

Opera House.

Gilbert's comedy of "Charity" was well played to a well filled house last night. All the characters were taken firm hold of and strongly individualized. Miss Fanny Davenport's Ruth Tredgett was marked by much pathetic power and a close attention to the dialect. Lewis as the private detective was at times excessively funny, loud calls being given for him at the conclusion of the last act. Altogether the performance was a thoroughly satisfactory one, and it is fortunate that "Charity" will be repeated this evening.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Last night concluded "Faust's" run. Mr. G. F. Hall's Valentine has already been commended in these columns. It is certainly the best character he has so far assumed. The usual numbers were encored, which of course includes Mrs. Seguin's flower song. This lady's Siebel, like everything else she has played, is a graceful, pretty, and clear realization of a well-educated idea. To-night "Don Giovanni"

Pacific Hall.

This evening the Kennedys give a special glee programme, when a splendid collection of part-songs and madrigals will be produced as may be seen by the advertisement.

Miss Pateman's Benefit.

Next week is a week of benefits and debuts, Miss Pateman leading off in the former department on Monday, when for her benefit will be presented Boucicault's thrilling war drama of "The Relief of Lucknow," with Miss Pateman as Jessie Brown, the ballad "Killarney" by Miss Jennie Lee, the recitation of "The Collier's Dying Child" by the beneficiare, and the comedy of "The Ladies' Club" with Miss Pateman as Mrs. Captain Fitzsmyth.

Miss Jennie Lee's Benefit.

On the Wednesday following comes Miss Jennie Lee's benefit, which will be also the occasion of her public farewell to San Francisco, at least for a year or two. The bill will consist of the Comedy of "Used Up," a song by Mr. Carleton of the English Opera Troupe, and the burlesque, of "Ahmed," localized and adapted by T. J. Vivian.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

To-morrow evening "Happy Jack" Harrington takes a benefit, when a programme of unusual attractions will be given. The ordinary excellent entertainment to-night.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The acts and olio introduce all the members of the strong company to the audience in the best manner, giving everyone an opportunity of displaying his or her specialty.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

Saturday and Sunday, Borthwick the famous Scotch athlete and champion trick swordsman in his marvellous feats with the sword; first time of W. O. D. Stevens excelsior gymnast of Angelo's grand circus; the Albino children; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo, Mlle. Victorine and the gymnastic troupe. On Friday, festival of the Chinese Mission Schools, interesting exercises by Chinese and others, concert and performance by the Chinese Acrobatic Troupe.

Notes.

The Bulletin is ever a model of correctness in every way, as witness the following notice of Tuesday night's performance at Maguire's New Theatre: "The fourth presentation of "Faust" last night, with Mrs. Bernard as Margurite, Mrs. Seguin as Siebel, Mr. Mead in the title role, and Mr. Carleton as Mephistopheles, was generally admirable, etc."

There were very nearly fifteen hundred dollars in the house at Montague's benefit yesterday afternoon.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and al epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

MILKMAID'S SONG.

[FROM TENNYSON'S NEW DRAMA "QUEEN MARY."]

Shame upon you, Robin,
Shame upon you now!
Kiss me would you? with my hands
Milking the cow?
Daisies grow again,
Kingcups blow again,
And you came and kiss'd me milking the cow.

Robin came behind me,
Kiss'd me well I vow;
Cuff him could I? with my hands
Milking the cow?
Swallows fly again,
Cuckoos cry again,
And you came and kiss'd me milking the cow.

Come, Robin, Robin,
Come and kiss me now;
Help it can I? with my hands
Milking the cow?
Ringdoves coo again,
All things woo again,
Come behind and kiss me milking the cow.

STRAY HITS AND STOLEN BITS.

A teacher in the Port Jervis public schools was last week explaining to the children that usually all words ending with "let" meant something small, as streamlet, rivulet, hamlet, etc. Whereupon a smart boy asked if hamlet meant a small ham.

"For want of water I am forced to drink water; if I had water, I would drink wine." This speech is a riddle, and here is the solution. It was the complaint of an Italian vineyard man, after a long drought, and an extremely hot Summer that had parched up all his grapes.

"Now, then, children," said a parish school-mistress showing her children off on examination day: "Who loves all men?" "You missus," was the unexpected answer.

Dr. Johnson once dined with a Scottish lady who had hotch-potch for dinner. After the doctor had tasted it she asked him if it was good. "It is good for hogs, ma'am," said the doctor. "Then pray," said the lady, "let me help you to some more."

The naked truth—a bear story.

What is the difference between spermaceti and a schoolboy's howl? One is the wax produced by the whale, and the other is the wail produced by the wacks.

It was a lady of Paris who regretted with a broken heart that her husband had been sent to Noumea as an officer of the government with a good salary. "Why, yes," said her friends, "he might better go as a a convict, for they all return immediately."

It is difficult to count church-goers. Out of a hundred who go to church quite regularly, seventy-five do not attend at all.

What tool does an intoxicated cab-man most resemble?—A screw'd-driver.

Query—When a man stands on his dignity, how much taller is he?

"Unmanned by the loss of her husband," is the latest style of indicating a widow's grief.

What portions of the body are the best travelers—The two wrists.

A paper has been started at Galveston called The Thunder Bolt, whatever that is. The Thunder Bolt says it comes "to promote the welfare, safety and prosperity of the community in which it is published."

Some of the company at tea with a Danbury family spoke of the excellence of the honey, whereupon the head of the house, who stands in reputed dread of his wife, feelingly said, "Honey is the most delicious of all delicacies. It is the nectar of beautiful flowers, sipped from brilliant petals by the never-tiring bee, and moulded into a glory that would tempt the god of—" "Ephraim!" enunciated his wife with stern solemnity, "have you been drinking again?" Ephraim groaned.

Rival hackman at Niagaria Falls now issue chromos to passengers, after the manner of religious newspapers. This plan increases the circulation of travelers.

They now call retired printers ex-press men.

Curious answers often come out in examination for the civil service. The word "inheritance" occurring in a page of reading, the examiner interrogated the youngster: "What is inheritance?" "Patrimony." "What is patrimony?" "Something left by a father." "What would you call it if left by a mother?" "Matrimony."

One Dollar Hats

They do not keep in "The" Hat store, 617 Washington street, below Kearny, but persons desiring a good, durable and stylish hat at a reasonable price, should go there, and they will find a larger and better select stock than anywhere in the city. VERSICAL ODDS AND ENDS.

The National Grange has moved to Louisville. Now let the Secretary go on with his agricultural poetry:

Beyond the vermicelli row
I hear the bull-frogs sigh again
The cackle of the Durham ewe,
The bellow of the Berkshire hen.

We'll chase the plum to his retreat;
We'll hunt the eggs the onions lay;
And when the bantam hog shall bleat
We'll feed him some clover hay.

SERENADE.

I sang my love: "Come down, come down,
And sail the crinkled river!"
She sent to me a skreezy frown
That put me in a quiver.

I swirled and screeled: "Oh, pray, my love,
Come sail the scrouchy water!"
She flightered wildly, like a dove,
And in my boat I caught her.

Some say there's nothing made in vain,
While others the reverse maintain,
And prove it very handy,
By citing animals like these—
Mosquitoes, bedbugs, crickets, fleas,
And, worse than all, a dandy.

Persons who are weary of saying "How doth the little busy bee," may try the following Chinese version:

How! Sie belly small chin-chin sting bug
Im-im-imp ove ebly slixty minnit all a time.
Go, pickee up sting bug juice all a day,
All kin' places 'loung' flowels jest got busted.

Far down in the sunless retreat of a cellar,
I'll hide me from syllables swarming like flies;
A wretched, unfortunate, mis-maddened speller,
Who cares not a straw for the costliest prize,
Burn up my old school-books to-day, if you love me!
Drown Webster and Worcester deep in the well!
And write on the knocker so silent above me:
"There's nobody here that can read, write or spell!"

The reader's attention is earnestly called to the following elegiac antique:

Amanda Jane has gone to rest;
She's laid her head on Abraham's breast;
To tell the truth, and not to sham,
It's awful rough on Abraham.

A Virginia paper announces the marriage of Miss Jane Lemon to Mr. Ebenezer Sweet; whereupon somebody perpetrates the following:

"How happy the extremes do meet
In Jane and Ebenezer;
She's no longer sour but sweet,
And he's a Lemon squeezer!"

This is Child's latest gem in the way of obituary poetry:

"He was one of children seven,
A boiler-maker gone to heaven.
(Waiting for his aunt's second cousin.")

Latest from the Philadelphia Ledger:

A cherry, incompletely ripe,
His little business did for him,
And now, serenely free from gripe,
He is a bob-tailed cherubim,
Gone to meet the gardener.

'Tis the first Spring mosquito
Heard humming alone,
His thirsty companions
Will be here anon.

After the sunset,
Before the night,
There comes a season
Of quiet light.

After the dying,
Before the death,
There comes a drawing
Of quiet breath.

Hush of the daylight,
O whisper why
That childlike breathing
Before we die!

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

Henry Irving.

"On the subject of Henry Irving," says the London correspondent of the N. Y. Spirit of the Times, "I refuse for the moment to speak. I have not the time or the opportunity at present. But I do not hesitate to say that I very much question his success in America, for he has the faults which you would never overlook. His walk, his tones, and his mannerisms, which do not decrease, would draw away more pleasant impressions. Besides, you have Mr. Edwin Booth. Be this as it may, the popularity of Henry Irving increases marvellously. On Tuesday he concluded the wonderful task of "playing Hamlet" for 200 consecutive nights. I never saw such a scene in a theatre, even on the occasions of the farewell performances to Mrs. Keeley and Benjamin Webster. All the audience leaped upon the benches and waved their hats and handkerchiefs for at least ten minutes. They cheered their idol to the echo, and, I believe, that if any one had said one word against Irving he would have been hurled from the gallery or out of the pit. The shouts increased when Henry Irving announced that Mrs. Bateman had made arrangements with the poet laureate, Alfred Tennyson, for the early production of his drama, "Queen Mary." This is a splendid stroke of business, for however unsuited the drama may be for the stage, the whole world and his wife will go to see a new play by a poet laureate, and an author of the reputation of Mr. Tennyson. Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe) will be Queen Mary, and Mr. Henry Irving will play some substantial character. He will not be Philip, and of this I am assured. On Thursday Mr. Henry Irving completed his triumph by taking the chair at the Theatrical Fund dinner, and making an admirable speech for the charity. He succeeded in securing £1,000 for the charity, the largest amount ever collected at one of the Fund dinners. A host of notabilities were present, amongst whom were Sir Frederick Pollock, Sir Baldwin Leighton, Salvini, Robert Browning, etc. One of the toasts was eloquently proposed by Colonel Forney, of Philadelphia, the popular Commissioner in this country, who is busy arranging for the great Exhibition. Mr. Sothern, who was too unwell to appear, sent a liberal cheque for fifty guineas, and the popular Mr. Buckstone made a characteristic and very funny speech.

Disillusions.

A New York correspondent, referring to the infatuation of ladies for favorite actors, says: "Plenty of dazed young women picture their Montague or their Rignold within the vasteness of their homes—in yellow satin or crimson velvet, perhaps wearing kingly crowns, reading Byron or Swinburn, while the perfumed air stirs the lace hangings and lifts their ambrosial locks. When all the while these heroes in their stocking feet and shirt sleeves are lying round particularly loose, in an atmosphere redolent of old boots, stage things and pipe-smoke. The odor of stage-clothes may be questioned. Why next to bruised tomato vines, the most abominable smelling things are the costumes worn in the theatres! The robust youth thrashes round till he's in a nice perspiration, then just claws off his velvets and tinsil-trimmed traps, rolls 'em up and stuffs them like wadding a cannon into a yawning trunk. The brassy metal tarnishes and corrodes, the cloth gets musty and the dear girl who has her nose crushed upon the manly breast of Claude or Romeo next night gets a whiff unsuggestive of Araby the blest. There's a great row here about the bad-smelling Harlem flats. They are rose gardens beside the theatrical flats."

Precocity.

Mamma (to Freddy who is learning his letters)—"Don't you know what that is, Freddy? Why, that's A, apple pie, isn't it Cissy, dear!"

Cissy—"Well, mamma, I should say an apple pie, if you asked me!"

Amusements, Etc.

Opera House.

"Charity" was produced for the second time last evening to another good house, and was apparently thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Miss Davenport's Ruth Tredgett, Mr. Lewis' Fitz Partington, Mr. Fisher's Dr Althelney, Mr. Parkes Fred Smailey and Miss Bigl's Eve Vanbrugh, stand out from the other characters as being particularly well taken and acted. To-night, Bronson Howard's comedy of the American life of to-day entitled "Saratoga." On Sunday evening there will be a special performance by request, of "Frou-Frou."

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Don Giovanni" with Mozart's light and graceful music was evidently accepted as a relief from Gounod's heavier style. The cast was nearly the same as that of its last production which included the Don Giovanni of Mr Carleton, the Donna Anna of Mrs Caroline Richings-Bernard, the Donna Elvira of Miss Beaumont, the Leporello of Mr. Peakes and the Don Octavio of Mr. Maas. The only difference of the two casts was in the Zerlina which was taken last evening by Mme. Rosewald, and the Commandier which was taken by Mr. G. F. Hall. This evening "The Bohemian Girl."

California Theatre.

To-night, Mr Boucicault takes his farewell benefit, and if one tithe of those he has amused and charmed during his present visit, were to flock, to see and hear him, the California Theatre would of necessity, have to turn away half. And this we expect, will be something like the real state of affairs, for those whom the Shaughraun has won over to keep as friends, go by the name of Legion. The bill will be as usual, "Kerry" and "The Shaughraun," and no better bill could there possibly be.

Pacific Hall.

Last evening's special glee night drew all those who have admired the excellent part song singing of the Kennedy family. This evening is styled a "Tam o' Shanter Night" and will include characteristic songs and recitations.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

This clever company of precocious little ones will give two positively last performances at Platt's Hall on Saturday and Sunday evenings. On Saturday "Robinson Crusoe" will be given, and on Sunday, "La Grande Duchesse."

Miss Pateman's Benefit.

Next week is a week of benefits and debuts, Miss Pateman leading off in the former department on Monday, when for her benefit will be presented Boucicault's thrilling war drama of "The Relief of Lucknow," with Miss Pateman as Jessie Brown, the ballad "Killarney" by Miss Jennie Lee, the recitation of "The Collier's Dying Child" by the beneficiare, and the comedy of "The Ladies' Club" with Miss Pateman as Mrs. Captain Fitzsmyth.

Miss Jennie Lee's Benefit.

On the Wednesday following comes Miss Jennie Lee's benefit, which will be also the occasion of her public farewell to San Francisco, at least for a year or two. The bill will consist of the Comedy of "Used Up," a song by Mr. Carleton of the English Opera Troupe, and the burlesque, of "Ahmed," localized and adapted by T. J. Vivian.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Kimic's act of "The Dutch Apprentice," Swain and West's quick change song and dance called "The Yankee Boys," the Chinese dance by Misses Livingston and Brewer, and Stewart's Ethiopian sketch are all on the bill to-night.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

To-night is the benefit of "Happy Jack" Harrington, for which occasion Mr. Harrington will make his debut in his splendid Shakespearian creation of "Richard The Three Times." All lovers of the great bard (and the beneficiare) should attend.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.

Saturday and Sunday, Borthwick the famous Scotch athlete and champion trick swordsman in his marvellous feats with the sword; first time of W. O. D. Stevens excelsior gymnast of Angelo's grand circus; the Albino children; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo, Mlle. Victorine and the gymnastic troupe. On Friday, festival of the Chinese Mission Schools, interesting exercises by Chinese and others, concert and performance by the Chinese Acrobatic Troupe.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
T   at their EASTERN OYSTERS
    drink their Rhenish hock."

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

"Lohengrin."

This graphic description of Wagner's work is from a long review in the Pall Mall Gazette: "A king, two knights (one good, the other bad), a virtuous princess, a wicked enchantress, a swan, and a dove are the active personages in this drama, which introduces three states of ecstacy (including two visions), several miracles (including one miraculous transformation), one tournament, one attempt at murder, one death from stabbing, three marches, four grand pagents, and five horses. The piece is full of tumult, picturesqueness, character, and color. All that is pure in the play is presented in symbolic white. The miraculous swan, the mystic dove, are, of course, white. The girlish little lad, into whom the swan is ultimately changed, or rather re-transformed, shines in white armor and white silk. Lohengrin wears a silver helmet, surmounted by a silver swan, carries a silver shield, is encased in silver armor, and has nothing unsilvery about him but his horn of gold, and a black, heart-shaped escutcheon on his breast, from which stands out an emblematic swan—once more in silver. Elsa, typical maiden of ancient maiden of ancient ballads, suffering under foul calumny, but spotless as snow, is clad in white, in white and silver, and in white and gold. The king, too, rides a white horse, which Wagner would not have allowed him to do, if he had not intended to show that he considered him a good king at heart. The bad characters, on the other hand, are ill dressed, in dark brown or in dull red. The vile Frederic of Talramund is exhibited in the garb of a beggar; and the wicked Ortrud flaunts about in crimson and spangles."

Country Customs.

Dan Davis of Virginia City paid a visit to Prometory, on the Central Pacific Railroad, and was charmed with the manners and customs—almost patriarchal in their frank simplicity—of the people. He stopped at the principal hotel of the town. It was a nice place, and the landlord was a very agreeable and friendly sort of a man. Says Dan.: "When dinner was ready the landlord came out into the street in front of his hotel with a double-barreled shotgun. Raising the gun above his head he fired off one barrel. I said to him, 'What did you do that for? Said he, 'To call my boarders to dinner.' I said, 'Why don't you fire off both barrels?' 'Oh,' said he, 'I keep the other to collect with.'"

Swinging Round the Circle.

"Did you ever see that picture, grandma?" asked a young lady, as they took a view of the family portrait gallery. "See it? Why, its a portrait of myself when I was seventeen." "I thought you had forgotten it, or you wouldn't always be lecturing us girls about modesty in dress." Grandma looked over her spectacles and declared the girls now-a-days were very impertinent to their elders.

SHAKSPEARE'S MASK.

A death mask of Shakespeare belongs in itself to the most interesting of things; but this interest must be greatly increased when we see the hitherto unknown death mask suddenly found in the midst of Germany, while no one is able to say how it came there. The first idea is that it may be a counterfeit, as there have been so many Shakspeare counterfeits, but that this is genuine is the opinion of Prof. Schaafhausen, of Bohn, who has devoted to it a very profound essay, recently published in the Tenth Year Book of the German Shakspeare Society. His most important reasons are the following:

1. The mask was taken from a dead face and is not the product of art. This is proved by the expression of the skin, by certain peculiar irregularities which hardly any artist could invent, and by the hairs of the moustache and beard which remain sticking in the plaster and which, according to the opinion of the famous English anatomist, Richard Owen, correspond in their peculiar structure to those features of the mask where they are found. These hairs out of the beard of Shakspeare also correspond in their reddish brown with the color in which the beard of the Stratford bust was painted.

2. Upon the back of the mask there is upon the edge, the inscription, "A. D. 1616," the year of Shakspeare's death. According to the opinion of experts, the figures are such as were used at the time. They have not sharp but round edges, indicating that they were not cut in afterwards, but were written with a stick in the plaster while it was soft.

3. Schaffhausen is confident that the alleged death mask of Shakspeare must be that of a man of very great importance. He gives all the measurements, and especially dwells upon the unusual breadth of the forehead, which is 135 millimetres. The features of the mask are those of a man of the age of fifty-two, as Shakspeare was when he died.

4. One would suppose that the resemblance of the mask would be the most important point about it; but unfortunately the portraits of Shakspeare are so perfectly dissimilar to each other that the investigation of this subject is difficult. The Stratford bust, however, which to judge from the eyes must have been executed after a death mask, and whose artist probably attempted to give life to the sunken features of the corpse by an exaggerated fulness of outline, has very little resemblance to our mask, but it has, like this, a beard on the chin, while the most trustworthy portraits of the poet, and the copper-plate of Droeshout, which is prefixed to his work, and sung by Ben Johnson, does not accord with the death mask in a very high degree, except that in the copper-plate the poet is represented with a full beard.

The mask was found in 1848 by Louis Becker, the painter, in the possession of a bric-a-brac dealer in Mayence. From 1848 to 1855 it was in the possession of Prof. Owen in London, and after the death of Louis Becker was restored to his family in Darmstadt, in whose hands it now is. Prof. Schaffhausen, is thoroughly convinced of the genuineness of the mask, and finally pleads with zeal for a comparison of the mask with the skull of Shakspeare which is still in existence in the grave at Stratford. Frankfurter Zeitung.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish bock."

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The house as was naturally expected last night was a crush and jam and Mr. Boucicault's benefit at the California Theatre will not soon be forgotten by him. This afternoon and this evening are the last performances of "Kerry" and "The Shaughraun" and consequently the last appearance of Mr. Boucicault and Mr. Montague. They leave for the East to-morrow morning taking with a host of pleasant recollections and John McCullough.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—"The Bohemian Girl" is an established favorite, and scarcely ever fails to draw a good house. It certainly did not fail last evening. It will be repeated, with changes of cast, this and to-morrow evenings. This afternoon "Fra Diavolo."

OPERA HOUSE.—Bronson Howard's farcial comedy of "Saratoga" drew a full house last evening, and was played with much spirit and humor by the entire company. Mr. Lewis' Bob Sackett was one of those remarkable pieces of eccentric comedy that have made him celebrated. This evening "Saratoga" will be repeated, this afternoon "Charity," and to-morrow evening, a special performance of "Frou Frou."

BENEFIT OF MISS BELLA PATEMAN.—Next week is a week of benefits and debuts, Miss Pateman leading off in the former department on Monday, when for her benefit will be presented Boucicault's thrilling war drama of "The Relief of Lucknow," with Miss Pateman as Jessie Brown, the ballad "Killarney" by Miss Jennie Lee, the recitation of "The Collier's Dying Child" by the beneficiare, and the comedy of "The Ladies' Club" with Miss Pateman as Mrs. Captain Fitzsmyth.

MISS JENNIE LEE'S BENEFIT.—On the Wednesday following comes Miss Jennie Lee's benefit, which will be also the occasion of her public farewell to San Francisco, at least for a year or two. The bill will consist of the Comedy of "Used Up," a song by Mr. Carleton of the English Opera Troupe, and the burlesque, of "Ahmed," localized and adapted by T. J. Vivian.

MISS BADGER'S DEBUT.—On the Thursday following Miss Ella F. Badger, a pupil of Miss Emelie Melville will make her debut at the California Theatre, as Julia in "The Hunchback," supported by the company. After the drama Miss Badger will recite Drake's "Address to the American Flag," and the bill will conclude with "Robert [illegible]"

CIPRICO.—On the Friday following, this gentleman will produce his play of "Edmund Kean; or, The Bohemian," at the California Theatre. Already the box sheet indicates a good house.

PACIFIC HALL.—Kennedy's farewell matinee will be given this afternoon, and on Monday night the farewell performance. That these are the last opportunity of hearing the old Scottish songs gloriously sung, should be remembered.

MEXICAN INFANTILE OPERA COMPANY.—The first of the two last farewell performances of this wonderful troupe will be given at Platt's Hall this afternoon, and the second to-morrow evening. The performance this afternoon is for the joint benefit of Ninas Carmen and Guadalupe U. y Moron, that to-morrow evening for the benefit of Nina Soledad U. y Moron. We are glad to hear that the box sheet shows a good take.

HEROLD'S CONCERTS.—On Wednesday next, August the 4th, Herold's second season of orchestral matinees will commence. This time they will be supported by subscription, the list of which is being well filled. Such an institution deserves patronage, for already has Mr. Herold given us (in his first season) some of the best instrumental selections from the great composers.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Kimic, Swain, West, Nickerson, Mortimore, Price, Sonate and Foster with the ladies of the company, give a performance this evening of an unusually good description.

NEW OLYMPIC VARIETY THEATRE.—"Happy Jack" Harrington's benefit drew a splendid house. The bill was an excellent one and well carried out by Ned Barry, the efficient Stage Manager.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—ATTRACTIONS. Saturday and Sunday, Borthwick the famous Scotch athlete and champion trick swordsman in his marvellous feats with the sword; first time of W. O. D. Stevens excelsior gymnast of Angelo's grand circus; the Albino children; Mlle. Gracie and Mons. Leo, Mlle. Victorine and the gymnastic troupe.

NOTES.

There is the usual steady amount of work done at the new theatres, although, more correctly speaking, the work at that on Market street is proceeding with a rush rather than steadily. Already the rim of the third circle is in position, whilst the back wall of the theatre rises perceptibly every hour.

Montgomery Queen's Circus reported from Brunswick, Mo., on the 21st.

[We commend the following letter to the attention of all showmen who may have the intention of visiting this year's Oregon State Fair.]

ROSEBURG, Oregon, July 24th, 1875.

DEAR FIGARO:—We have traveled all through Californi[illegible]evada, Owyhee, Idaho, Washington Territory, and thus far in Oregon. To-morrow we start for Coos Bay, where we expect to put in ten days, then return to this place and so on overland to California once more. We did well until we struck Oregon, and here for a few days we have run rather [illegible], but Coos Bay will bring us up all right again. I did intend to return from here to the Oregon State Fair, but I find they have raised the prices on everthing so high that it would be impossible to make anything. Following is a list of licenses which I think will benefit all the showmen

LICENSES FOR 1875.

[For the Oregon State Fair, commencing Monday, October 11th.]

Circus per season	$300 00
Museum under canvas, (no live animals)..... 25x30	50 00
Menagerie under canvas, 30x35	100 00
Exhibition of Single Animal, under canvas, 10x15	15 00
Minstrel Troupe	75 00
Steam or Horse Swing, per term	50 00
Hand Swing, per term	20 00

GROUND RENT.

Ground rent will be charged exhibitions, etc., under canvas, for the fair week, at the following rates, distance reckoned from the outside stakes:

Canvas, 10x15 or less		30 cents per foot	$ 4 50
" 15x20	or over 10x15	25 " "	7 50
" 20x25	" 15x20	20 " "	10 00
" 25x30	" 20x25	17 " "	13 00
" 30x35	" 25x30	15 " "	15 70

Canvas larger than 30x35, 12 cents per foot.

Circus exempt from these rates.

By order of the Board of Managers.
M. WILKINS, President.

From this you will see that whilst last year we only paid $26 for license to the ground, and $40 more for a building to play in, this year they charge $75 for a Minstrel Troupe, whilst the building to show in will cost between $150 and $200 more. For a circus heretofore, the license has only been $200 this year they have raised just $100.

Yours, C. MORRELL,
of Morrell's Minstrels.

San Jose is being well blistered with shows, but it is a query if all will draw. Last night the Lingards played at the Opera House, the bill consisting of the comedies of "The Admiral" and "Lady Elizabeth," with the Lingard Sketches. To-night and to-morrow night, two "grand" concerts are to be given at Central Hall by George Voges, tenor; Prof. Eggers, pianist; Herr Uhlig, violinist; Mr. Backrach, baritone; and a Mme. Rotanza Chevalier, of whom the Mercury says: "She is a prima donna with a fresh high-cultured voice, who created quite a sensation in Europe and all the large cities of the United States. She is the idol of prima donnas in California." Strange that we have never heard of her. On Wednesday night, Jackley's circus will open there for a season.

The Alleghanians showed at Olympia on Saturday last, and opened for the week at the New Market Street Theatre, Portland, on Monday last.

The Hooley's are doing well in Sacramento, "Ultimo" and "The Two Orphans" being the two pieces de resistence. Kennedy's De Haas, has made quite a hit. It is very possible that the week will be closed with a couple of Shaksperian performances. From Sacramento, they will go to Stockton, thence perhaps to San Jose, and so back to San Francisco.

We hear that Emilie Melville will receive shares from manager Lyster, with the guarantee that the receipts shall not fall below £150 ($750) per week. Not much of a fortune in that.

Ground was broken at the corner of Kearny. Market and Third streets on Wednesday, for Lotta's fountain, and its erection will be completed next week. This fountain will be remarkable as the first public monument donated to the city.

After the week of benefits and debuts comes the revival of "The Two Orphans" followed on September 6th by the engagement of Mr. Lawrence Barrett.

"For genuine depth of musical criticism," says the N. Y. Dispatch, "commend us to the Call of San Francisco. Here is what it says of Maas, the tenor, of the Hess company: This was the first appearance of Mr. Maas, as Manrico, a handsome, though under-sized young man, who looks like a modified copy of Orlandi, but with much better legs than that old-time baritone. Maas has a charming, flute-like voice, into which he manages to throw a good deal of expression. Some of his scenes with Leonora were gems of vocalization. In fact, he seems occasionally to lean on the prima donna, and is better in duet than in solo. The Serenade and the Miserere were weak, because Mr. Maas cannot afford, till he acquires a little more power, to sing in distance. None but a San Francisco critic would ever think of giving such attention to a tenor's nether limbs."

Billy Bray and Tommy Barton, old variety performers, left for the East on Thursday, to open at the Olympic, St. Louis.

Leipzig has adopted the lower orchestral pitch, and it would be well if San Francisco would follow her example. The members of the opera company complain that the pitch in this city is fully half a tone higher than in the East, and so the more wearing to the voice.

The order of business at the California next week will be, Monday evening, benefit of Miss Bella Pateman, Tuesday evening, debut of Miss Norton Bush, Wednesday evening, benefit of Miss Jennie Lee, Thursday evening, debut of Miss Ella F. Badger, Friday evening, debut of Mr. Ciprico in "Edmund Kean," and Saturday evening, annual benefit of Mr. T. J. French, the treasurer.

The order of business at Maguire's New Theatre for next week will include Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" on Monday, for the first time here in English; Flotow's "Martha" on Tuesday, and Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenot's" on Wednesday, also for the first time here in English.

Next week the Daly Fifth Avenue Company will produce at the Opera House, H. J. Byron's late comedy of "Weak Women," for the first time in San Francisco. This novelty will certainly attract.

To-morrow afternoon, there will be a novel boat race at the Long Bridge. A whitehall will be attached to a kite 8x10 feet and with a crew for ballast, will be open to beat any rowing crew in a similar boat from Long Bridge to Oakland. An entirely tirely novel combination of aerial and aquatic navigation.

Emerson's Minstrels are at present at Albany, N Y. They open at Dayton, Ohio, on Friday evening next. A misunderstanding between Emerson and Arlington occurred at the Boston Theatre on the 12th, which may possibly lead to Arlington's secession from the company.

By reference to our New York news it will be seen that the Misses Conway have been forced to give up the Brooklyn Theatre, in consequence of inability to annul the old debts. It would have been much better had they accepted the kind offer made by the management of the California Theatre at the time of their mother's death, and come on here to play "The Two Orphans."

Clara Morris says that when she plays Cleopatra she will use a pigment to discolor her skin.

In a London Figaro just come to hand, is a series of "autographs of the Period," specially contributed to the magazine. Amongst them is that of Stephen Massett, which reads:

"I take it to be a principal rule of life, not to be too much addicted to any one thing."

How about being "too much addicted to" Jeems Pipes?

We have received news of Alfred Wilkie, the tenor, singing at concerts with the Carri's in the Eastern States. Thought he was going to Europe to study for a year.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

After a long and inglorious career in the past as a variety theatre, the Metropolitan on Broadway has luckily fallen into the hands of William Pastor and M. B. Leavitt, both energetic and successful managers. The inaugural performance is announced fo August 2d, and an unusually attractive programme, including several notable stars, is promised.

William Herbert, the admirable actor who supported Mr. Toole in his recent tour in this country and the Canadas, is engaged for next season at Wallack's, New York.

Mr. Owen Marlowe has returned from England and proposes to give dramatic and literary entertainments at the Lyceum next season.

Miss Minnie Conway and her sister Lilian have vacated the Brooklyn Theatre. Judge McCue, Mr. Keeney, and others of the Brooklyn Building Company offered to give Miss Conway a receipt in full for a debt of $10,500 to the first of August if she would secure them the rent of the theatre from that time to October, 1876, at $18,000 a year. She obtained the proper security, but from gentlemen who were opposed to the faction who own the theatre, and as she needed more ready cash to put the repairs into the theatre that were needed, and to start her company to work, and had no guarantee in case of an unsuccessful season, she determined not to run the risk of impoverishing the estate by the complication. She therefore refused the proposition. Another proposition was made, that if she would give up the theatre at once, and leave in it all of the stage and scenic property, the back debt would be cancelled, and a receipt in full given he up to the end of this week. Although there is over $10,000 worth of property in the building which is in her name, Miss Minnie yielded to this demand and gives up the building. She had engaged a full stock company for the Fall, and had made promising contracts with Clara Morris, "Kit" Chanfrau, Davenport, Raymond, the Vokes and others. Miss Conway claims to have made $9,000 in the three weeks of her management after Mrs. Conway's death, $7,500 of which she handed to her landlords. She proposes in two weeks going to England for a year with her sister. A benefit will be tendered them before leaving. Mr. Sheridan Shook will probably be lessee of the Brooklyn Theatre and run it in connection with the Union Square.

The first leading house to open was the Union Square on the 21st of July, under A. M. Palmer. The Fifth Avenue will reopen Aug. 2d, followed on the 23d by the Kiralfys' grand novelty of "Around the World" at the Academy of Music. Booth's will begin Aug. 30th, and then a perfect fusilade of re-openings will occur until every local place of amusement in the city will allure its patrons from seaside and mountain to enjoy a New York Fall season.

A cargo of "Around the World" scenery arrived from Paris on the 12th. The last scene in the play weighed twenty-one hundred pounds.

Billy Birch is recovering from a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

G. F. Rowe leaves Liverpool for New York by the City of Berlin on August 12th.

The new Third Avenue Theatre, between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets, was opened under the management of Jake Berry, on Monday, July 26th.

Mr. Michaelis is to the front again. Mr. Daly knows him, but to what amount cannot be told. Mr. Michaelis came here, sold "Roi Carotte," if not the buyer, got his money, and then subsided. This time he is reported to have re-appeared as the champion of an international copyright law, which is said to centre in Mr. Michaelis the exclusive privilege of playing all American adaptations of French novels on the national stage, or of compelling American managers to pay him tribute. This would prove a very nice arrangement for Mr. Michaelis, providing other people can be made to see such views through his spectacles.

Lydia Thompson is not coming to this country this Fall, after all, but Julia Matthews, with a full burlesqué troupe, is.

Clara Rousby is at present in Paris, but will commence her second American tour at New York sometime in September, at Booth's Theatre, in a society drama written expressly for her by Dion Boucicault. Mrs. Rousby will run her own traveling company throughout the season, which will include a California engagement, engineered by a business manager of tact and experience.

Rumor asserts that Mr. Wm. Wheatley will again assume the management of Niblo's Garden.

"Rose Michel" is announced at three different houses in New York, as the opening play of the Fall season. Messrs. Shook & Palmer, however, claim to have purchased the only manuscript and exclusive right to the play in America.

J. L. Toole sailed on the 17th from New York for Liverpool in the Adriatic. After his arrival in England he will rest for a few weeks, and about the end of August he will appear at Manchester. Then he will visit Dublin, Belfast, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Liverpool and Birmingham, and on November 8th he will open at the London Gaiety, where he will remain for six months at the best terms ever given a star at that theatre. If alive and well Mr. Toole will probably visit this country again in 1877. The New York Tribune of the 18th in noticing Mr. Toole's departure, said: "Both as an actor and a man, Mr. Toole's influence on our stage has been beneficial, and he will leave a tender and fragrant memory in many American hearts and homes."

Wachtel will make his rentree in New York October 16th, at the Academy of Music.

English Opera Bouffe has become a popular and standard attraction at Robinson Hall, evidenced by the success which has crowned the presentation of Girofle-Girofla" during the past ten weeks. "Chilperic" is now running.

Gilmore's Concert Garden is no longer an experiment, but an acknowledged and prosperous institution.

George Vandenhoff, like John Brougham, is writing his reminiscences of the stage. He will first put them in the form of a lecture.

Manager Josh Hart is vigorously pushing forward his new Eagle Theatre, at the junction of Broadway and Sixth avenue, near Thirty-second street. The foundations are very massive, and the materials used in the building consist of stone, brick and iron exclusively. The entrances to the lower and upper portions of the house will be separate and distinct. The auditorium decorations will be in white and gold, while the proscenium boxes and chairs will be embellished with rich crimson, silk rep and plush trimmings. The walls of the two lower circles will be ornamented with an entire coating of plate-glass, at a cost of $13,000, and Matt Morgan will supply all the scenery and magnificent drop curtain. The cost of this undertaking will foot up to $125,000, and Mr. Hart proposes to attempt getting his first return installment about the third week in September.

Miss Julia Mathews, who has for some years led an English Opera Bouffe Troupe in England, is announced for Wallack's Theatre, Aug. 10th.

H. J. Byron's new comedy, "Our Boys," will be among the novelties at the Fifth Avenue Theatre next season.

At last the intelligent compositor is vindicated, and struts the sidewalk with an air of triumph. The dramatic critic of the Chicago Journal delicately hinted that that the Union Square company "was better than the troupe which preceded it." The I. C. pondered. He mused. He even thought. The paragraph Tuesday evening announced that the "Union Square company was better than the tramps who preceded it." What to him that "somebody blundered." There's a compo who knows something.

Amusements in Russia.

A writer from St. Petersburgh thus discourses: At St. Petersburgh the gardens are in full bloom, and amusements of every kind are provided. The opera has had a most successful season, and the theatres have had no cause to complain. The Jardin Demidov is now the centre of attraction. The Hanlons have returned and have added many novelties. Fred Evans and troupe have also been successful. Madame Gerodi's ballet have done well, and a Signor and Signora from Milan have made a hit in the same line. Brown's Marionettes have done wonderfully well. There are several concert halls in the city, which are attended well. Cronstadt has some attractions, but English artists are seldom engaged. In Riga there is at present very little amusement, German entertainers predominating. Moscow has been visited during the last few weeks by the Circus Ciniselli, where George Levantine has done great things. At Salamonski's Cirque, Warsaw, Esther Austin has created quite a furore. Tony Grice, the clown, has a fund of mirth, and Miss Grice is one of the most graceful and daring riders in the establishment. Reval is a pleasant little town in the Gulf of Finland, and does not lack amusements, for there are many spots of interest that are devoted to pleasure. Catharinental, a beautiful park, formerly the residence of Peter the Great, is always a scene of gayety. Wicke's establishment is a charming resort. The artists engaged here are of the first rank, and the beautiful Danish singers, Camelia and Martha Ameotta, warble their national songs to the delight of overflowing audiences. The Tivoli, Copenhagen, is a most beautiful garden, and an endless variety of amusement is always provided. The Brothers Mortimer have been re-engaged for the season. Hamburgh is as lively as ever, Mutzenbeckers and the Fahrhaus being in favor, while the theatres are always full at this period of the year.

Business Enterprise.

The representatives of go-ahead and energetic business men are certainly numerous in San Francisco and in this health-giving and invigorating climate, it appears that their vim and enterprise grows with them. They prove themselves indefatigable in their endeavors to build up and aggrandize this already great city. The magnificently appointed store at 122 and 124 Sutter street, to be opened on Wednesday next by Mr. Thomas Day, with a most complete assortment of gas-fixtures and plumbing goods, marks him out as being one of those long established and ever active business men of whom we boast. Mr. Day has been favorably known in this community for many years, not only as keeping the best and latest styles of goods, but as being thoroughly honorable and upright in all his commercial dealings. We therefore advise our readers to call and examine this really splendid and varied stock of chandeliers, bronzes, gas fixtures, etc, before purchasing elsewhere, and we heartily wish Mr. Day every success in his new and commodious establishment.

In the Detroit Police Court.

BIJAH ACKNOWLEDGES HAVING BEEN BROUGHT UP AMONG THE HEATHEN.

"Bijah, were you brought up among the heathen?" sharply inquired his Honor.

The court had cut a hole in a lemon and was slowly sucking the juice while the clerk was getting the warrants ready. Bijah had been watching him for two or three minutes, licking his chops and wearing a hungry expression.

"I guess I was—I was born in New Jersey!" replied the old janitor.

This being his Honor's native State, he laid the lemon on the desk, propped it from rolling off with his pen-holder, and remarked:

"Mr. Joy, you are getting old and sassy. It grieves me to see it, but I realize that it is so. You have got to turn over a new leaf, or the silken cord of frienship which has so long united us shall be severed."

"Is it any harm to see a feller suck a lemon?" exclaimed Bijah.

"Mr. Joy, this world is full of harm. This very lemon, plump and fair as it may seem to the eye, may cause death within one hour. You may now open court and call out the prisoners, I hope the words I have spoken may make a deep impression on you heart. If you ever have a monument, the funds will come from my wallet, and I shall no care to remember any thing but your good deeds and your big feet. Bring out the vicious and the unfortunate, and let the cotillion commence."

ONE OF THE VICIOUS.

"Is your name Washington Harris?" inquired the court of an African who skulked out of the corridor.

"I specs it ar'."

"I don't want any dodging around the woodpile, sir—is that your name?"

"It ar', boss."

"And you, sir, were drunk on Harriet street?"

"I denies it, sah."

"Very well; come up here, mister officer, and take the oath and give us the big facts and the little facts in this case."

It seemed to be a plain case, as the officer had two witnessess, and the court continued:

"Mr. Harris, I am as certain that you was drunk as I am that cod-liver oil will kill the man who take it as a diet. Have you anything to say why I shouldn't ensconce you from the public gaze!"

"Yes, sah."

"Say it, then."

"Well, sah, in de fust place, I was in Toledo."

"Go on."

"In de next place, I wusn't de individual."

"Go on."

"In de next place, if I ar' sent to dat House of Correction I'll kick down de partitions and unhinge the big front gate and clean out de hull house."

"Mr. Harris. I've no time to talk with you, and can but briefly announce that you are chalked for three months, and if you even look cross-eyed at me I'll change the figures to six."

ONE OF THE UNFORTUNATE.

"Oh, now, don't commence weeping the first thing," entreated the court, as Catharine Morris came and buried her face in her handkerchief.

"I'm so sorry, sir!" she sobbed.

"Yes, so am I; how was it, Catharine?"

"You see, sir, I'd been washing windys on Howard street, and I took four swallows of wine to prevent me getting the rheumatism. It overcame me nervous system, and I fell in a fit."

"Well, you haven't been here before, and if I could secure your promise that you would take rheumatism in preference to wine after this, I'd let you go."

"Indeed, I'll promise."

"You mean this?"

"I mean every blessed word of it."

"You may go. You have children to support, rent to pay, and I don't want to add to your burdens, though you musn't let this happen again. Law to-day may resemble a fat strawberry—to-morrow it may bristle like a fresh-picked pine-apple. The more wine you don't drink the better it will be for you."

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

Amusements, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"The Bohemian Girl" is of inexhaustible attractions to the ordinary music loving public. Its third consecutive performance last evening was given to a well-filled house. This evening, Donizetti's great work, "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be given, for the first time here in English. The cast will include Mme. Rosewald as Lucia, Mr. Carleton as Henry Ashton, Mr. Hall as Raymond, and Mr. Castle as Edgar. "The Huguenots" on Friday.

Opera House.

So decided was the success of the comedy "Saratoga," that Mr. Daly very wisely determined to float a little longer on the full tide. It was produced last evening instead of "Frou-Frou," as had been announced, and drew a good house. It will be repeated this evening instead of Byron's comedy of "Weak Women," the production of which will be postponed until the popularity-tide of "Saratoga" begins to ebb.

California Theatre.

Miss Bella Pateman the leading lady of the California Theatre, a conscientous and excellent actress and a thorough favorite will take her annual complimentary benefit this evening. The bill Miss Pateman offers is an immense one, consisting as it does of Boucicault's Indian War drama of "Jessie Brown; or, the Relief of Lucknow," a recitation by Miss Pateman entitled "The Collier's Dying Child," the song "Killarney" by Miss Jennie Lee and the comedy of "The Ladies Club," in which Miss Pateman will appear as Mrs. Captain Fitz Smyth. Such a bill for such a beneficiaire will produce the natural result—a packed house.

Miss Jennie Lee's Benefit.

On Wednesday next Miss Jennie Lee, dear to many, many hearts in San Francisco, takes her benefit, which will be also the occasion of her public farewell to San Francisco, at least for a year or two. The bill will consist of the Comedy of "Used Up," a song by Mr. Carleton of the English Opera Troupe, and the burlesque, of "Ahmed," localized and adapted by T. J. Vivian.

Miss Badger's Debut.

On Thursday, Miss Ella F. Badger, a pupil of Miss Emelie Melville will make her debut at the California Theatre, as Julia in "The Hunchback," supported by the company. After the drama Miss Badger will recite Drake's "Address to the American Flag," and the bill will conclude with "Robert Macaire."

George H. Ciprico.

On Friday this gentleman will produce his play of "Edmund Kean; or, The Bohemian," at the California Theatre. Already the box sheet indicates a good house.

Herold's Concerts.

On Wednesday, Aug. 4th, Herold's second season of orchestral matinees will commence. This time they will be supported by subscription, the list of which is being well filled. Such an institution deserves patronage, for already has Mr. Herold given us (in his first season) some of the best instrumental selections from the great composers.

Pacific Hall.

The Kennedys' give their farewell performance this evening. A programme of particular attractiveness has been prepared.

Mexican Infantile Opera Company.

The two farewell performances of this troupe were given to very fair houses, that of Saturday afternoon, the occasion of the joint benefit of Ninas Carmen and Guadalupe U. y Moron, being particularly good.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

This week begins as the last ended, with a well arranged programme, which includes acts and an olio of variety specialties.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

The acts are good and of interest, and the variety bill is fresh and entertaining. The bill to-night embraces all the strength of the present strong company.

RIESEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since.

Laughing Gas.

MATILDA—A TRAGEDY.

Beside the stream of eventide
  We paused before we parted;
She, being older, only sighed,
  But I was broked-hearted.

"Once more (I said) our troth we plight
  Beside this brimming ocean;"
The river rolled its usual height,
  The rest was all emotion.

She answered not—my Love, my Queen!—
  She gave a gentle shiver;
(Old seasoned suitors know how keen
  The breeze blows up the river.)

"A flower (I said) a flower or sign
  Of love approved—confess!"
(I marked a Rose, more red than wine,
  That rose upon her breast.)

She gave it. Subtlest essence fell
  From each pink petal fold;
I wore it—though my sense of smell
  Was somewhat dull—from cold.

She went. And yet no Fate has lit
  Our hymenial taper;
But that's not all the worst of it:—
  The Rose was only paper!

His Sign.

The other day a Michigan avenue grocer hung out a sign of "strawberries." A man came along and told him that the sign didn't express or explain anything, and the grocer put on the words "for sale." Pretty soon a pedestrian halted and said that the sign didn't say where the strawberries were for sale—whether there or up town. The grocer put up a new sign, bearing the words "strawberries for sale here," and thought he had triumphed. It wasn't an hour before a man came along, halted, and looked all over the side of the building.

"What are you looking at?" asked the grocer.

"Your sign says that you have strawberries for sale here," replied the man, "but I've looked all over and around it, and I can't see one."

"They are in the store growled the grocer.

"Well, why don't you say so on your sign?" returned the man.

The grocer pulled it down in disgust, saying that he didn't care two cents whether he sold a strawberry or not.

A Cat Story.

A Mississippian has a cat of which he tells the following story: "I was sick a short time ago, and the cat would come from the table to the bed frequently. She finally caught a mouse and brought it to the bed, laying it down beside me. I threw it off, but as soon as I did so the cat would bring it back, until I thought she wanted me to eat it; so I made believe I ate it, and the cat went away apparently satisfied. And before night the same day she brought me a striped squirrel, and each day for three days I was in bed she brought game, with the same result; she would never leave until I had pretended to eat it."

A Neat Dodge.

A hotel-keeper at Jersey watering-place has the legs of his dining-room chairs so long that his guests have to double up like a jack-knife when taking their provender. Consequently, they fill up very rapidly, and it is not until they straighten up and leave the room that they discover the necessity of adjourning to the nearest restaurant.

How to Write Political Editorials.

When Bloss the political editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, becomes "indisposed," the managing editor of the paper catches a spider, breaks its legs, dips it in the ink, allows it to traverse a sheet of paper a few times, and then sends the "copy" to the news-room, where it is speedily translated into a first-class Democratic leader.

The Church Militant.

"You are all going to hell!" shouted an Arkansas camp-meeting preacher. That's a d—d lie; I'm going to New Orleans," said a butternut on a rear seat; but he took it all back when the preacher marched down toward him pulling an eighteen inch bowie knife from his boot leg.

Don Piatt's house in Washington took fire one Sunday morning. He superintended in person, the moving out of his parlor furniture. The men carried a piano down the front steps and placed it on the sidewalk. "Here, boys," said Don, "don't leave that there, or the firemen will play on it.

Precocity.

Mamma (to Freddy who is learning his letters)—"Don't you know what that is, Freddy? Why, that's A, apple pie, isn't it Cissy, dear!"

Cissy—"Well, mamma, I should say an apple pie, if you asked me!"

The Wigwam.

The best hot lunch to be had in the city is prepared at Asa L. Waugaman's, 773 Market street, under Fitzgibbon's Dancing Academy; also, a select stock of Wines, Liquors, etc.

The Closed Season in London.

Now that the theatres are, for the most part, closed, says the London correspondent of the New York Spirit of the Times, "there appears to be a determination to open them again with wandering stars and comets. The inevitable Juliets and Hamlets crowd upon us. The Globe is to open with a Miss Lottie Wilmot, and we are to have a dose of Shakspeare and Sheridan Knowles. The Soldene Opera Bouffe Company, which fared so disastrously in America, proposes to take one of the empty theatres, and play "La Fille de Madame Angot." I suppose because the original branch company has come to England again, and has made a hit with Lecocq's opera at the Criterion, when opera bouffes failed dismally in English. Mr. George Rignold, flushed with his American success, announces that he will open the musty and dusty old Queen's Theatre, where he will play the legitimate drama to empty benches all the Summer time. The Queen's Theatre is one of the most uncomfortable and cheerless in all London, and I don't believe anything will succeed there. At the Mirror Theatre, Mr. Horace Wigan talks of producing a new physcological drama called "Self," written by Mr. Wigan and Mr. John Oxenford. I don't believe in physcology in Holborn, and in the Summer time."

Genuine Fools.

He who wipes his nose on a nutmeg-grater and picks his teeth with a razor.

She who says "no!" to a proposal of a gentleman when she has reached the age of thirty.

He who gets so drunk at night that he puts his clothes to bed and hangs himself on a chair.

She who rubs her cheeks with brickbats in order to give them color.

He who puts on his hat, and takes his cane, and starts out in pursuit of an honest and disinterested politician.

She who pinches and slaps a child to make it quit bawling.

Cool.

Some time ago a man was charged in the Glasgow police court with stealing a herring barrel. After the charge had been proved, the principal accuser addressed the magistrate: "'Deed, Bailie, the man at the bar is a great rogue; the stealing o' the barrel is naething to some o' his tricks. He stole my sign-board last week, and what does yer honor think he did wi't?" "That would be hard for me to say." "Weel, sir, I'll tell ye. He brought it into my ain shop, wi' my ain name on't, and offered to sell me't, and he said he thought it would be o' mair use to me than ony body else."

Touching Epitaph.

A Western newspaper man obtained permission last week to occupy the honored chair of the Philadelphia Ledger obituary editor for one day. His only poem was in one verse, and referred to the death of one of the respected burghers, who possessed a mouth like that of an alligator. It was beautiful, simple and appropriate, reading as follows:

"Stranger, tread lightly o'er his sod,
For if he gapes you're gone, by G—d!"

Not That Way Yet.

During a dense fog a Mississippi steamboat took a landing. A traveler anxious to go ahead, came to the unperturbed manager of the wheel and asked why they stopped. "Too much fog; can't see the river." "But you can see the stars overhead." "Yes," replied the urbane pilot; "but until the biler busts we ain't goin' that way." The passenger went to bed.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419. opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

FOREIGN THEATRICAL NEWS.

Alexander Dumas is engaged upon a new comedy for the Theatre Francais. It will be written with a special view to the ability and qualifications of Mlle. Croizette. It is said that an American manager, who has an eye for business, has already secured this new play. He saw Dumas, was referred to the latter's homme d'affaires and paid a sum in advance.

Mario, the popular tenor, is at present in Paris. He is a native of the Island of Sardinia, where his father, the Marquis of Candia, held the appointment of Viceroy, when the young officer of the guard embraced his artistic career. Since his final withdrawal from the stage, the present Marquis resides at Naples, where he occupies himself with business affairs and political economy.

Arthur Sullivan has written an English opera entitled "Robert Macaire," which Carl Rosa will probably produce this Fall.

"Painless Dentistry" is the title of a new and very funny farce, recently produced at the London Adelphi.

Mlle. Torrianni will head Carl Rosa's English opera troupe next year, both in this country and Europe.

Carl Rosa has engaged Santley for his Fall season of English opera in England, and Arthur Sullivan is writing an opera for him.

Mr. Barry Sullivan was honored with a farewell dinner at the Alexandra Palace, London, on the 14th, prior to his leaving for New York. The Earl of Dunraven occupied the chair.

Mr. H. J. Byron will play in a new comedy of his own at the Haymarket Theatre, London, next season.

On insane Wagnerite says in a London paper: "The orchestra is invading the singer's province; in effect they are scrambling over the footlights on to the stage and sweeping away the throne of the tyrant singer, as the revolutionary mob swarmed into Versailles and drove thence the feeble monarch. Behold! a musical Pentecost has come. In the orchestra is found the gift of tongues, by which art truths are spoken freely and publicly to all mankind. The apostle Wagner is chosen first to exert these miraculous powers."

Mr. Bronson Howard is to write a play in conjunction with Mr. James Albery. Wonder if the London dramatic critics have yet been posted as to the proper occasions when to wear dress coats. If not, look out.

Liszt is actively organizing the new Academy of music at Pesth. Its chief professors are Von Bulow, Witte, Franz Erkel, Robert Volkmann and Cornelius Abranyi.

Mr. George Rignold is joint manager with Mr. Chas. Barrington of the Queen's Theatre, London, during Summer season.

At the Paris Gaiety they expect to produce a great sensation in the fall by giving in wonderful style Sardou's comedy "Don Quichotte" re-written and set to music by Offenbach. Theresa, of cafe chantant notoriety, will have an important role in the new opera bouffe.

A new Ophelia has appeared in Paris in the person of Mlle. de Reszke, a young singer from the North. She is rather attractive, blonde, and without being beautiful, has an expression so sweet and enticing that she at once wins the sympathies of those who approach her. She is above the middle height, and stoutly formed. Josephine de Reszke is twenty years of age and a Pole, her family being one of the foremost in Warsaw. Mlle. de Reszke has never sung elsewhere in Russia than in the hall of the Conservatoire, and then only for the benefit of the poor.

Wagner has a new opera in progress. The libretto is founded on the legend of Percival.

M. Lecocq is engaged upon two new opera bouffes, and M. Offenbach has no less than four in hand at the present time.

It is Tennyson's "Elaine" which Adelaide Neilson is having dramatized.

Eastern papers are calling Charlotte Cushman's "farewell" business "Charlotte ruse."

A Paris correspondent of the Amateur writes: "Auber died rich, covered with years and with glory, Mozart at thirty-six, poor and neglected. Auber will soon possess a tombstone, but Mozart will never have one for this reason. He died in the morning of a winter's day: the same evening his body was carried to a common vault, accompanied by a few persons only. In the following night there was a terrible storm, the cemetary was inundated, devastated. And since then no one has ever been

The Slang of the Stock Exchange.

A correspondent of Notes and Queries reports as follows the result of an investigation into the antiquity of the slang terms "Bull," "Bear" and "Lame Duck," which are in common use in the menagerie of the Stock Exchange:

The earliest mention of the second of these terms with which I am acquainted is in a satire published by T. Bowles, of St. Paul's Churchyard, London, and contemporary with the South Sea Bubble, styled the "Bubbler's Medley;" it is No. 1610 in the "Catalogue of Satirical Prints" in the British Museum. A print in the same collection, dated 1734, entitled "The Stocks," etc., No. 2016, comprises a verse which so neatly includes two of the terms, and suggests the third, that I may be forgiven for quoting it:

"But if Bull and Bear don't tally,
Out they waddle from the alley;
And reduced to humbler state, sir,
Curse Stock-jobbing and their fate, sir,
Doodle, doodle, doo," etc.

In the print No. 2016 the "lame ducks" are "waddling" away from the Stock Exchange.

A Cat Story.

A Mississippian has a cat of which he tells the following story: "I was sick a short time ago, and the cat would come from the table to the bed frequently. She finally caught a mouse and brought it to the bed, laying it down beside me. I threw it off, but as soon as I did so the cat would bring it back, until I thought she wanted me to eat it; so I made believe I ate it, and the cat went away apparently satisfied. And before night the same day she brought me a striped squirrel, and each day for three days I was in bed she brought game, with the same result; she would never leave until I had pretended to eat it."

◆

A Neat Dodge.

A hotel-keeper at Jersey watering-place has the legs of his dining-room chairs so long that his guests have to double up like a jack-knife when taking their provender. Consequently, they fill up very rapidly, and it is not until they straighten up and leave the room that they discover the necessity of adjourning to the nearest restaurant.

◆

How to Write Political Editorials.

When Bloss the political editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, becomes "indisposed," the managing editor of the paper catches a spider, breaks its legs, dips it in the ink, allows it to traverse a sheet of paper a few times, and then sends the "copy" to the news-room, where it is speedily translated into a first-class Democratic leader.

The Church Militant.

"You are all going to hell!" shouted an Arkansas camp-meeting preacher. That's a d—d lie; I'm going to New Orleans," said a butternut on a rear seat; but he took it all back when the preacher marched down toward him pulling an eighteen inch bowie knife from his boot leg.

A Word to the Wise, etc.

It is generally known, but there is not the proper attention paid to the fact, that Messrs. Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equal to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm.

Opera House.

Mr. Daly has apparently struck a real bonanza, at least the piece now being played at this pleasant little theatre, has the dual advantages of being well suited to the popular taste. "Saratoga" is a farce and that not a mild one, played with spirit and tact. Mr. Lewis, Miss Davenport, Miss Jeffreys Lewis, Mr. Harkins and Mrs. Gilbert if not seen at their best, at least play as if they were in their element, which, very possibly amounts to the same thing. "Saratoga" again this evening.

California Theatre.

Miss Pateman may be well pleased with the evidence of her popularity given at the California Theatre last night. In the first place the house was crowded; secondly, her reception was of the warmest nature; thirdly, the applause all the way through was most hearty and lastly, her well spoken, neat and judicious speech of explanation—in view of a recent affair—was received in such good and generous spirit that taken altogether, it was very evident, we repeat, that Miss Pateman's popularity had not flagged one jot. To-night, the debut of Mrs. Norton Bush in the antipodal characters of Lady Gay Spanker and Meg Merriles.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Lucia di Lammermoor," a difficult, and in many respects unsatisfactory opera, drew a good house last evening, and was undoubtedly enjoyed by all present. Mme. Rosewald's Lucia was particularly forcible at times, the music being always artistically sung, and the mad scene being given with such effect as to win a very decided recall. So did the duet with Mr. Carleton, whose Enrico was like all his characters, carefully and well played. Mr. Castle's slight want of force in the first scenes was more than atoned for, in the finale to the second act. The sextette was of course encored. This evening "Martha," with Mme. Bernard, Miss Annandale, Maas, Hall and Seguin, in the cast.

Miss Jennie Lee's Benefit.

To-morrow evening Miss Jennie Lee, dear to many, many hearts in San Francisco, takes her benefit, which will be also the occasion of her public farewell to San Francisco, at least for a year or two. The bill will consist of the Comedy of "Used Up," a song by Mr. Carleton of the English Opera Troupe, and the burlesque, of "Ahmed," localized and adapted by T. J. Vivian.

Miss Badger's Debut.

On Thursday, Miss Ella F. Badger, a pupil of Miss Emelie Melville will make her debut at the California Theatre, as Julia in "The Hunchback," supported by the company. After the drama Miss Badger will recite Drake's "Address to the American Flag," and the bill will conclude with "Robert [illegible]"

George M. Ciprico.

On Friday this gentleman will produce his play of "Edmund Kean; or, The Bohemian," at the California Theatre. Already the box sheet indicates a good house.

Herold's Concerts.

To-morrow, Aug. 4th, Herold's second season of orchestral matinees will commence. This time they will be supported by subscription, the list of which is being well filled. Such an institution deserves patronage, for already has Mr. Herold given us (in his first season) some of the best instrumental selections from the great composers. The programme for to-morrow at Platt's Hall will include Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, Gounod's Meditation, Strauss' Pizzicato Polka, and Weber's overture to "Oberon."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The acts for to-night are "Boring for Treasure," "Goat Island Ghost," "White and Black" and Stewart's Ethiopian sketch "Eh, What is It?"

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"Old Black Joe," "Deaf as a Post," "Bruised and Cured" and "Engaging Talent" are the acts for to-night.

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Our Australian letter has come to hand and will be published to-morrow.

Miss May Howard and the comedian, Chas. Sutton, arrived by the Mikado last evening.

Billy Manning is with Neil Bryant's Minstrels.

The Hooley company gave the Sacramentans a touch of their versatility on Friday and Saturday, by playing "The Merchant of Venice" on Friday evening, "Ultimo" for the Saturday matinee, and "The Two Orphans" in the evening. A Shakspearian comedy, a German farce, and a French melodrama in two days is not so bad.

The Kennedys open in San Jose on Monday next.

So successful was the Friday night's performance of the Lingards at San Jose, that another entertainment was given by request, on Saturday evening. "The veteran," Frank Rae, and Frank Gilder were amongst the company.

Helen La Dite Potter and Alfred P. Burbank gave two entertainments of humorous and dramatic [illegible]lings at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, on Thursday and Friday last. Good business.

Once or twice during Miss Ellie Wilton's absence, and since her return, certain papers have thought it clever to publish doubts as to her having gone on the European trip after all. Whether Miss Wilton had or not, could have made no possible difference, either to the writers of such inuendoes, or to the public, but as the Stock Report had yet another paragraph of this mischievous kind yesterday, we will go a little out of our way to state that Miss

THE YOUNG KING.

ARM: Is there not a ballad, boy, of the King and the beggar?

MOTH: The world was very guilty of such a ballad some three years since; but I think now 'tis not to be found; or, if it were, it would neither serve for the writing nor the tune.

ARM: I will have that subject newly writ over.—Love's Labor Lost.

The young king stands by his palace gate—
O what a joy is the youth of a king!
Tired a little of splendor and state:
Hark! in the valley the sweet birds sing!

Like a lion's mane his yellow hair,
His eyes so keen as a hawk's on the wing,
The ladies gaze and tremble there—
Ah! is it not sweet, the love of a king!

He sees the towers of his city below,
O shining river! O ships that swing!
Through wide white streets his people flow:
Hark! the bells of the Minster ring!

The Beggar came up with a nut-brown skin—
Ah! deep in the heart lies misery's sting!
Her eyes have a blue to the skies akin,
"Tirra-lirra" he hears her sing.

Forward he strides as the girl he sees—
O, how wild is the will of a king!
The ladies titter under the trees;
Still the bells of the Minster ring.

What the young king whispers none has heard—
Hey for the heath where the wild birds sing!
But the echo is caught of the Beggar's words:
"I love my love, and he is not a king."

Was that a Voice?

There were nine men in the saloon. Some were swallowing the last of a glass of lemonade, and some were hungrily waiting for their's to be mixed, while two or three were hoping to be invited to take something.

The tenth man pushed open the blind, walked to the middle of the room, let his satchel fall to the floor, and exclaimed:

"Hark!"

Everybody looked up. He was not a common looking man, and was worth a second glance.

"Hark! Did I hear it?" he asked in hoarse tones.

One man picked the piece of lemon out of his tumbler and cautiously chewed it as he watched the stranger, while the others turned square around.

"Oh! hark! Was that a voice?" whispered the man.

The man with the piece of lemon in his fingers muttered something about "tight again," and a man who had just lit a fresh cigar looked out of the window to see if a policeman was near.

"I did hear it?" continued the stranger, holding his right arm extended.

"See here, what do you want?" inquired the bar-tender.

"Listen!" commanded the man, "Don't you hear it?"

"Hear what?" shouted three or four men at once.

"A voice! A voice!"

"I don't hear no voice," replied the bar-keeper.

"Don't you?—there! THERE!"

The men listened for half a minute, and then one of them said:

"Voice! What voice?"

"A soft, melodious voice, sounding like angels' harps."

They listened again and one of the crowd asked:

"What does the voice say—who is it speaking to?"

"It is a bird-like lullaby voice asking me to come up and take a sherry cobbler!" whispered the stranger.

They all looked at him for a moment.

Then they rushed for him, and he was a sadly bounced man when he reached the sidewalk.

STRAY BITS AND STOLEN BITS.

"We all have our crosses," sighed Cardinal McClosky, as he mournfully pinned on that $20,000 diamond one, the St. Vincent pupils thrust upon him.

A Milwaukee belle attending a theatre in this city recently, complained in one of the scenes that the light was too dim to show the acting properly. "Won't you try this glass?" asked her escort, handing her his lorgnette. Hastily covering the suspicious looking object with her handkerchief, she placed it to her lips, took a long pull, and then handed it back in great disgust, saying: "Why, there ain't a drop in it."

It is not so extraordinary that Nebuchadnezzar lived on grass. We know of hundreds upon hundreds who live on the turf.

A wife who had been lecturing her husband for coming home intoxicated became incensed at his indifference, and exclaimed, "Oh, that I could wring tears of anguish from your eyes!" To which the hardened wretch hic-coughed, "Tai-'tain't no use, old woman, to bo-bore for water here."

A newly married couple went into a drug store and asked for soda water. The clerk inquired what syrup they would have in it, when the swain, leaning over the counter, replied, "Stranger money is no object to me; put sugar in it."

A gentleman who had the misfortune to lose his nose was followed by a beggar, who kept exclaiming: "Heaven preserve your honor's eyesight!" The gentleman was at last irritated by his persistence, and said: "Why do you wish my eyesight to be preserved? Nothing ails my eysight, nor is it likely to." "Oh, your honor," said the beggar, "but it will be a sad thing if it does, for you will have nothing to rest your spectacles upon."

A cross old fellow says a strong-minded woman will always be speaker of the house.

In an English Sunday School, the vicar's daughter, who was very proud of her Bible class, on inquiring of one of her pupils how Queen Sheba came to Solomon, received the reply, "By railway, Miss." On asking for an explanation she received the answer: "Because, Miss, the Bible says she came to Jerusalem with a very heavy train."

A boy, named Levi, ate ten baskets of strawberries yesterday on a wager.—Baltimore paper. We'll wager it didn't a Levi-ate his condition much.

Just think of it! It cost one million two hundred and fifty thousand five hundred and eighty-nine dollars and ten cents to keep the women of this country in imported corsets for one year. What a waste?—Exchange. Stay! its not a waste, it is one of their means of support.

Sheet music—Children crying in bed.

Curran was once asked by one of his brother judges, "Do you see anything ridiculous in this wig?" "Nothing but the head." was the reply.

Mistress—"Let you go to evening school, Mary? Why, I thought you could read?" "Well, ma'am, I does know my letters fus rate so long's they keep all in a row, but just as soon as they get mixed up into words, I'm beat."

The Indianapolis News has found out how the sex of that man in Europe who went about in woman's clothes was discovered. "He inadvertently said 'Thank you,' when a gentleman gave up his seat in a street car."

I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,

WEDNESDAY............AUGUST 4

OUR AUSTRALIAN LETTER.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

MELBOURNE, June 30th, 1875.

DEAR FIGARO: "Now is the winter of our discontent." This in few words exactly expresses our condition. The weather has lately been miserable, trade has been awful, and several failures have taken place. This Winter has been for us, a very severe one—wet, wet, wet, day after day, from early morn to very dewy eve. Country shows have suffered most, but the treasuries of our town amusements have been "touched on the raw" a few. Despite the baneful influences of the weather,

"THE SHAUGHRAUN,"

At the Theatre Royal, has been an immense success, and still keeps possession of the boards. The Conn of

MR. CHAS. WHEATLEIGH

Has created a great impression on our playgoers by the very natural, quiet, and withal vivacious style of his acting. The company have all been well adapted to their parts, and play them well and smoothly. The elaborate and magnificent scenery by

MR. JOHN HENNINGS,

The scene painter of the establishment, one of the worthy lessees, elicits nightly universal admiration, and the mechanical effects excite our wonder. Mr. Dion Boucicault need never fear when the managers of this house take it in hand, but that due justice will be done to any play he may send for presentation in Melbourne.

"THE TWO ORPHANS"

Will shortly be put in rehearsal to follow "The Shaughraun."

THE OPERA HOUSE

Is now occupied by the Allen Opera Company, consisting of Miss Alice May, Miss Lambert, Messrs. H. Hallam, Vernon, Templeton, Brown and Lester, with Signor Susini occasionally, and Miss Maggie Liddle, who has lately joined the troupe. "Satanella," "Bohemian Girl," "Lily of Killarney," "Maritana," "Genevieve de Brabant," "The Grand Duchess" and "Faust," have been severally performed since the opening. Signor Biscicianti is the business manager, and Mr. G. B. Allen, musical director and conductor.

THE LYSTER OPERA BOUFFE COMPANY,

Under the management of that enterprising impressario, Mr. W. S. Lyster, has gone to Sydney, there to open shortly at the Victoria Theatre. Their initial performance is to be "La Fille de Madame Angot."

ST. GEORGE'S HALL

Is tenanted by Messrs. Risley and Humphries, with Risley's really splendid panorama "The Mirror of the Thames." I have no hesitation in saying that it is without exception the most superbly painted ever seen in the colonies. The business has been very good, considering the inclemency of the weather. The McDonough Marionettes are I hear to follow at this hall. One of the most popular entertainments we have had put before us for some time past has been a lecture on the Tower of London, by the

REV. CHARLES CLARK,

Who for the last three Saturday nights has crammed the

TOWN HALL

To excess, long before the commencement of his lecture. Mr. Clark has for his agent

MR. R. S. SMYTHE,

One of the most energetic of our amusement agents, and who made in that capacity a most successful tour through New Zealand and this colony with

MADAME ARABELLA GODDARD.

Mr. Clark gives selections from Dickens as his next entertainment.

THE UNITED STATES MINSTRELS

At the Apollo Hall, consisting of George Rockefeller, Charles Holly, Tommy Hudson, West, Buckley, Tommy Campbell and a few others are doing a rattling "biz," pulling the people in by crowds. There's no mistake about it a minstrel show with a change of faces now and then, will run the year through here in this town. It is most likely that the old Melbourne favorite,

LOUIS BRAHAM,

The tenor singer, who arrived yesterday, from the Cape of Good Hope, will join the boys at the Apollo Hall. Welcome the coming, speed the parting.

CHARLEY SUTTON

Who opened in this city with Billy Emerson some time back, having determined to return to San Francisco, received last night at the

ATHENEUM HALL,

A grand complimentary benefit. The place was crammed and Charley's reception was a "stunner." When he sails this afternoon for Sydney, en route for 'Frisco, he will take with him the best wishes of troops of friends.

MR. AND MRS. H. F. STONE

Closed their country tour a fortnight ago and are to follow the Williamsons at the Queen's Theatre, Sydney. I regret to say they have not been a great success since their advent to this side of the world.

MR. J. C. WILLIAMSON AND MISS MAGGIE MOORE

Have been without exception the most lucky stars that ever put foot on Australian ground and as private individuals have everywhere been universally liked and respected. The Sydney engagement both in length of time and pecuniary emolument has greatly exceeded that of Melbourne. They will shortly close in the "City of the Cornstalks" return to Melbourne for a short time and play if arrangements can be made then leave here for India by the mail steamer on the 10th of August next, under engagement to Mr. Geo. B. Lewis. The intended visit of H. R. H.

THE PRINCE OF WALES,

To the Oriental Empire, has caused the managers of the various places of amusement to look us up for talent, the consequence of which will be a perfect

EXODUS OF TALENT

To the East. Besides the brilliant stars I have named, Mr. Lewis has secured the services of Mrs. W. G. Carey, Lionel Harding, Miss Nelly Wallace (Mrs. Henry), and her husband Mr. Henry (who lately arrived from your city), John Edouin and his wife (Tilly Earl), Rosa Cooper and Mr. F. Clint (Frank Varley), the scene painter. Mr. Lewis will also return to Calcutta for leading heavy business. The company will consist of about thirty people.

MR. GEORGE ANDERSON,

A well known and talented member of the "sock and buckskin," has also just arrived from Calcutta, for talent. After carefully looking around he has in the interests of the company owning the

CORINTHIAN THEATRE

On the Mardan, in Calcutta, engaged the whole of

ALLEN'S ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY,

Now performing at the Opera house, here, numbering over 40 people.

THE CARANDINI TROUPE,

Consisting of the two Misses Carandini, Mr. Walter Sherwin and Mr. E. Amery, also intend, at the same time, to visit the Indian Empire. In the Provinces the weather has sadly militated against "show" business. At the Princess Theatre, at

SANDHURST,

Melodrama, with a very good company, has been the staple of amusements. Mrs. G. W. B. Lewis lately played "Leah" there for Mr. McDonald, the Manager's, benefit. The company came down to

CASTLEMAINE

This week, with the "New Magdalen" as the piece de resistance.

HOWARTH'S HIBERNICON

Is in the provinces. The business is very well, but they sadly want a gentleman as advance agent, Mr. H. A. B. (alphabet) Williams being but a sorry substitute for one.

E. D. DAVIES,

The ventriloquist, was not a great success in this city; in fact, to bring the business of the Theatre Royal up, the services of our clever comedian,

MR. GEORGE COPPIN,

Had to be obtained even to make a decent paying house. There's too much blow about E. D. D. and not much talent. He is now running a variety show on his own account in Adelaide, at which place is also Mr. Weightman,

THE MAN FISH,

And as he shows against E. D. D., I'll bet my bottom dollar he'll run E. D. D. very close for patronage.

MR. AND MRS. F. M. BATES

Are having a very long stay in New Zealand. At latest dates they were at the Princess Theatre, Dunedin, N. Z.

THE FAKIR OF OOLU,

Dr. Sylvester, with his agent and partner, Mr. J. C. Rainer, were in the same town drawing crowded houses at the Queen's Theatre.

Vanderslice & Co., on Sutter street, a few doors below Kearny street, keep the most elegant assortment of Silverware, of their own manufacture, that can be found on the whole Pacific Coast, and their prices are always at the lowest living figures. Their stock of Watches, Jewelry and Precious Stones are equa to any that can be found anywhere, and as everything is at manufacturer's prices it will be seen that money can be saved by purchasing of the above-named firm. *

"Chicago Moving Westward."

Among the recent arrivals from our sister city Chicago, we note with pleasure the advent of Messrs. T. & D. Lundy, who have just opened at No. 777 Mission street, opposite St. Patrick's church, with the finest assortment ever imported to this coast of black walnut, bronze and marble clocks, suitable for stores, offices and parlor use, also pictures, engravings, mirrors, family bibles, albums, prayer books, etc., etc., all of which they furnish on easy payments.

California Theatre.

Mrs. Norton Bush's debut at this theatre last evening was in the whole fairly successful. She has good stage presence, but had possibly forgotten that attention to elocution is as necessary as that paid to personal appearance. Of the two characters she attempted, that of Lady Gay Spanker was certainly the better. This evening sees the farewell benefit of that universal favorite, Miss Jennie Lee. That it is her benefit would be cause sufficient to fill the house, but that it should be her farewell benefit means the attendance of all those who know her, to wish her god-speed in this public good-bye to San Francisco. In another paragraph will be found particulars as to the bill.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Martha," with Mrs. Richings-Bernard as Lady Henriette, Miss Annandale as Nancy, Mr Hall as Plunkett, Mr. Seguin as Sir Tristam, and Mr. Maas as Lionel, could not be otherwise than well sung and most acceptably played. This evening is to be marked by the feature of the week, and of the season so far—the production of Meyerbeer's grand opera "The Huguenots." The full force of the company will be called into requisition.

Opera House.

"Saratoga" draws such good houses and there is such a pleasant desire on the part of the public to see it for some time to come—as witness the box sheet—that Mr. Daly has naturally concluded to let it remain on the boards until the houses show signs of diminishing interest, which from present appearances they are not likely soon to do.

Miss Jennie Lee's Benefit.

This evening Miss Jennie Lee takes her benefit, which will also be the occasion of her public farewell to San Francisco, at least for a year or two. The bill will consist of the Comedy of "Used Up," a song by Mr. Carleton of the English Opera Troupe, the burlesque, of "Ahmed," localized and adapted by T. J. Vivian, and solos by Mons. Carreno Saufret and his charming wife.

Herold's Concerts.

Herold's second season of orchestral matinees will commence this afternoon. This time they will be supported by subscription, the list of which has been well filled. Such an institution deserves patronage, for already has Mr. Herold given us (in his first season) some of the best instrumental selections from the great composers. The programme for this afternoon at Platt's Hall will include Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, Gounod's Meditation, Strauss' Pizzicato Polka, and Weber's overture to "Oberon." The concert will begin at 3:30.

Miss Badger's Debut.

On Thursday, Miss Ella F. Badger, a pupil of Miss Emelie Melville will make her debut at the California Theatre, as Julia in "The Hunchback," supported by the company. After the drama Miss Badger will recite Drake's "Address to the American Flag," and the bill will conclude with "Robert Macaire."

George M. Ciprico.

On Friday this gentleman will produce his play of "Edmund Kean; or, The Bohemian," at the California Theatre. The play has been revised and we believe improved by the introduction of a new scene, the work of Mr. G. B. Densmore, who has already proved what his capabilities as a dramatist are.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Mortimore, Swain, West, Foster, Price and Senate in their various acts and specialties, the olio being for to-night a particularly interesting one.

New Olympic Variety Theatre.

"The Siamese Twins," Thompson, Barry, Robinsen, Cook, Harris and Carroll in acts and specialties, "The Demon of the Woods" and the sketch of "Uncle Jeff at Home."

REISEN KELLER.—An instrumental concert is given every evening at this mammoth symposium, corner of third and Market streets, under the Nucleus House. The spacious Riesen Keller (giant cellar), combines billiards, bowling alleys, shooting galleries, club rooms, reading rooms, concert hall and beer hall, all in one.

Woodward's Gardens.
